(b) The Bureau of Medical Services administers the medical care programs for merchant seamen, coastguardsmen, Indians, Alaskan natives, and other beneficiaries designated by the Congress; provides for the construction of medical facilities for Indians both in the form of grants and as direct construction; and through the foreign quarantine program performs examinations of aliens at U.S. ports and of visa applicants in foreign countries.

(c) The National Institutes of Health constitute the primary research arm of the Service and are further described in a subsequent statement.

(d) The National Library of Medicine collects and disseminates medical literature.

(e) The Office of the Surgeon General formulates general policy, furnishes central administrative services, and operates special programs such as international health activities, a center for health statistics, and emergency health preparedness activities.

¹ Selected resources as of June 30 are as follows: Unpaid undelivered orders, 1960, $10,997 thousand; 1961, $4,202 thousand; 1962, $6,315 thousand; 1963, $21,953 thousand.

This appropriation includes all direct construction items of the Public Health Service except construction of Indian health facilities, construction of wharf facilities at the Rosebank, N.J., quarantine station (appropriated under Foreign quarantine activities in 1962), construction of shellfish laboratories (appropriated under Milk, food, interstate and community sanitation in 1962), and the following construction projects of the National Institutes of Health:

(a) Mental health-neurology research facility—appropriated under Mental health activities and Neurology and blindness activities, 1961.

(b) Rocky Mountain Laboratory construction—appropriated under Allergy and infectious disease activities, 1962.

(c) Cancer research facility (planning funds)—appropriated under National Cancer Institute, 1961.

(d) Gerontology research building (planning funds)—appropriated under National Heart Institute, 1962.

programs of the Public Health Service follows (in thousands of dollars):

PROPOSED PROJECTS

The following construction projects will necessitate the provision of additional funds in 1963:

1. Communicable disease center.—The estimate provides $3,200 thousand to equip the new expanded communicable disease center facilities located in Atlanta, Ga., and the off-site animal breeding and holding facilities on an 80-acre site near Lawrenceville, Ga. The plans and specifications for these buildings are completed and construction will begin in 1962. This estimate provides for essential equipment needed for safety and efficient utilization of the expanded facilities and for reutilization of existing space by relocation of certain laboratories.

2. Construction of water pollution control laboratories.—The Federal Water Pollution Control Act Amendments of 1961 (Public Law 87-88) provides for establishment of at least seven water pollution control laboratories in different regions of the Nation. These new facilities will give technical support to the various elements of the Federal water pollution control programs. Personnel housed in these facilities will conduct applied research, investigations, field demonstrations, and studies, and provide training for Federal, State, and local personnel. The funds requested in 1963 provide for initiating construction on those laboratories for which planning and site acquisition will have been completed.

3. Research facilities construction and site acquisition, (NIH).—Acquisition of a site for a large animal facility to serve the National Institutes of Health was accomplished in 1960. Funds appropriated in 1961 provided for alterations, minor construction, and planning for the first phase of construction. Design is expected to be completed early in 1962 for construction of farm-type animal facilities for large animals, kennel building for large laboratory animals, quarters for essential farm personnel, and basic utilities. Funds requested in 1963 will provide for: construction of a caged-animal wing and animal behavior building; and planning for later construction.

4. Construction of master utilities extension, NIH.—The extension to the master utility resources would provide extensive improvements necessary to insure that with the advent of future construction there will be an adequate system available to service additional structures. It will also alleviate an already serious overload on the present utility resources.

5. Construction, building 12, NIH.—Funds are provided for modification and extension of building 12, NIH, to provide additional space primarily for office-type functions. This would permit consolidation of central service activities now dispersed in locations throughout the reservation and in off-site rental facilities.

6. Construction of laboratory facilities, Puerto Rico (NIH).—Funds are provided for planning and construction of an additional laboratory facility on the grounds of the Puerto Rico Medical Center. This facility should provide 52 modules for laboratories, for some central services such as cage washing and incineration, offices, and for cage space for the animals undergoing study and experimentation for the collaborative project in cerebral palsy and mental retardation. This would be in addition to the present space now occupied at the U.S. Public Health Service outpatient clinic and quarantine station in San Juan.

7. Construction of biologics standards annex, NIH.—The requested funds would provide for planning and first phase of construction of facilities needed to supplement the present laboratory testing space, quarters to house experimental animals, and cold storage space in supporting the effective operation of the Biologics Standards Division's responsibilities. It is proposed that planning begin in 1962 with unobligated funds remaining from other construction projects.

8. Construction of cancer research facility, NIH.—The proposed facility would permit implementation of plans developed during the past year to expand and consolidate the intramural and extramural components of collaborative research programs in cancer chemotherapy, development of test procedures, and environmental factors in cancer causation.

CONTINUING PROJECTS

The following projects are being planned or constructed under appropriations currently available:

9. Environmental health facilities planning.—A supplemental estimate for 1962 is anticipated for separate transmittal.

10. General office building extension, NIH.

11. Middle America Research Unit housing (NIH).

12. Construction of animal quarters, NIH.

13. Construction of research facilities, Lexington, Ky. (NIH).

14. Extension of Clinical Center cafeteria, NIH.

15. Biologics standards laboratory, NIH.

16. General office building, NIH.

17. Construction of surgical facilities, NIH.

18. Construction of dental research building, NIH.

19. Construction of library facilities.

Six duplex family-type housing units will provide quarters for staff and their families stationed at the Middle America Research Unit in the Canal Zone. Funds presently available for National Institutes of Health animal quarters are being used to convert wings 14 F and G from office space back to the originally intended purpose of animal production, as well as for breeding of pathogen-free animals. The research facility at the Addiction Research Center, Lexington, Ky., is scheduled for completion in March 1962. Associated with construction of the recently completed general office building is expansion of the powerplant for air-conditioning purposes. The new surgical facilities are expected to be completed by August 1962. The new National Library of Medicine is scheduled to be completed in March 1962.

COMPLETED PROJECTS

20. Equipment, Communicable Disease Center.

21. Construction of animal quarters, Hamilton, Mont. (NIH).

The purchase and installation of equipment at the Communicable Disease Center building at Atlanta, Ga., and the facility for small animals at the Rocky Mountain Laboratory at Hamilton, Mont., were completed in 1961.

1. Grants—(a) To States.—Grants are made to assist the States in expanding and improving statewide programs for the development of community facilities and services for the care of the aged and chronically ill. Each State will receive an allocation based upon a formula which takes into consideration such factors as the financial needs of the general population and particularly the financial needs of the population over age 65. Activities which will be supported include home health services, programs to improve the quality of care in nursing homes and homes for the aged, development and expansion of health information and referral centers, establishment of preventive services programs for the aged and chronically ill and the training of the necessary health personnel required for operating these new out-of-hospital services programs.

(b) Project.—Grants will be made on an individual project basis to States or other public or nonprofit private agencies for studies and demonstrations which look toward the development of new and improved methods of providing services outside the hospital. There are four principal program areas to which special project grants will be applied for studies and for demonstrations in the development of new or improved methods: (1) nursing home services, (2) home health services, particularly nursing services, (3) health information and referral centers, and (4) prevention of disability by early detection of potentially disabling illness at a time when treatment can be the most effective.

2. Research, training, and technical services.—This program provides for the development and improvement of techniques and methods for the identification and prevention of chronic illness, for the care and restoration of the chronically ill and aged, and for meeting special health problems of older people. Assistance will be given in the application of proven techniques through technical assistance, demonstrations, and training. In 1963 particular emphasis will be given to the development of programs for early detection and restorative services.

² Selected resources as of June 30 are as follows: Unpaid undelivered orders, 1960, $245 thousand (1961 adjustments, -$32 thousand); 1961, $245 thousand; 1962, $449 thousand; 1963, $449 thousand.

This program provides facilities and services for the investigation, prevention, and suppression of communicable diseases other than tuberculosis and venereal diseases by the development, advancement, and demonstration of knowledge and techniques.

Research, training, and technical services.—Scientific and technical skills in the fields of epidemiological medicine and microbiology, including reference diagnostic laboratory services, are provided to State and local health departments through investigations, consultations, and demonstrations. Important disease control programs include hepatitis, aseptic meningitis, poliomyelitis, viral encephalitis, the enteric diseases, staphylococcal and other institutionally acquired infections, the acute respiratory diseases, diseases of animals transmissible to man, and the rodent-borne diseases. Professional competence in the investigation of epidemic outbreaks is afforded to the States through the staff of the Epidemic Intelligence Service which is constantly alert to the epidemic situation in the country. These officers provide a wide range of service, including epidemic aid, epidemiological field investigations, consultations in communicable disease control, surveillance of infectious diseases, and collaborative field and laboratory research. The higher level in 1963 will provide funds for an expanded countrywide program of laboratory evaluation and improvement in the fields of virology, bacteriology, parasitology, and mycology. It will also support an expanded program of training, laboratory visitation and evaluation, and the stimulation of new and improved methodology at State and local levels. The training program provides for training course materials and audiovisual aids on modern public health practices for use by the State and local health departments in training their personnel in newer methods for disease control. The completion of purchasing of oral polio vaccine for an experimental program in the control of threatened epidemics offsets, in part, the 1963 increase.

1. Grants—(a) To States for general health.—Grants are made to assist States and local communities in the initiation of new public health programs and in providing and improving basic public health services such as public health nursing, laboratory services, communicable disease control, and sanitation activities.

(b) For public health training.—Grants and awards are made for traineeships for graduate or specialized public health training of professional health personnel. Grants are also made to provide basic support for the public health training programs of the 12 schools of public health. In addition project grants are made to schools of nursing, engineering, and public health to strengthen and expand graduate public health training in such schools. An increase of $2 million is proposed to bring the total number of traineeships to be awarded in 1963 to approximately 1,100 as compared with 625 in 1962 and provide short-term public health training to approximately 1,500 individuals. In addition an increase of $727 thousand is proposed for basic support grants to the 12 schools of public health.

2. Research, training, and technical services.—Funds are included to conduct research, demonstrations, technical assistance, and training directed toward more effective administration of State and local health services. An increase of $845 thousand is proposed for staff services in regional offices, operational costs of training grant programs, research and development in public health practice and medical service and economics, and expanded migrant health services.

(b) Project.—Grants are designed to supplement the grants to States program through concentration on problem areas of tuberculosis control. In 1963 an additional $1 million is proposed for support of project grants, offset by a decrease in grants to States.

2. Research, training, and technical services.—Studies are conducted in epidemiology, prevention, detection, diagnosis, and therapy of tuberculosis. This research is conducted in cooperation with State and local health departments, tuberculosis hospitals, private investigators, and others. The results of the applied research are made available to the States and integrated into tuberculosis control programs by means of demonstrations, consultative services, operational studies and training activities. Beginning in 1962 and continuing in 1963 the emphasis has been shifting from research to application of control techniques.

During 1961, 18,771 cases of infectious syphilis were reported which was an increase of more than 50% over 1960 and is the second successive year that an increase of more than 50% has been reported. Since 1957, reported syphilis has more than tripled with more cases being reported in 1961 than in any year since 1953.

1. Grants to States.—An increase of $1 million is included in the estimates to provide for the initial step of a program designed to eradicate syphilis as a major public health problem. This program will entail intensified application of epidemiologic techniques of interview, reinterview, contact investigations, and cluster testing of every infectious syphilis case reported. It is anticipated that State and local governments will increase their support of case-finding projects. The result will be an accelerated program, at all levels, toward the eradication of syphilis.

2. Research, training, and technical services.—Research and evaluation activities are directed toward maintenance of uniformly satisfactory nationwide serologic services; development and introduction of new syphilis diagnostic tests; development of an immunizing agent for syphilis; improvement of diagnostic techniques for gonorrhea; evaluation of more effective methods of therapy; and the improvement of control procedures. Epidemiologic services are directed toward the maintenance of nationwide and international intelligence and the control of venereal disease in areas of particular concentrations of agriculture, industrial, and military personnel and in numerous small high-prevalence areas that might become the foci for spread of infection. Consultation is furnished to States through the regional offices in determining problem areas, infection sources, and control techniques required. Scientific information and educational media are disseminated through State agencies.

The goal of the Division of Nursing is the improvement of nursing practices of all kinds in hospitals, in the home, in health agencies, and in other allied medical care facilities. Problems related to the quality of nursing service and education, nurse supply, distribution of nursing services, and nurse-patient relationships are dealt with by means of a balanced program of intramural research, consultation based on this research, and by training grants.

1. Training grants.—Grants are provided for traineeships to prepare nurses to be teachers, supervisors, and administrators under section 307 of the Public Health Service Act, as amended. The increase of $721 thousand will support approximately 1,700 additional nurses in training, 100 in the long-term and 1,600 in the short-term program.

The estimated number of trainees supported in 1962 and 1963 are as follows:

Federal funds are provided on a grant or loan basis to assist States, other public agencies, and nonprofit organizations in the construction of hospitals, rehabilitation facilities, diagnostic or diagnostic and treatment centers, nursing homes, public health centers, and related health facilities. Second, funds are provided to permit the Surgeon General to conduct research, experiments, demonstrations, and provide support for experimental construction relating to the effective development and utilization of hospital and medical facility services and resources, and to make grants-in-aid to States, political subdivisions, universities, hospitals, and other public and private nonprofit institutions or organizations for such projects. Third, State agencies are provided technical assistance in making inventories of their hospitals, public health centers, and other classes of facilities, in determining the type, size, and location of additional facilities required, and in developing coordinated programs, to meet the indicated needs; technical assistance is also provided to States and upon request to communities regarding the planning, programing, and design of hospital and medical facilities. Fourth, proposed hospital and other health facility projects are reviewed to determine eligibility and compliance with the law and regulations. State plans and their annual revisions are reviewed and approved. Project applications, plans and specifications, wage rates, contracts, and payment requests are reviewed for compliance with standards.

Funds for construction purposes are allocated to the States on the basis of a formula which takes into account population and per capita income. Payments are computed and made as construction progresses.

As of Oct. 31, 1961, a total of 5,785 construction projects had been approved, of which 4,243 were completed and in operation, 1,313 under construction, and 229 in preconstruction stages. Upon completion, these projects will provide 244,025 hospital beds and 1,614 public health and other medical facilities. Of the approved projects 61% were for general hospitals, 3% for mental hospitals, 1% for tuberculosis hospitals, 3% for chronic disease hospitals, 6% for nursing homes, 16% for public health centers and State health department laboratories, 7% for diagnostic centers, and 3% for rehabilitation centers.

Funds requested for 1963 will finance 704 hospital and medical facility projects, which will include 22,282 beds, assuming that the agencies program projects along the same lines as occurred in 1959 and 1960. The general hospital beds in this total, together with those constructed without Hill-Burton program aid, will be sufficient to take care of the annual population increase and replace those which annually become obsolete.

The Public Health Service has responsibility for the investigation of the causes of air pollution and the determination of the effects of air pollution upon life and property. These problems are dealt with through a coordinated program of basic and applied research, technical services to State and local agencies, and a training program designed to provide competencies necessary to cope with the complex problems of air pollution. To augment and speed up findings arising from research, funds are allocated to governmental agencies outside the Service and to private institutions through both research contracts and research and training grants.

1. Grants—(a) Research.—Research grants are made to organizations and institutions to conduct research into air pollution control problems. Approximately 108 grants will be supported in 1963 as compared to 76 in 1962.

(b) Training.—In 1963 it is estimated that 29 grants to individuals will be awarded to qualified applicants to improve individual competence as compared to 7 in 1962. In addition, grants will be made to universities to support graduate level curriculum development and improvement.

2. Research, training, and technical services.—A major portion of the resources of this program are allocated for the conduct of research related to the effects, control, and prevention of air pollution. Technical services are rendered to State and local health and air pollution control agencies in the form of advice and consultation. Training courses for State, local, and industry personnel are conducted through the training facilities at the Sanitary Engineering Center in Cincinnati, Ohio. In 1963 the key areas of research in analysis, identification, measurement, and control; medical and biological studies; and community and other field studies will be expanded. The number of short-term courses will be expanded from 12 in 1962 to 15 in 1963 to accommodate increased demand.

² Selected resources as of June 30 are as follows: Unpaid undelivered orders, 1960, $47 thousand; 1961, $54 thousand; 1962, $1,591 thousand; 1963, $1,591 thousand.

The milk, food, interstate, and community sanitation program is designed to carry out health protection for the public. This is accomplished by providing leadership, research, and technical assistance to States, municipalities, and industry to enable them to cope with problems which are nationwide in scope and impact. To insure that only safe milk, shellfish, and food supplies are served to the public and to the 2 million travelers per day carried on interstate conveyances, and to stimulate creation and maintenance of healthful environments, the operational program must be augmented and improved through research activities in the areas most affected by our rapidly changing technology.

1. Research grants.—The purpose of the research grants program is to encourage investigators at universities and other research institutions to undertake research in neglected areas and to support research throughout the country in milk, food, and shellfish sanitation and technology, in solid waste disposal, swimming pool and bathing place microbiology and control, and environmental engineering in relation to metropolitan planning. Approximately 196 research projects will be supported in 1963 as compared to 165 in 1962.

2. Research, training, and technical services.—By means of research, consultation, application of research findings, technical assistance, training, and inspections, professional guidance and leadership are provided to the States and the local communities for improved health protection of the public. The increase in 1963 will allow for the expansion of milk and food sanitation services and for developmental research studies of solid waste disposal. It will also enable training programs to be expanded.

3. Arctic Health Research Center.—At the Arctic Health Research Center in Alaska, studies are made on problems of low-temperature environmental sanitation, endemic and epidemic communicable diseases, including diseases transmissible from animals to man, and the nutrition and physiologic problems of arctic life.

The Public Health Service has responsibility for conducting a national program for the prevention and control of radiological hazards to public health. The Service is conducting a program to assess the levels and effects of radiation exposure and, in cooperation with other health agencies at Federal, State, and local levels, to minimize such dangers. Such a program involves both basic and applied research on the sources, levels, and effects of radiation, the provision of technical information and assistance to State and local agencies in developing their own radiation protection programs, and a training program to provide the competencies needed in this new and expanding area of radiation protection and control.

1. Grants—(a) Research.—Research grants are administered to complement intramural research as an integral part of the overall research effort and to capitalize on the talents of nongovernmental scientists. Approximately 75 research projects will be supported in 1963, as compared to 59 in 1962 and 54 in 1961.

(b) Training.—Grants are made to institutions to provide support of new or expanded programs for training of radiological health specialists. Approximately 30 training projects will be supported in 1963 as compared to an estimated 20 in 1962 and to 15 in 1961. The requested increase will support training of an additional 75 radiological health specialists.

(c) State program development.—Grants are proposed to be made to States to provide financial assistance in the development of comprehensive State radiological health programs. Funds will be allotted in accordance with a formula based on population, financial need, and the extent of the problem.

2. Research, training, and technical services.—Research is performed to determine the levels of radiation exposure of man from various sources and the precise biological effects, somatic and genetic, of such exposure. Laboratory and surveillance activities are conducted to provide basic data needed for research and control work. Technical services are supplied to other Federal agencies, States, and local authorities. Training courses for State, local, and industry personnel are conducted through the training facilities at various field locations such as Montgomery, Ala., and Las Vegas, Nev.

Research efforts in 1963 will be concentrated on laboratory projects devoted to identification of significant radionuclides for use in pinpointing areas to be studied epidemiologically, for assessment of radiation effects. Increased emphasis will also be placed on projects leading to the development of countermeasures. The Radiation Intelligence Network will be expanded and surveillance capability for assessing potential health hazards related to the resumption of nuclear testing will be increased. To assist the States in the development of their own radiological health programs, additional personnel will be assigned to States and more training courses will be conducted in the field.

Grants are made to State, municipal, and interstate agencies to stimulate and assist in the construction of sewage treatment works. Funds appropriated are allocated to States and other jurisdictions on the basis of population and economic need. Within these allocations, grants are awarded for projects certified by State water pollution control authorities as conforming to the State water pollution control plan and as to their priority over other eligible projects on the basis of the extent of water pollution and financial need. A grant may not exceed $600 thousand, or 30% of the cost of the project for which it was awarded, whichever is smaller. Where a project serves more than one municipality, the grant is computed on the basis of each community's share of the project cost under the 30% or $600 thousand limitation, but the aggregate amount of the grant may not exceed $2.4 million.

The estimate provides the maximum amount authorized for 1963.

Health, National Heart Institute, National Institute of Dental Research, National Institute of Arthritis and Metabolic Diseases, National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases, and the National Institute of Neurological Diseases and Blindness.

Operations of the Institutes are divided between grant programs largely for support of research and for training of individuals, and activities performed directly or through contracts by the Service. A portion of the funds from each of the eight appropriations is pooled through a management fund to provide central services for all institutes.

A distribution of obligations for this appropriation and the appropriation for the separate institutes by major activity follows (in thousands of dollars):

The major activities shown in the table above are common to all institutes and are described below. The workload, where applicable, is shown under the appropriate institute together with an explanation of any unique activities.

Grants and related contracts—Research.—Grants are made to institutions and to individuals to undertake research projects in the medical and biological sciences. Grants are awarded by the Surgeon General on the basis of merit after review and recommendation by scientifically competent study groups and the appropriate national advisory council.

Fellowships.—Grants are made to individuals in order to increase the research manpower in the medical sciences. There are several different types of awards such as predoctoral, postdoctoral, special, research career awards, and foreign research fellowships, each designed to develop research talent. Fellowships are reviewed by specialty boards and advisory councils and are awarded on the basis of merit.

Training grants.—Grants are made to institutions to develop or support training programs in the medical sciences and to individual trainees to enable them to undertake special training at an institution of their choice. Awards are made to both graduates and undergraduates.

Both institutional and individual grants are awarded by the Surgeon General on the basis of merit after review by an appropriate advisory council.

Grants for State control programs.—Funds are provided to States and Territories on a formula basis for strengthening State and local clinical and educational services in the cancer, mental health, and heart disease areas.

Community demonstration projects.—Grants are awarded on a merit basis to professional and voluntary agencies, as well as State and local health departments and community hospitals, to apply more rapidly proven cancer control measures.

Direct operations—Research.—The National Institutes of Health conduct research activities largely within the framework of the various specific institutes, directed to the disease categories represented thereby.

Collaborative studies.—Categorical research programs are conducted by investigators in collaboration with other Federal institutions and non-Federal institutions through direct operations or contracts in Bethesda and in dispersed geographical locations.

Professional and technical assistance.—Professional guidance and leadership are provided to States and other interested organizations in the knowledge and application of research findings through the provision of consultative services, demonstrations, training, field studies and investigations of improved methodology.

Review and approval of grants.—Applications for research grants, fellowships, and training grants are reviewed for merit by panels of private professional and lay persons distinguished in the field of medical science. Staff of the National Institutes of Health provide the administrative support and executive direction for the national advisory councils and study sections.

In addition to an appropriation for each program, there is an appropriation for general research and services which finances activities not related to particular categories of disease.

The appropriation for general research and services finances the Division of General Medical Sciences which administers research and training activities relating to basic problems in public health, medical, biological, and chemical fields. It also finances the Division of Biologics Standards which is responsible for the regulation of biologic products and the conduct of related research. The activities listed in the program and financing schedule for the general research and services appropriation are described below.

1. Grants and related contracts—(a) Research.—Funds for 1963 will support approximately 2,042 grants in 1963 as compared to 1,782 in 1962, and 1,293 in 1961. In addition, funds are provided in 1963 for general research support grants, general clinical research centers, and special resource centers.

(b) Fellowships.—Approximately 1,419 fellowships will be supported in 1963 as compared to 1,416 in 1962, and 1,282 in 1961.

(c) Training.—Approximately 518 graduate research training grants will be in effect in 1962 and 1963 for the support of about 4,040 trainees in the areas of basic biological, medical, and health-related sciences. This compares with 518 grants for 4,000 trainees in 1961.

2. Direct operations—(a) Biologics standards.—Activities include administration of the Biologics Control Act, establishment of standards for preparation of biologics, testing of vaccines and their preparation, and research related to development, manufacture, testing and use of vaccines and analogous products.

1. Medical stockpile.—Executive Order 10958 assigned to the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare the responsibility for conducting an effective program of stockpiling medical supplies and equipment for emergency use in the event of disaster. The supplies and equipment are strategically placed in and near communities around the country in the form of emergency hospitals which can be put into operation in a matter of hours. Funds previously provided will permit placement of 2,682 such hospitals—the estimate for 1963 would permit the placement of 750 more, toward a total estimated need of 9,500. In addition, replacement of some of the obsolete and deteriorated medical items in the depots and in prepositioned hospitals of the current stockpile will be accomplished.

2. Emergency health training and community preparedness.—This activity is concerned with the preparation and administration of a program to provide to the greatest extent possible adequate health services for the civilian population in the event of a national emergency. To fulfill this responsibility, the Public Health Service is conducting training courses, providing assistance to States and local communities in developing and instituting effective emergency health programs, and providing plans and programs for increasing the emergency health services at the Federal, regional, State, and local levels. The increase requested for 1963 will be used to expand the key areas of training and providing assistance to States and local communities to increase their capability to survive and recover in the event of a disaster.

The Bureau of State Services management fund finances the research services, business operations, program direction, and program services provided by the staff of the chief, Bureau of State Services, and by field installations at the Communicable Disease Center, Atlanta, Ga., and the Sanitary Engineering Center, Cincinnati, Ohio. Funds are advanced from those Public Health Service appropriations for which services are to be rendered. Formulas for determining the contribution from each appropriation are designed to reflect utilization of services performed by the management fund and take into consideration such factors as the numbers of personnel being serviced, and the dollar level for each program.

The centralized staffs of the Bureau of State Services, the Communicable Disease Center, and the Sanitary Engineering Center provide supporting services to program activities as follows:

1. Research services provide the central administration and operations of services required for the conduct of research activities at the Communicable Disease Center and the Sanitary Engineering Center. Included are such services as technical reporting, library and reference services, biometric services, laboratory equipment design and construction, and the operation and maintenance of buildings.

2. Business operations provide the centralized business management services for the Bureau of State Services and the business management services furnished by the central staffs of the Communicable Disease Center and the Sanitary Engineering Center. The activity includes such services as financial management, management advisory services, information activities, procurement, supply and property management, printing and reproduction, forms management, messenger, files and mail services.

3. Program direction provides for the executive direction and supervision of the various activities of the Bureau of State Services.

4. Program services provides for overall program review and development services; coordination of program efforts in the fields of toxicology, manpower resources, training and grant activities; facilities planning; and performance of liaison with the Arctic Health Research Center and the Sanitary Engineering Center.

NATIONAL INSTITUTES OF HEALTH MANAGEMENT FUND—Con.

The National Institutes of Health management fund was established to facilitate the conduct of operations of the National Institutes of Health which are financed by two or more appropriations. The activities of the fund are financed primarily from advances and reimbursements from the several institutes. Formulas for determining the contribution from each institute are designed to reflect utilization of services performed by the management fund. Taken into consideration are such factors as the number of activated beds in the clinical center, number of laboratory workers, total personnel, and dollar level of grant, direct research, and direct operations funds obligated by the Institute. A small portion of the funds comes from reimbursements from outside sources, principally cafeteria receipts, and some miscellaneous reimbursements from other Government agencies.

The centralized organizations of the National Institutes of Health provide supporting services to all programs as follows:

1. Research supporting services provide the central administration and operation of services for the conduct of research activities such as the care and breeding of experimental animals, laboratory equipment design and manufacture, and the operation and maintenance of utility services.

2. Clinical supporting services consist of the operation of the 516-bed clinical center together with the laboratory space required for the treatment of research patients.

3. Administrative management includes personnel, supply, and financial management, office services, plant safety, management analysis, and printing and reproduction.

4. Program direction provides for the executive direction and planning of intramural and extramural research including administration for the support of research in foreign countries.

5. Review and approval of grants provides procedures and policies governing the processing of applications for research project grant programs, program project grants, centers, fellowships, training grants, and health research facilities. Performs application processing services, program reporting and analytical services, overall program coordination, central records, and administration and audit of activated grants.

6. The cafeteria of the clinical center is operated by the nutrition department and furnishes meals for sale to the employees and visitors at rates sufficient to cover the reasonable value of the meals served. Income and expenses for 1961, 1962, and 1963 are as follows (in thousands of dollars):

SERVICE AND SUPPLY FUND

This fund finances the providing of certain supplies, services, and equipment to programs of the Service. It is reimbursed from the appropriations supporting the programs benefited (42 U.S.C. 231).

Budget program.—The principal operations under the fund are carried out at (a) the medical supply depot at Perry Point, Md., which maintains stock of drugs and other medical supplies to meet in part the requirements of the Service and requisitions of other Government organizations; and (b) the activity at the National Institutes of Health which maintains a central supply of scientific and general-use materials, supplies, and special equipment and also provides services such as animal production, statistical processing, and instrumentation for the laboratories and offices at Bethesda, Md. In contrast to the operations under this revolving fund, the National Institutes of Health management fund is an annual account to which appropriated funds are advanced to facilitate the financing of clinical research, research services, administration, and other activities where the costs of operation are not readily susceptible of distribution.

Operating results.—Retained earnings amounted to $234 thousand as of June 30, 1961, and are being retained in the fund against the possibility of future losses.

Saint Elizabeths Hospital provides care and treatment for the mentally ill, trains personnel in the medical, nursing and associated disciplines concerned with the treatment of psychiatric patients, and conducts and cooperates with others in scientific research activities dealing with mental illness. The patient load consists of beneficiaries of the Federal Government, both direct and reimbursable, and residents of the District of Columbia. The sponsoring agencies such as the District of Columbia Government and the Veterans Administration reimburse the hospital on the basis of the cost of patient care and treatment furnished. The cost of the research activity and 40% of the cost of the training and education activity, the portion not directly related to patient care, are financed from this appropriation. The average per diem reimbursement rate in 1960 and 1961 was $7.20 and $8.18 respectively and is estimated to be $8.84 in 1962 and $9.55 in 1963.

1. Operation and maintenance.—This activity covers the protective, therapeutic and rehabilitative programs of the Hospital, maintenance of hospital buildings, operation of a farm and an employees cafeteria, procurement of supplies and materials, and the provision of necessary administrative services.

Actual and estimated average daily patient load is as follows:

	1960 actual	1961 actual	1962 estimate	1963 estimate
Federal beneficiaries.....	1,915	1,996	2,030	2,079
District of Columbia residents.....	5,068	4,980	4,850	4,750
Total.....	6,983	6,976	6,880	6,829

Construction of a 250-bed treatment and cafeteria building to replace existing antiquated facilities is anticipated to be completed early in 1963 with patient occupancy planned for April. Funds are provided for medical and ancillary personnel to staff the new building with additional personnel to be provided by transfer of employees from the facilities to be replaced and utilization of a portion of the additional personnel provided in 1962.

A supplemental covering wage board pay increases and the increase in the number of Federal beneficiaries is anticipated for separate transmittal.

2. Training and education.—The Training and Education Program provides multidisciplinary clinical training for professional and ancillary personnel engaged or interested in mental health activities. The numbers of trainees under this program are as follows:

	1960 actual	1961 actual	1962 estimate	1963 estimate
Interns and other postgraduates.....	58	66	104	104
Student nurses.....	84	80	90	90
Total.....	142	146	194	194

3. Research.—The Hospital plans, develops and conducts coordinated research programs and projects for the purpose of obtaining a better understanding of the causes of mental disorders, and of the factors bearing upon their development, treatment and possible prevention. A close working relationship with the National Institute of Mental Health is maintained and the resources of both institutions are often combined in unified endeavors.

This appropriation covers all construction and facility improvement items of Saint Elizabeths Hospital.

1. Construction, continued treatment building.—Funds are requested for the construction and equipment of a 450-bed treatment facility to replace 3 smaller buildings constructed during the period 1853-1872. Plans and specifications are being developed with funds appropriated in 1959 and 1962.

2. Miscellaneous improvements of existing facilities.—Funds requested will provide for (a) replacement of four oil-fired boilers, (b) installation of sprinkler systems in non-fire-resistant buildings, (c) modernization of dish-washing installations, (d) conducting an engineering study of the plumbing system, and (e) rewiring and extension of electrical facilities in hospital buildings.

3. Construction and equipment, treatment and cafeteria building.—This building will house 250 patients and provide food service facilities for these plus 400 patients from 2 adjacent buildings. Construction of this building, which replaces an antiquated treatment facility built in 1871, is currently underway.

4. Extension and modernization of administration building.—The administration building is being modernized to furnish more adequate space and facilities. Plans and specifications have been completed and construction is expected to start early in 1962.

5. Construction and equipment of treatment building.—Construction of a 420-bed intensive treatment facility and an interdenominational chapel has been completed and both are in use.

6. Construction and equipment, maximum security building.—Construction of a 396-bed maximum security building has been completed and it is now in use. Small finishing-up projects are to be completed in the current year.

The old-age, survivors, and disability insurance program provides protection to over 90% of the persons in the labor force and their families against the loss of earnings because of old-age, disability, and death. Under this program, people in covered employment and the self-employed make tax contributions during their working years to pay for protection for themselves and their families. Employers match the contributions made by their employees. These contributions are deposited in the Federal Old-Age and Survivors Insurance and Federal Disability Insurance Trust Funds, out of which benefit payments and administrative costs are paid.

The Social Security Amendments of 1961 were enacted June 30, 1961. The amendments made these major changes in the program: (1) Payment of actuarially reduced benefits to men between 62 and 65 years of age; (2) liberalization of insured status requirements for OASI benefits; (3) increased benefits for aged widows; (4) an increase in the amount of the minimum benefit from $33 to $40; and (5) a more liberal retirement test for beneficiaries. The effect of these program changes is to sharply increase the volume of claims work in 1962, with a smaller continuing increase in subsequent years. To finance the added work in 1962, a supplemental appropriation in the amount of $26,500 thousand was enacted by the Congress in September 1962.

1. Maintenance of earnings accounts.—Eligibility for insurance benefits and the amount of benefit payments are based on the lifetime earnings records maintained by the Bureau. The volume of earnings record work depends primarily on the level of employment. Employment levels are expected to rise in 1963 from the preceding years. This anticipated increase in employment plus a growing population will result in a greater number of earnings items to be posted to workers' accounts in 1963 than in 1961 and 1962.

2. Processing OASI claims.—Prospective beneficiaries file claims in district offices located throughout the country. When a claim is approved, the Treasury Department is authorized to issue benefit checks. The number of claims to be received in 1962 is higher than estimated for 1963 because of the heavy initial impact of the 1961 amendment workloads in 1962.

3. Maintenance of OASI beneficiary rolls.—The beneficiary rolls require continuous revision so that benefit checks may be mailed promptly each month to beneficiaries who are entitled to them, and so that checks may be discontinued when eligibility for benefits is interrupted or comes to an end. The number of benefits in current pay status increased by 1 million in 1961. The estimate of benefits in current pay status for 1962 increases by more than 1.7 million, reflecting the initial impact of claims activity due to the 1961 amendments. The 1963 estimate reflects the return during the year to normal long-term growth of the program, as the initial effect of the amendments passes. Benefit payments will continue to rise each year with the increasing number of beneficiaries.

4. Processing disability claims and maintaining beneficiary rolls.—The Bureau's district offices receive all disability claims. In most cases State agencies, under contractual arrangements, determine the existence of a disability. The Bureau reviews these determinations to assure uniformity among States. In addition, the Bureau maintains the beneficiary rolls for disability beneficiaries. The removal of the age 50 limitation for eligibility for disability insurance as provided in the 1960 amendments resulted in an abnormally heavy volume of these claims in 1961. A backlog of claims which developed in 1961 will be reduced to normal size in 1962, and currency should be maintained in 1963. Benefit payments will continue to rise as the number of beneficiaries increase.

5. Hearings and appeals.—Individuals whose claims are disallowed have the right to appeal. The sharp increase in hearings requests to be filed in 1962 results from the high level of disability claims filed in 1961. A backlog of requests will carry over to 1963. Reduction of this backlog will increase the number of cases to be processed in that year.

HEALTH INSURANCE FOR THE AGED

Legislation is being proposed to provide a program of health insurance for the aged under the Social Security system. A tax of $\frac{1}{4}\%$ on both employers and employees plus an increase in the covered wage base from \$4,800 to \$5,200 is proposed to finance the program. Revenues from the increase in the covered wage base (beginning January 1, 1963) are expected to amount to \$42 million in fiscal 1963. There will be no benefit expenditures in 1963 because the program will not be in operation until the following year.

The 1946 and 1950 amendments to the Social Security Act extended coverage to certain World War II veterans on a nonecontributory basis; provided wage credits for active service during World War II; and authorized and then withdrew authority to appropriate amounts necessary to meet the cost of the additional benefits to the Federal old-age and survivors insurance trust fund. The 1956 amendments extended the period of protection; reinstated the reimbursement provision; and authorized, in conjunction with the 1958 amendments, appropriations to meet the additional costs resulting from the prior amendments, and appropriations to the Federal disability insurance trust fund. The estimate provides for the first of seven equal annual installments of the costs of benefits paid during the period September 1, 1950, through June 30, 1960.

Grants for old-age assistance, medical assistance for the aged, aid to dependent children, aid to the blind, and aid to the permanently and totally disabled are made to States that have plans for these programs approved by the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare. Fifty-four jurisdictions including all the States, the District of Columbia, Guam, Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands have approved plans for old-age assistance, aid to dependent children, and aid to the blind; 50 jurisdictions now have approved plans and 1 additional State is expected to have a plan for aid to the permanently and totally disabled in 1963. Under the Social Security Amendments of 1960 Federal participation in programs for medical assistance for the aged became effective on October 1, 1960. State legislation was necessary in most States before they could initiate programs for medical assistance for the aged. The number of jurisdictions expected to have approved plans for this program is 28 in 1962 and 31 in 1963.

Amendments to the Social Security Act in 1961 included both temporary and permanent changes in the public assistance titles of the Social Security Act that will result in additional expenditures from Federal funds. At the same time permanent amendments to the insurance provisions of the Act are expected to result in a reduction in expenditures for old-age assistance below what they would otherwise have been. The major changes in the public assistance titles include: (a) Temporary legislation, effective October 1, 1961, through June 30, 1962, that increases Federal participation in old-age assistance, aid to the blind, and aid to the permanently and totally disabled; (b) Temporary legislation, effective May 1, 1961, through June 30, 1962, that broadens coverage of the program of aid to dependent children by providing Federal funds for (1) assistance on behalf of dependent children of unemployed parents and (2) for children receiving aid to dependent children who are placed in foster family homes under certain conditions; (c) Permanent legislation that increases Federal financial participation in payments to suppliers of medical care to recipients of old-age assistance.

The budget request for 1963 includes an amount of $125.4 million based on the assumption that these temporary amendments will be extended and in effect for the entire year 1963. In addition legislation will be proposed particularly to strengthen welfare services directed toward reducing dependency.

Federal share of assistance payments—Provisions applicable in old-age assistance, aid to the blind, and aid to the permanently and totally disabled.—Under the temporary legislation in effect from October 1, 1961, through June 30, 1962, and assumed to continue in effect during 1963, the amount of assistance payments subject to Federal participation is limited to a monthly average expenditure of $66 per recipient. The average monthly amount is based on expenditures for money payments to recipients and payments to vendors for medical or remedial care. Within this maximum, the Federal Government provides 80% of the first $31 per recipient plus a proportion of the balance, which varies among States from 50% to 65% depending on variations in average per capita income of the States. Under permanent legislation in effect during the first quarter of 1962 and during all of 1963 if the temporary amendments are not extended, the Federal maximum for the average total payment is $65 instead of $66, and the Federal share is 80% of the first $30 rather than the first $31. The Federal share of the balance of the average assistance payment that falls within the Federal maximum is not affected.

The foregoing provisions apply in all jurisdictions except Guam, Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands; for these jurisdictions the Federal share is one-half of total expenditures within a maximum monthly average of $35.50 per recipient ($35 under permanent legislation) subject to an overall limitation on the total annual Federal funds for assistance and administration for all programs combined for each jurisdiction.

Provisions applicable in old-age assistance only.—Under permanent legislation for old-age assistance that went into effect on July 1, 1961, the amount of direct agency payments to suppliers of medical care (vendor medical payments), in which there is additional Federal participation beyond the formula described above, was raised from a monthly average of $12 to $15.

For States with average monthly payments over $66 ($65 under permanent legislation), the Federal Government participates in the expenditures in excess of that amount except that such participation is limited to the amount of the average vendor medical payment, with a maximum of $15. The Federal share in the excess expenditure consists of the Federal medical percentage for the State, which range from 50% to 80% under a formula based on per capita income.

For States with average monthly payments of $66 ($65 under permanent legislation) or less, the additional Federal share in average vendor medical payments up to $15 is an additional 15% over the usual Federal percentage (based on per capita income) applicable to the amount of payments falling between $31 and $66 (between $30 and $65 under permanent legislation). This percentage, when added to the usual Federal percentage for the second part of the payment, results in a total Federal share of from 65% to 80%. The additional Federal share of 15% also is available to States with average monthly payments over $66 ($65 under permanent legislation) when it is advantageous to them as an alternative to the method described in the preceding paragraph. For Guam, Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands, comparable liberalizations were made for direct payments to suppliers of medical services.

Provisions applicable in medical assistance for the aged.—For all 54 jurisdictions the Federal share of expenditures for the new program of medical assistance for the aged is the Federal medical percentage of the amounts expended by the State for such assistance. The Federal medical percentages for the individual States range from 50% to 80% under a formula based on per capita income.

Provisions applicable in aid to dependent children.—For aid to dependent children in the 50 States and the District of Columbia, the Federal share is fourteen-sevenths of the first $17 per recipient plus a Federal percentage of the next $13 of the average monthly payment per recipient that varies from 50% to 65% according to relative State per capita income. For Guam, Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands the Federal share is one-half of total expenditures within a maximum monthly average of $18 per recipient and within an overall limitation on total annual Federal funds for assistance and administration for all programs combined for each jurisdiction.

Under temporary legislation in effect from May 1, 1961, through June 30, 1962, and assumed to continue in effect during 1963, Federal financial participation in aid to dependent children is increased because of (a) the extension of aid to children of unemployed parents and (b) the continuation of assistance to children who are placed in foster-family homes following a court determination that remaining in their family's home would be contrary to the children's welfare.

For 1963, the total amount of Federal, State, and local expenditures for assistance and administration is estimated at $4,593.1 million of which $2,709.3 million represents the Federal share. The appropriation request of $2,688.3 million is $21 million less than the estimated Federal share, because the States will have available for expenditures $21 million representing the Federal share of collections and adjustments for prior years. Of the total Federal share, $1,287.8 million is for old-age assistance, $233.3 million for medical assistance for the aged, $925.3 million for aid to dependent children, $48.2 million for aid to the blind and $214.7 million for aid to the permanently and totally disabled.

It is estimated that a supplemental appropriation of $140 million will be required for 1962 in addition to the $2,401.2 million already appropriated. The supplemental amount is needed primarily to finance additional costs for medical assistance for the aged, aid to the permanently and totally disabled, and for that portion of the program of aid to dependent children that is financed under permanent legislation. For these three programs the revised estimate includes a larger number of recipients than that on which the appropriation was based.

The appropriation request of $2,688.3 million for 1963 is $147.1 million (excluding about $3.5 million used from the 1962 appropriation to complete 1961 requirements) more than the appropriation of $2,401.2 million plus the supplemental request of $140 million for 1962. All programs, except aid to the blind, contribute to the increase for 1963 over 1962, with the largest increases—$87.5 million and $29.8 million—occurring in medical assistance for the aged and aid to dependent children, respectively.

Public assistance costs for both 1962 and 1963 are expected to be lower than they would otherwise have been as a result of amendments to the insurance provisions of the Social Security Act that were also included in the 1961 amendments.

The figures for 1962 used in the tables appearing under the activities below include the supplemental request of $140 million; the figures shown in the program and financing schedule include only the $2,401.2 million already appropriated.

1. Payments to or on behalf of recipients—(a) Old-age assistance.—The average number of recipients per month for 1963 is estimated at 1.5% fewer than was estimated for 1962. The estimated average monthly payment is $1.60 more than the estimate for 1962.

2. State and local administration.—The grants to States include half the costs of State and local administration that are found by the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare to be necessary for the proper and efficient administration of the State public assistance programs. The Federal share contributes toward the salaries and expenses of about 61,000 (including 4,800 for medical assistance for the aged) State and local personnel.

Total costs in 1963 are estimated at $24.7 million more than in 1962; $12.3 million of this increase will come from Federal funds. The increases in costs are attributable primarily to (a) salary increases given to keep pace with rising living costs and to compete successfully with other professions and agencies for staff and (b) staff increases to handle the increased number of recipients including those who are to receive medical assistance as a result of the growth of the program of medical assistance for the aged and to provide services to recipients directed toward self-care, self-support, and strengthened family life.

Under existing legislation, 1962.—It is estimated that a supplemental appropriation of $140,000 thousand will be required for 1962. The additional requirements for 1962 are based on a lower estimate for old-age assistance and aid to the blind and higher estimates for the other three programs than those included in the appropriation for 1962. The largest increases are for the new program of medical assistance for the aged and for aid to dependent children. The additional amount for aid to dependent children reflects an estimated increase in number of recipients under that part of the program that is administered under permanent legislation.

Under proposed legislation, 1963.—Proposals will be made to the Congress in 1962 for amendments to the Social Security Act designed to improve the effectiveness of the Federal-State public assistance and child welfare services programs. These will emphasize measures to promote self-sufficiency and independence on the part of recipients and strengthen family life.

GRANTS TO STATES FOR TRAINING OF PUBLIC WELFARE PERSONNEL

For grants to States for increasing the number of adequately trained public welfare personnel available for work in the public assistance programs, as authorized by section 705 of the Social Security Act, as amended, $3,500,000. (Sec. 332, 70 Stat. 851.)

An amount of $3,500 thousand is requested for grants to States in 1963 for a program of training and instruction in professional and technical fields relating to public assistance. Action to alleviate the acute shortage of trained public assistance social workers, which is an increasingly serious problem, has become even more urgent with recent program expansions and more complex problems of administration. The budget estimate for 1963 will permit increasing the number of adequately trained personnel by providing for approximately 600 fellowships and traineeships, including teaching grants to aid in financing of the training. Provision is also made for training through short-term study groups or seminars for approximately 800 employees of State and local public assistance agencies.

[For necessary expenses] of carrying out the provisions of the Act of July 5, 1960 (74 Stat. 308), and for care and treatment in accordance with the Acts of March 2, 1929, and October 29, 1941, as amended (24 U.S.C. 191a, 196a), [$364,000] $875,000. Public Law 86-571, approved July 5, 1960, provides for hospitalization and services to repatriated mentally ill U.S. nationals until arrangements can be made for assumption of responsibility by State of residence or family. Public Law 87-64, approved June 30, 1961 authorizes the development of plans whereby provision is made for temporary assistance to U.S. citizens and their dependents who return to this country because of personal or international crises and who are without available resources.

1. Mentally ill.—The estimate assumes that 75 mentally ill repatriates will be received from abroad in 1963 for whom help under this program will be necessary. In addition, funds are included in the estimate for patients remaining in Saint Elizabeths Hospital in 1963, who were there as of July 1, 1961, under Public Law 86-571.

2. Others.—The 1963 estimate provides for assistance for: (a) persons returned from Cuba—it is estimated an average of 140 families per month will receive assistance, the same as in 1962; and (b) persons returned from other countries—it is estimated a total of 120 persons (or families) from abroad will require some form of assistance.

The Bureau is responsible for the administration of five grant-in-aid programs: Old-Age Assistance, Medical Assistance for the Aged, Aid to Dependent Children, Aid to the Blind, and Aid to the Permanently and Totally Disabled. Approximately 7 million individuals are expected to receive aid under these programs in 1963; involving more than $4.5 billion in Federal, State, and local funds—of which about $2.7 billion will be Federal.

1. Program policies and standards.—Requirements of the Social Security Act are interpreted and specialized technical assistance is provided to State agencies. There is special emphasis to assure that problems of public welfare are dealt with constructively; community services aimed at preventing dependency and rehabilitating those who do become dependent are being stressed.

2. Review State plans and grants, evaluate State operations.—Action is taken on new State plans and on amendments thereto to assure conformity to the act; reviews are made of operations and findings are used to assist States in administering their programs; consultation and advice are provided on problems arising in day-to-day operations; grants are processed; information is provided to the public.

3. Collect and interpret statistics.—Information is collected in cooperation with State agencies, to provide national statistics on public assistance which are used by the Bureau and the States in formulating policies, planning program content, setting standards, making legislative recommendations, justifying appropriation requests, answering requests, and guiding administrative action.

4. Civil defense emergency welfare service.—Performance of delegation to assist State and local jurisdictions develop and implement plans so as to provide for an integrated national program of essential welfare aid and services to assure availability of the necessities of life to the homeless and others in need of help in the event of enemy attack or threat of enemy attack.

¹ Selected resources as of June 30 are as follows: unpaid undelivered orders, 1960, $0; 1961, $0; 1962, $0; 1963, $955 thousand.

The States are required to match one-half of the amounts appropriated for maternal and child health and crippled children's services. The remainder is distributed to the States in proportion to their financial need, except that not to exceed 12½% of the appropriations for the above programs is available for special project grants to State agencies and to public or nonprofit institutions of higher learning.

The States are required to match all appropriated funds for child welfare services but the percent of matching required varies from 33⅓ to 66%. No matching funds are required for the program of grants for research or demonstration projects in child welfare authorized by the Social Security Amendments of 1960.

1. Maternal and child health services.—Grants are provided to States for the extension and improvement of health services for mothers and children, especially in rural areas.

2. Crippled children's services.—Grants are made to States to extend and improve services for crippled children including medical, surgical, corrective, and other care, especially in rural areas.

3. Child welfare services.—Grants aid States to establish, extend, and strengthen child welfare services for the protection and care of homeless, dependent, and neglected children, and children in danger of becoming delinquent, and for the return of runaway children to their own homes in other States.

4. Research or demonstration projects in child welfare.—Grants are made to public or nonprofit institutions of higher learning or agencies and organizations engaged in research or child welfare activities for projects of regional or national significance or for those which demonstrate new facilities or methods which contribute to the advancement of child welfare. The $1,750 thousand requested for this program represent an estimate of the full cost of continuing projects initiated in 1962 and of the full cost of projects that will be initiated in 1963. Actual costs are estimated at $795 thousand in 1963 (including $550 thousand for new projects) and $955 thousand in subsequent years.

The fund has authority for providing the following management services on a centralized basis for the Department headquarters: (1) reproduction, (2) visual exhibits, (3) supply services, (4) tabulating, (5) communications, (6) accounting and payroll, and (7) laborers' services. Presently, only reproduction, visual exhibits, supply service, tabulating, and laborers' services are being provided for in a centralized basis through the fund.

Consideration is being given to establishing in 1962, a centralized payroll unit in the office of the Secretary that will eventually payroll all of the Department's employees. Other activities authorized to be incorporated into the fund will be included only if this proves to be the most efficient and economical method of providing the service.

Budget program—1. Reproduction.—Consists of offset printing, mimeographing, photographic, visual aids, micro-filming, and addressograph services for the Department's headquarters and for other Government agencies as required. This activity also includes procurement of printing from Government Printing Office and other sources and procurement and distribution of congressional materials.

2. Tabulating.—Provides tabulating services on a centralized basis for all of the headquarters units of the Department. The services performed cover fiscal, payroll, and statistical data processing.

3. Supply services.—Provides purchasing, supply, and laboring services on a centralized basis for the headquarters' units of the Department.

Government investment at end of 1963 is expected to consist of donated assets and retained earnings. The earnings are retained to meet future needs.

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR

PUBLIC LAND MANAGEMENT

BUREAU OF LAND MANAGEMENT

The Bureau of Land Management is responsible for the conservation, management, and development of some 477 million acres of the Nation's public lands. This includes the 168 million acre national land reserve located in 27 States, plus some 309 million acres of other federally owned lands, most of which are located in Alaska.

In addition, the Bureau administers mining and mineral leasing on other federally owned lands, on former Federal lands where minerals have been reserved in public ownership, and on the submerged lands of the Outer Continental Shelf.

The work of the Bureau produces revenue from various sources which is distributed as follows (in millions of dollars):

1. Lease and disposal of lands and mineral resources.—Applications are acted upon for all types of land use and for lease of mineral resources, principally oil and gas. A comprehensive inventory of land resources and field investigations are made in order to determine the best use of the resources and classify the lands accordingly. General information is disseminated to the public, including information contained in the land records which are being modernized. The increase in 1963 will provide for acceleration of the comprehensive inventory of the public lands, prompt action on applications for title or lease, improved records service to the public, recreation planning, and increased trespass control. The status of land and minerals adjudication workloads is summarized below:

	1960 actual	1961 actual	1962 estimate	1963 estimate
Cases pending, start of year	100,675	105,246	94,252	89,000

Cases closed	254,536	327,001	325,252	384,000
Cases pending, end of year	105,246	94,252	89,000	85,000

2. Management of grazing lands.—The 178 million acres of public lands available for grazing which are used by approximately 30,000 stockmen are managed and protected. Proper management of these lands provides protection from fire, erosion, overuse, unseasonal use, and trespass, thereby perpetuating forage resources. The increase for 1963 will accelerate the conduct of resource inventories, increase attention to multiple-use management of the public lands, and will expand substantially all aspects of fire suppression.

3. Forestry.—A total of 46 million acres of commercial forest lands and 114 million acres of woodland-type lands are managed. The 1963 program includes the sale of 1.2 billion board feet of timber for anticipated receipts of $35.1 million. The increase in 1963 will provide for improved management and development of forest resources and for increased fire protection in Alaska.

4. Cadastral surveys.—Surveys are performed to: locate and identify legal boundaries of lands under application for lease or disposal, including submerged lands on the Outer Continental Shelf; assist in the management of forest and range lands; provide legal descriptions needed by other Federal agencies; and to permit States to obtain title to lands granted them by law. The increase in 1963 will provide for additional surveys in Western States and in Alaska.

MANAGEMENT OF LANDS AND RESOURCES—continued

5. Soil and moisture conservation.—Public lands in critical condition from erosion are conserved and rehabilitated and restored to productivity. Cooperative programs will continue with other agencies in river basin areas. The increase in 1963 is to accelerate this program and to provide for the rehabilitation of currently burned-over forest and range lands.

6. Fire suppression.—Fires are fought which are on or threatening lands under the jurisdiction of the Bureau of Land Management. Estimated acres burned in calendar year 1961 totaled 251,907 and during the first 3 months of 1962 over 120,000 acres were burned and costs of suppression were in excess of $1.3 million. A supplemental estimate for 1962 is anticipated for separate transmittal.

7. Maintenance of physical facilities.—Physical maintenance is provided for about 330 structures used as storehouses, equipment shelters, fire crew barracks and similar purposes.

8. Maintenance of access roads.—Maintenance is provided for access roads on Coos Bay Wagon Road grant lands and on the public lands.

9. Weed control.—Areas infested by halogeton, Medusa rye, host plants to the beet leafhopper, and other poisonous and noxious weeds are treated.

10. General administration.—Executive direction is provided and services such as accounting, personnel administration, procurement, budgeting, management analysis, and internal auditing are performed in support of the programs of the Bureau. The increase in 1963 will provide more adequate staffing for administrative activities consistent with the expansion of Bureau programs.

Moneys received in forfeiture of such bonds or for road maintenance are available for necessary forest improvement, protection, and rehabilitation, and for road maintenance. Moneys collected on Oregon and California grant lands are available for those lands only and amounts in excess of the cost of doing the work are transferred to miscellaneous receipts (74 Stat. 507-508).

BUREAU OF INDIAN AFFAIRS

The responsibility of the United States toward the Indian people includes protection and development of trust property and the furnishing of services not otherwise available to Indians and which are normally provided other citizens through Government and private agencies. Active programs are being aimed toward increased Indian participation in the management of Indian-owned resources and full Indian participation in American life. States and counties are participating at an increasing rate in the service programs. The ultimate goal of the entire program is to have the Indian people take their proper place in the social and economic life of the Nation on the same basis as other citizens.

1. Educational assistance, facilities, and services.—The Bureau operates Federal school facilities where public schools are not available or cannot meet the special needs of Indian children. Financial assistance is extended to public schools enrolling Indian children where tax-free Indian lands result in financial problems for the local districts and where other special problems exist that are not covered by Federal impact legislation, administered by the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare. Grants are made to Indians to attend schools beyond the secondary level and assistance is given to adult Indians through an education and training program. Indian children enrolled in Federal facilities are as follows (pupils included in the following table under "Dormitories" attend public schools but are domiciled in federally operated dormitories):

Loans made by this fund are used to assist Indians in acquiring livestock, farm, and other equipment, and in establishing tribal business enterprises (25 U.S.C. 470, 471, 631). This fund and miscellaneous tribal funds provide the only source of loans for a great number of Indians who cannot borrow from ordinary commercial credit sources because of their low economic status and lack of bankable security.

As of June 30, 1961, the principal of the fund amounted to $16.5 million, consisting of $13.8 million appropriated, and $2.7 million cattle settlements. Cattle settlements are payments made by the Indians for breeding stock furnished by the Government generally prior to the establishment of this fund.

Operating results.—Annual losses of $1.1 million and $1.5 million are anticipated for 1962 and 1963, respectively, due to the necessity of making substantial provision for uncollectible loans.

NATIONAL PARK SERVICE

The Service administers national parks and other areas of unusual historic, scenic, scientific, or recreational character in the interest of their preservation as well as their public use and makes studies of the recreation resources of the United States in cooperation with Federal, State, and local agencies.

1963 will be the seventh year of the 10-year program, mission 66, to provide personnel and facilities needed to serve the ever-increasing number of visitors to park areas, and at the same time preserve park values. Visitation to parks is expected to increase from an estimated 78 million in 1961 to 89 million in 1966.

Current authorizations:

MANAGEMENT AND PROTECTION

For expenses necessary for the management and protection of the areas and facilities administered by the National Park Service, including protection of lands in process of condemnation; and for plans, investigations, and studies of the recreational resources (exclusive of preparation of detail plans and working drawings) and archeological values in river basins of the United States (except the Missouri River Basin); [§21,786,500] $27,240,000.

¹ Selected resources as of June 30 are as follows: Unpaid undelivered orders, 1960, $614 thousand (1961 adjustments - $15 thousand); 1961, $989 thousand; 1962, $989 thousand; 1963, $989 thousand.

1. Management of park and other areas.—The estimate contemplates the administration of 192 park and other areas comprising about 25½ million acres located in 42 States, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands. The increase proposed is to provide for (a) operation of 3 new areas for which funds are not now provided; (b) operation of newly constructed mission 66 facilities; (c) operating costs brought about by increased visitor use and extension of operating season; (d) leasing commercial communication facilities; (e) conversion of park radio systems to narrow-band frequencies; (f) expansion of training program for uniformed employees; (g) more adequate direction and coordination of protection functions; and (h) strengthening the U.S. Park Police force.

1961 estimate.....	78,000	-----
1962 estimate.....	79,000	6,077
1963 estimate.....	81,000	8,000

2. Forestry and fire control.—Forests, brushland, or grassland of over 11 million acres are protected from fire, destructive insects, diseases, and other preventable damage. The increase proposed is to provide for: (a) leasing commercial communication facilities; (b) strengthening forest management supervision; (c) operation of newly constructed mission 66 facilities; (d) a mobile tree crew to serve the western part of the United States; (e) forest protection service in one new park for which funds are not now provided; and (f) operating costs brought about by increased visitor use and extension of operating season. A supplemental estimate for 1962 is anticipated for separate transmittal.

3. Soil and moisture conservation.—The program continues corrective measures as contemplated in the 20-year servicewide program.

4. Park and recreation programs.—Studies are made of the park, parkway, and recreation potentialities of the United States and its territories, frequently in cooperation with Federal, State, and local agencies; technical and scientific services and guidance essential to management, protection, and public use of the park areas are provided in the fields of biology, geology, history, and archeology. Surveys are made of historic American buildings and sites for the purpose of acquiring and preserving data relative thereto. Investigations are made to determine whether agencies receiving surplus Federal real property with a recreational potential are utilizing those properties in conformity with the terms of the transfer agreements. Studies and investigations are carried out leading to establishment and acquisition of rights to sources of water supply. The increase proposed is to provide for: (a) acceleration of programs for nationwide recreation planning, National Park system planning, and cooperation with States and other agencies, including a survey of a proposed national parkway extending from the Blue Ridge Parkway into the State of Georgia; (b) more adequate direction and coordination of interpretation functions; (c) commencement of a history and natural history research program; (d) expansion of the water resources studies to keep pace with the mission 66 construction program; (e) more adequate land use studies; (f) additional archeological investigations and salvage work; (g) acceleration of the historic American buildings survey program; and (h) printing of reports, and additional studies under the historic sites survey program.

5. Concessions management.—There are approximately 175 major concessioners operating in the parks and other areas. Contracts are negotiated or permits issued; rates are established; services to be rendered are determined, and records are audited. The increase proposed is to augment general expense funds for the existing staffs of the Washington and regional offices.

1. Buildings, utilities, and other facilities.—The 1963 program is the seventh year of a 10-year program to provide essential facilities to meet visitor requirements by 1966. A summary of the 1963 program by major type of construction follows (in thousands of dollars):

Camping and picnicking facilities.....	3,200
Public service and administrative units.....	15,152
Utilities.....	5,028
Employee housing.....	3,950
Miscellaneous.....	3,823

2. Acquisition of lands and water rights.—Approximately 454,000 acres of privately owned lands are located within the areas administered and should be acquired to facilitate public use of these areas. Status of land acquisition present and projected is as follows (in acres):

Rights to water must be obtained, frequently by purchase, in many of the areas for use of visitors and employees, and for fire protection.

3. Parkways.—The obligations for this activity are against carryover balance of prior appropriations authorized by the Federal-Aid Highway Act of 1952. The program authorized by title 23, U.S. Code is obligated against the contract authority provided by that title and is shown under the appropriation Construction (liquidation of contract authorization), National Park Service.

4. Roads and trails.—Obligations scheduled for 1962 represent the balance provided during 1960 for construction of parking areas for the District of Columbia Stadium and a small amount against the program authorized by the Federal-Aid Highway Act of 1952.

5. Executive Mansion and grounds.—Provision is being made for special reconstruction and improvements to enhance both the security and general appearance of the White House.

6. Undistributed costs.—These costs represent end-of-year variations in clearing accounts involving operations such as automotive shops, corrals, and facilitating services. 1. Educational expenses, children of employees, Yellowstone National Park.—Revenues received from the collection of park visitor fees are used to provide educational facilities to dependents of park personnel (62 Stat. 338). Funds in excess of needs are returned to the Treasury as miscellaneous receipts. It is estimated there will be 88 elementary and 35 high school students during 1963. Cost per student is $382 for elementary and $687 for high school. In addition, the amount of $150 thousand is programmed for the construction of a new elementary school at park headquarters. Under the terms of the Trusteeship Agreement between the United States and the Security Council of the United

The territory encompasses some 3 million square miles of ocean over which are scattered 2,141 islands with a land area of 687 square miles. The population exclusive of Saipan and Tinian is approximately 75 thousand. The Department of the Interior is responsible for administration of all the territory except the islands of Saipan and the Tinian group which are under Navy jurisdiction as critical defense areas.

2. Judiciary.—Provision is made for the high court of the Trust Territory, the court of appeals, and the lesser courts of the territory.

3. Grants.—The cost of operating the government of the territory is defrayed by these grants and local revenue. The following is a distribution of this cost (in thousands of dollars):

In addition, the government shares the cost of operating an intra-district privately owned vessel in the Marshalls District. Air service between headquarters and the districts is provided by a private airline under contract with the Trust Territory Government.

Construction.—The 1963 program includes 4 hospital projects, 5 schools, additional employee housing, and improvements to existing utility and transportation systems.

This fund is derived from earnings of the Railroad and is used for operating and maintenance expenses as well as improvements and additions (48 U.S.C. 301-308).

Budget programs—1. Rail line operation program.—The Railroad's mainline extends 470.3 miles from Seward to Fairbanks, and 12.4 miles from Whittier to Portage Junction. There are also 194.8 miles of branch lines, passing and spur tracks and yards. The Railroad performs generally all the usual functions of a commercial railroad carrier.

2. Other programs.—These consist mainly of leasing industrial property and a tug and barge line to provide freight service on the Tanana and Yukon Rivers.

Operating results.—1. Rail line operations.—An operating deficit of $313 thousand in 1961, attributable principally to the operation of tourist passenger trains, is expected to be reduced to $20 thousand in the budget year by consolidation of certain passenger and freight trains and otherwise improving service. Some loss in revenues is anticipated because of freight moving through the newly operational municipal port of Anchorage instead of through the Railroad's port of Seward.

The Geological Survey provides basic scientific data concerning the water, land, and mineral resources of the Nation, supervises the development and production of minerals and mineral fuels on leased Federal and Indian lands, and enforces the provisions of the Connally Hot Oil Act.

1. Topographic surveys and mapping.—Topographic maps portray the elevation, shape, and position of the natural and manmade features of the earth's surface; provide information for (a) mineral, water, and other natural resources investigations, (b) engineering and industrial development, and (c) military and civil defense. This program will provide topographic maps for those areas where investigations and developments are most imminent, and areas to which Federal agencies, as well as State and local agencies have assigned a high priority. In 1963 standard quadrangle maps for an estimated 95 thousand square miles of previously unsurveyed or inadequately surveyed areas in the United States will be prepared, and an estimated 15 thousand square miles of mapping will be revised. This added to areas surveyed in previous years will result in an approximate total of over 2 million square miles completed. In addition, about 275 special maps will be published which show previously mapped areas in a different format or at a smaller scale.

2. Geologic and mineral resource surveys and mapping.—Geologic research is conducted in the field and laboratory in three main areas: (a) economic geology, includes investigations of minerals and fuels, research on improved techniques and instruments for mineral exploration, and study of natural materials and geologic processes that affect the design and facilitate the construction of reservoirs, airfields, and other engineering structures; (b) regional geology, consists of the preparation of new geologic maps that show the distribution, age, and physical properties of rocks at and beneath the ground surface; and (c) experimental geology, includes research into geologic phenomena that not only control the formation of ores and rocks, but that influence almost the whole of our natural environment.

3. Marine geology and hydrology.—It is proposed to initiate in 1963 a program of research in marine geology and hydrology as part of the national oceanographic program for 1963 developed by the Interagency Committee on Oceanography. The research proposed in this field is designed to acquire knowledge of the characteristics of mineral deposits in the sea, the hydrodynamics of coastal aquifers, the composition of the Continental Shelves and suboceanic crust, and geochemical and physical processes that determine the fate of pollutants discharged from the continents.

4. Water resources investigations.—Investigations are planned to obtain information that is needed to solve major water problems relating to distribution, chemical quality and sediment load, pollution, floods, and variability in supply. Plans for 1963 include the establishment of hydrologic benchmark areas in which the quantity, quality and other properties of surface and ground water will be observed under conditions where man's activities have had little effect. Also efforts will be made to accelerate nationwide coverage of reconnaissance studies of ground-water supplies, and to expand training to increase the capability of engineers and scientists for hydrologic investigations.

5. Institute of Water Research.—It is proposed to establish an Institute of Water Research to improve the capabilities for analyzing and solving water problems. The Institute would have three principal functions: (1) research in fundamental hydrology; (2) research of a clinical nature applied to specific basins and hydrologic systems which can be used as type examples for the development of principles and methods of analysis of complex water situations; (3) research to develop a bridge of theory between principles of hydrology on the one hand, and socio-economic factors on the other, thus providing a rational basis for decision in water-management actions. The Institute would carry out its functions through theoretical studies; through field and laboratory research by members of its staff and visiting scientists from other Federal agencies; through arrangements with universities and other non-Governmental research organizations; and through the analysis of knowledge available from the worldwide scientific community. A part of the research effort heretofore included in the Water Resources Investigations activity will be transferred to the Institute of Water Research.

6. Soil and moisture conservation.—This program provides land management agencies of the Department with basic hydrologic and geologic data needed for maintaining and improving the productive value of public lands.

7. Conservation of lands and minerals.—Prospecting, development, and production of minerals and mineral fuels on leased Federal, Indian, and Outer Continental Shelf lands are regulated. Federally owned and controlled lands are classified as to their mineral and waterpower values. The Federal Petroleum Board conducts investigations in support of State conservation laws to prevent the interstate shipment of contraband oil. In the current year approximately 208,000 leased properties, oil wells, and mines in 40 States are supervised and about 1,430 square miles of geologic mapping in aid of mineral classification will be completed. The leases are expected to produce oil, gas, and other minerals, valued at $1.21 billion, and render royalty returns of about $150 million. The States which produce the minerals receive 37½% of the royalties; the Reclamation fund, 52½%; and 10% is retained in the U.S. Treasury. In 1963 it is anticipated that the workload will aggregate 234,000 leases, wells, and mines, and about 1,200 square miles of geologic mapping for classification will be completed. The production and royalty values are expected to reach $1.33 billion and $165 million, respectively. The classification functions provide the foundation for the system of public-land administration prescribed by mineral leasing and land disposal laws. Owing to the unprecedented rate of development of the Nation's oil and gas and other mineral resources, increased demands are being made upon the Survey for mineral classification services and for the accelerated classification and restoration of lands previously withdrawn. In 1963 it is expected that some 110,000 technical classification reports will be completed.

9. Special-purpose buildings.—The 1963 program provides for construction of a radiation laboratory at Denver.

Reimbursable obligations.—Reimbursements from non-Federal sources are from States and municipalities for making cooperative topographic and geologic surveys and water resources investigations (44 Stat. 963), proceeds from sale to the public of copies of photographs and records (43 U.S.C. 45), proceeds from sale of personal property (40 U.S.C. 481(c)), and reimbursements from permittees and licensees of the Federal Power Commission (16 U.S.C. 797). Reimbursements from other Federal agencies (31 U.S.C. 686) are for special purpose mapping and investigations performed at the request of the financing agency, much of which contributes to the basic objectives of the Geological Survey.

The unobligated balance of $400 thousand cash is carried forward each year to pay the expenses of reimbursable work pending collection from cooperating agencies. This advance is not available for obligation.

Provision is made for conserving, evaluating, and developing mineral resources.

1. Bituminous coal.—Scientific research and engineering investigations are carried out on the chemical and physical properties of coal and its mining, preparation, combustion, carbonization, and gasification. Research is continuing on the development of a stationary coal-burning gas turbine to provide a method of increasing the efficiency of steam-generating equipment. Coal samples are analyzed; efficiency of coal-mining methods is evaluated; and economic studies are performed. Research is conducted to discover causes of explosions in coal mines and to improve methods of preventing explosions. Tests are conducted on explosives and blasting devices to determine their permissibility for use in mining operations.

2. Anthracite coal.—Research is conducted to develop new and improve present uses for anthracite; improved mining and preparation methods are developed; and basic economic data are prepared.

3. Petroleum, natural gas, and oil shale.—Research is conducted to conserve these resources by improving the processes of recovery and utilization. Research is coordinated with work done by other Government agencies, educational institutions, and industry. Economic information is analyzed to provide a factual basis for industry operations and Government policy. Research on oil shale to determine the composition of the various products, to test the applicability of those products to different uses, and to determine the basic chemistry and physics of the refining processes will be expanded with the 1963 increase.

4. Minerals and metals.—Research is conducted for the conservation, development, and utilization of minerals other than fuels.

Resources investigations are made of mineral deposits to gain better knowledge of the location, quantity, quality, and recoverability of specific mineral resources. Mineral production and mineral industry economic surveys are made of the industry.

Metallurgy research seeks improved processes for extracting metals and non-metals from their ores, and adapting them for efficient use. Multi-discipline investigations develop better methods to recover metals by physical, chemical and electrical techniques and find means to produce super-pure materials. A parallel effort integrates the structure of metals, alloys, and ceramic compounds with optimum preparation and utilization. Basic to all investigations is fundamental research to delineate the physical and thermodynamic properties of materials and to analyze the rates and mechanics of high-temperature chemical and metallurgical reactions.

In mining research, much effort is devoted to applying physics as a scientific discipline in concert with mining engineering principles to all phases of mineral mining. These fundamental studies begin with determination of the physical nature of rock structures and continue through the application of rock mechanics to exploration, development, and operational problems of mining. Highly specialized research is conducted on the mechanisms of penetrating and breaking rock. One of the most important problems of mining is that of ground control which is attacked by developing methods for stabilizing underground openings and techniques for designing efficient open-pit slopes.

5. Foreign mineral activities.—The Bureau analyzes technical and economic data on foreign mineral resources, production, consumption, and international trade for Government use in coping with problems of mineral supply and to assist industry in planning domestic and foreign minerals ventures.

1. Inspections, investigations, and rescue work.—The objectives for 1963 are to: (a) inspect, at least once annually, every active coal mine regularly employing more than 14 men underground, take action in accordance with the Federal Coal Mine Safety Act to require compliance with its mandatory provisions, and exert special effort to gain compliance with its voluntary provisions; (b) inspect annually, or as necessary, underground coal mines regularly employing less than 15 men underground, and all strip and auger mines, and report on observed hazards with appropriate corrective recommendations; and (c) conduct investigations of serious accidents and make recommendations to reduce working hazards, safeguard the health of workers, and promote efficiency in the mineral industries. The Bureau encourages accident-prevention education through safety organizations, exhibits, safety-film production, demonstrations, instruction by Bureau personnel in accident prevention, and first-aid and mine-rescue methods.

This fund is used for the production, conservation, purchase, and sale of helium; research to discover helium supplies and to improve methods of helium production and utilization; and development of helium properties and reserves. Production is primarily for the Department of Defense, Atomic Energy Commission, and the National Aeronautics and Space Administration which reimburse the fund for products received. Other Federal agencies and non-Federal consumers also buy helium for medical, scientific, and commercial uses.

Budget program.—The Helium Act Amendments of 1960 (74 Stat. 918) provide for the conservation of helium now going to fuel markets as a noncombustible component of some natural gases. To accomplish the conservation program, up to 12 new helium plants will be needed. Private industry has indicated a willingness to finance, construct, and operate these plants, and to sell helium to the Government under long-term contracts. Contracts have been entered into with four companies, and negotiations of contracts with others will follow.

Payments required under contracts for acquisition of helium are currently limited to $47.5 million in any one year. A 1962 supplemental is anticipated for separate transmittal to raise this limitation to $65 million. Additional borrowing authority of $20 million is requested for 1963.

Funds borrowed will be used in the early years of the program to supplement the income received from sales of helium. The 1963 estimate of revenue is based on a sale price sufficient to cover costs of production and to provide for future repayment of Government investment, including accrued interest.

The Bureau plans to construct a new administration building at Amarillo, Tex., to provide consolidated office space for the operational headquarters now housed in dispersed and inadequate space.

A Government-owned and operated pipeline system will be constructed to transport helium from industry's plants to underground storage near Amarillo, Tex.

The helium tank car fleet will be increased from 221 to 266, and an initial purchase of 5 helium semi-trailers will be made.

Operating results.—The total Government investment at the end of 1963 is estimated at $81,986 thousand, an increase of $40,675 thousand from 1961. This increase is primarily due to an increase in retained earnings, estimated at $24,350 thousand, which will accrue during 1962 and 1963 as a result of the establishment of the new sales price structure.

DEVELOPMENT AND OPERATION OF HELIUM PROPERTIES

Under existing legislation, 1962.—A supplemental authorization will propose that the annual payment authority provided in Sec. 3(a)(2) of the Helium Act Amendments of 1960 (Public Law 86-777) be increased by $17.5 million from the existing limit of $47.5 million. The increase is required in order that the helium conservation program can be fully implemented without undue delay.

This fund is used for making loans to segments of the fishing industry unable to obtain commercial loans on reasonable terms for financing and refinancing operations, maintenance, replacement, repair, and equipment of fishing gear and vessels, and for research into basic problems of fisheries. Loans bear interest of 5% annually and will mature in not more than 10 years. Loan commitments against the fund are made on approval of the Secretary of the Interior, and referred to the Bureau of Commercial Fisheries for closing in the field and rendering loan servicing functions required (70 Stat. 1119).

Budget program—Loans made. It is estimated that this program can be carried through 1963 without additional financing. As of August 31, 1961, a total of 996 applications amounting to $29.8 million had been received. Of these, 525 loans totaling $13.1 million had been approved and 262 applications amounting to $7.1 million had been declined.

Administrative expenses.—These expenses include processing of loan applications, closing of loans, and collection of repayment and interest.

Financing.—An appropriation of $10 million was made in 1957 to provide initial capital for the fund. An additional $3 million was appropriated for fiscal year 1960. Additional financing is provided from repayments and interest on outstanding loans.

Operating results.—The existing deficit is expected to be eliminated by future interest earnings.

1. Management of fishery resources.—Ninety-seven fish-cultural stations are operated for the propagation of food and game fishes. This activity also covers administration of the Black Bass Act encompassing shipments of all fishes across State boundaries.

2. Extension and training.—This activity covers (a) technical assistance to Federal, State, and other public or private entities in the management of sport fishing and fish propagation; (b) cooperative development, with the States, of fish-stocking programs for major public streams and lakes; and (c) operation of a cooperative fishery research unit at Utah State University.

3. Fishery research.—This activity covers studies of nutrition and diseases of salmon, trout, and warm-water fish; improved methods of fish husbandry; scientific management of public water areas for fishing; conservation of marine sport fishes; and effects of environment and pesticides on fish. Direct appropriations for this activity are supplemented by funds of the permanent account Federal aid in fish restoration and management through 1962. In 1961, these supplementary funds totaled $112 thousand. The 1962 estimate is $50 thousand.

4. Administration of wildlife resources.—This activity covers: (a) the operation and maintenance of 284 wildlife refuges, consisting of more than 28.5 million acres, for the conservation of migratory waterfowl and the preservation and propagation of rare birds and mammals. Of the total, 6.5 million acres are primarily for waterfowl including 3 million acres in Alaska. Direct appropriations for this subactivity are supplemented by funds of the permanent account Management of national wildlife refuges. In 1961, these supplementary funds totaled $1,068 thousand. The 1962 and 1963 estimates are $1,003 thousand. (b) Enforcement of the Migratory Bird Treaty and Lacey Acts for the protection of migratory birds and regulation of interstate and foreign shipments of game; and migratory game bird surveys. Direct appropriations for the enforcement function are supplemented by funds of the permanent account Management of national wildlife refuges. In 1961, these supplementary funds totaled $375 thousand. The 1962 and 1963 estimates are $382 thousand.

5. Control of predatory animals and injurious rodents.—Predatory animals and injurious rodents are controlled on public and private lands. Technical information and supervision of cooperative programs are provided to protect livestock, game, poultry, forage crops, forests, structures, foods, and feeds from destruction by harmful animals.

6. Wildlife research.—Research is conducted on migratory birds and in wildlife management and conservation practices. Wildlife research units are also maintained in cooperation with the Wildlife Management Institute and land-grant colleges at 17 locations to give technical training in wildlife management, conduct research, and demonstrate improved management practices. Direct appropriations for this activity are supplemented by funds of the permanent account Federal aid in wildlife restoration. In 1961, these supplementary funds totaled $104 thousand. The 1962 estimate is $126 thousand and the 1963 estimate is $53 thousand.

7. Soil and moisture conservation.—This activity covers long-range work on 89 national wildlife refuges in combating erosion and depletion of nearly 11.5 million acres of soil.

8. River basin studies.—This activity covers studies of the effects on fish and wildlife resources of power, navigation, irrigation, drainage and other water-use projects of Federal agencies and licensees under the Federal Power Act. Recommendations are made for measures to protect and improve these resources. Direct appropriations for this activity are supplemented by funds of the Federal aid in wildlife restoration appropriation in 1962 in the estimated amount of $35 thousand.

¹ Selected resources as of June 30 are as follows: Unpaid undelivered orders, 1962, $0; 1963, $1,900 thousand.

These funds are used for research and related scientific activities under the foreign currency program. The general fields in which studies will be conducted include fundamental properties of cement and concrete; hydraulics; soil mechanics; evaporation reduction; soil stabilization and drainage; and weed control. This research will complement the regular research work carried on in the domestic laboratories of the Bureau of Reclamation and other Government agencies.

In addition to travel and administrative costs to be funded with foreign currencies, it is estimated that $50 thousand will be provided from other Bureau appropriations for these purposes, of which $25 thousand will be expended in 1963.

The program consists of advance planning, design, and construction of authorized projects, operation and maintenance during construction of completed features of projects and rehabilitation of existing facilities. Investigations and advance planning for units of the Missouri River Basin are included under that project.

Work will be continued in 1963 on 32 projects and 19 units and divisions of the Missouri River Basin project started in prior years and construction will be initiated on 2 units of the Missouri River Basin project with estimated costs totaling $59 million. Five projects and 1 unit of the Missouri River Basin project will be completed in 1963. The program also includes rehabilitation and betterment work on 14 projects. During the year facilities for 114,200 acres of irrigated land and 309,300 kilowatts of new power generating capacity will be completed.

The following workload table summarizes the program goals and accomplishments.

The Bureau operates and maintains the power-generation and transmission facilities, and generally the storage dams and reservoirs, of completed projects. Where necessary, irrigation works are operated and maintained until the water users are able to undertake the responsibilities. In 1963 a total of 43 projects and 24 Missouri River Basin units and divisions will be operated and maintained for irrigation, power, and municipal and industrial water supplies. Of these, 21 projects and 5 Missouri River Basin units have power facilities. Energy sales from power operations are as follows:

Fiscal year:	Kilowatt-hours of energy (millions)	Gross energy sales (thousands)
1961 (actual).....	27,477	$72,906
1962 (estimate).....	30,741	76,325
1963 (estimate).....	32,371	81,843

Commercial power is sold to wholesale customers such as municipalities, Rural Electrification Administration-financed cooperatives, other Government agencies, and private utilities. These revenues are deposited in the reclamation fund, the Colorado River Dam fund, and the general fund.

The estimates include $6,222 thousand in 1963 for the purchase of power and wheeling.

Provision is also made for flood control operations on certain projects, soil and moisture conservation operations, and halogeton control on public lands under jurisdiction of the Bureau.

This fund defrays the expense of operating the power-generation and transmission facilities of the Fort Peck project, Corps of Engineers—Civil, and emergency expenses to insure continuous operation (16 U.S.C. 833).

Budget program.—Funded operating costs and capital outlay in 1963 are substantially the same as in 1962.

Financing.—The operation of the Fort Peck project power and transmission facilities is financed by this fund and capital outlays for transmission facilities by advances from the appropriation Construction and rehabilitation. The accompanying statements consolidate the financing from the Continuing fund for emergency expenses, Fort Peck project, Montana, and Construction and rehabilitation.

Operating results.—Net income is estimated at $1.8 million for 1963, approximately the same as the 1962 estimates. Earnings in excess of current operating needs are retained so as to maintain a continuing emergency fund of $500 thousand. The balance is paid into the Treasury as miscellaneous receipts toward amortizing with interest that part of the Government investment allocated to power generation and transmission. Such payments totaled $1.6 million in 1961 and are estimated at $1.9 million in 1962 and $2 million in 1963.

² The Fort Peck project and the Missouri River Basin project interchange power in their marketing operations. Rather than exchange funds for settlement on the balance of the interchange, the revenues of each project are covered into deposit funds pending distribution to the appropriate fund or receipt account.

³ The changes in these items are reflected on the program and financing schedule.

The fund defrays the cost of advance planning, construction, operation, and maintenance of the Colorado River storage project and participating projects, a comprehensive basinwide development which will make possible the control and utilization of the water resources of the Upper Colorado River Basin. The storage project will regulate and conserve the flows of the Colorado River and its major tributaries through holdover storage in large reservoirs, permitting increased consumptive use of water in the upper basin and the production of hydroelectric power. Excess revenue from the sale of power will be applied to repayment of costs allocated to irrigation which are beyond the ability of the water users to repay. The participating projects consist of irrigation and municipal and industrial water supply developments.

Construction costs of the storage project and participating projects are financed through appropriations advanced to the fund. Project revenue will be credited to the fund and will cover costs of operation and maintenance. Revenue in excess of these costs will be utilized to repay project costs allocated to power, municipal and industrial water supply, and irrigation.

Budget program—1. Operation and maintenance.—The Vernal unit of the Central Utah project originally scheduled to become operational in 1962 will now be in operation and maintenance status in 1963. The Bureau of Reclamation will operate the facilities of this unit with funds advanced by the water users.

2. Advance planning.—Funds requested for this activity in 1963 will complete definite plan reports on the Lyman project and on the first stage of the Bonneville unit of the Central Utah project. Advance planning on other units of the initial phases of the Central Utah project will be continued and preconstruction engineering will be accomplished on the Silt project. Quality of water studies will be continued.

3. Colorado River storage project.—Construction of the storage dams and appurtenant works on the Flaming Gorge and Glen Canyon units, and on the Blue Mesa facilities of the Curecanti unit will continue, construction on the Navajo unit will be completed, and construction of the Morrow Point Dam of the Curecanti unit will be started. Work on the Midway-Limon 230-kilovolt transmission line will be started and the Craig-Sinclair single circuit 115-kilovolt transmission line will be completed. Construction will continue on the nine other transmission lines underway at the start of the year. Funds totaling $875 thousand are included for the purchase of power in connection with the filling of the reservoir behind Glen Canyon Dam.

Funds are not included in the 1963 budget for the construction of protective works at Rainbow Bridge, Glen Canyon unit. Requests for appropriations for such works were included in the budget for 1961 and 1962 but denied by the Congress. It was indicated last year that construction must be initiated in 1962 unless plans to fill the reservoir were to be modified. The decision on the provision of facilities to protect Rainbow Bridge, therefore, rests with the Congress.

4. Participating projects.—Construction will be completed on the Smith Fork project in 1963 except for deferred drains and at the end of the year only minor construction and drains will remain to be completed on the Hammond project and on the Vernal unit of the Central Utah project. Construction on the Emery County, Florida, and Seedskadee projects will continue.

Financing.—The 1963 programs for advance planning and construction of the storage and participating projects, and for initial operating expenses of the Glen Canyon unit will be financed principally by appropriations to the fund and to a minor degree from construction revenues. Operation and maintenance of the single participating project to be operated by the Government in 1963 will be financed by funds advanced by the water users.

Operating results.—During the construction period, only minor revenue is realized and expense is capitalized.

Budget expenditures will rise to $100 million in 1963 from $77 million in 1962.

The total equity of the Government in the fund is expected to reach $437 million by the end of 1963.

This program provides for the operation and maintenance of the Administration's high-voltage electric grid system, and for commercial and administrative expenses in marketing wholesale electric power from Federal dams, and in wheeling power from non-Federal dams in the Pacific Northwest.

1. System operation and maintenance.—This activity consists of the scheduling and dispatching of power; the operation of substations; the maintenance of transmission lines, substations, and other facilities; power requirements and marketing studies; planning and integration of power resources; and system engineering.

Transmission facilities of the Administration are expanded as increased generating capacity becomes available. The system will be operated and maintained at a level which will insure safe operation and provide a reliable grade of service to customers. Power resource planning work will be expanded to assure orderly additions to firm power supplies to keep pace with not only normal load growth requirements but the potential needs of new industries. Studies will continue to go forward to find a market outlet for an abundant supply of unsold secondary power. The following table shows the rising trend in several of the more important indexes of the operation and maintenance activity:

2. Power contracts and rates.—This activity provides for the negotiation of power sales and wheeling contracts, the billing and servicing of contracts, including the development of service plans, and the establishment of wholesale rate schedules. Receipts which are deposited in the Treasury amounted to $70,720 thousand in 1961, and are estimated at $73,800 thousand and $83,100 thousand for 1962 and 1963, respectively.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation is the investigative branch of the Department of Justice and obtains evidence for use in civil litigation and prosecution of criminal violations of Federal law. It has primary responsibility for the internal security of the Nation. It assists all law enforcement agencies in identification and technical matters.

The appropriation request for 1963 totals $130,700 thousand. This will provide for an additional 218 employees (145 agents and 73 clerks) when compared with the number allowed under the approved appropriation for the current year. All of the additional employees are for assignment to the field where there has been a steady rise in investigative work.

1. Security and criminal investigations.—This activity includes the Bureau's investigative responsibilities, the coordination and maintenance of the data gathered, and the maintenance of the Bureau's communications system. Data are disseminated to other Government agencies having an official interest in them. During 1961, the Bureau received 1,628,685 names for search through its files. An increase in name searches is anticipated.

This appropriation will provide for the custody and care of an average of 25,000 prisoners and the maintenance and operation of 30 institutions and the central office. An average of 5,224 employees will be employed with the funds in this appropriation. The medical care of prisoners is provided by the U.S. Public Health Service.

1. Custody, care, and treatment of prisoners covers the direct care costs of all prisoners in the Federal Prison System. These include the costs of all food, clothing, education, custodial requirements, welfare services, release transportation, and related personal services. The funds required, exclusive of salary costs, are in direct relation to the estimated number of prisoners expected to be maintained in 1963, which is 25,000, at an estimated cost per man per day of $0.82. The average daily population for 1961 was 23,378 as compared to 22,604 in 1960.

2. Maintenance and operation of institutions.—This activity includes administrative expenses, all utility services, operation of motor vehicles, the repair and maintenance of all buildings and facilities, and equipment replacements. The cost of personal services attributable to these activities is also included.

3. Medical services.—Funds are allocated to the Public Health Service for the cost of medical, psychiatric, and technical services.

A supplemental estimate for 1962 is anticipated for separate transmittal.

This is a wholly owned Government corporation. A board of six directors appointed by the President controls its policies. Supervision is by the Director of the Bureau of Prisons who has jurisdiction over all industrial enterprises and vocational training programs in all Federal penal and correctional institutions. Products manufactured by inmates are sold only to the penal institutions and to other Government agencies. Earnings, in excess of operating requirements, are paid as dividends into the U.S. Treasury.

The corporation is authorized, under the Attorney General, to establish and operate industries in Federal penal and correctional institutions and disciplinary barracks (18 U.S.C. 4121-4128). Its objectives are to provide employment for physically fit inmates; to provide maximum vocational training for qualified inmates in connection with regular institutional and industrial activities; and to operate a placement service to assist released inmates to secure jobs. Earnings from the sale of these products pay expenses of the corporation and have permitted payment of $43 million in dividends into the Treasury since January 1, 1935. Although no dividend was paid during 1961, it is anticipated that a dividend of $4 million will be paid in both 1962 and 1963.

Budget program.—During 1961 the corporation operated 53 shops and factories at 23 locations. In 1962 a new custom furniture shop has opened at Allenwood, Pa., and a new print shop has started operations at Lompoc, Calif. The furniture factory at Alcatraz, Calif., has been discontinued. During 1963 a new furniture refinishing shop will start operations at Petersburg, Va. There will then be a total of 55 shops and factories at 24 locations. The following table indicates the scope of employment and training effort in the total prison program.

Operating results.—The corporation has always operated at a profit and is expected to continue to do so. Earnings of the fund pay expenses of the corporation, which include general administration and vocational rehabilitation. These two activities, although financed from fund receipts, are subject to annual appropriation limitations. Earnings in excess of operating requirements are paid into the U.S. Treasury. As of June 30, 1961, the cumulative earnings amounted to $67.4 million, of which $24.4 million had been retained as working capital and $43 million had been paid into the Treasury. Earnings are estimated to be $4.8 million in 1962 and $4.7 million in 1963.

This appropriation covers activities necessary to the administration and enforcement of the Labor-Management Reporting and Disclosure Act of 1959.

1. Reports and disclosure.—Report forms, instructions, and procedures are devised. Reports from labor organizations, union officers and employees, employers and labor relations consultants are examined. Reports are made available to the public. Comprehensive analysis is made of a limited number of reports to determine conformance to the law. It is estimated that 82,000 reports will be filed in 1962 and 85,000 will be filed in 1963. Research is conducted on union structure, procedures, financing, and other aspects of labor-management practices. Technical advice and guidance are provided. Disclosure and technical assistance functions are implemented mainly through regional and area offices.

2. Regulations and administrative determinations.—Questions of interpretation are studied; interpretations and regulations are developed. Rules of procedure are developed for conducting hearings, making determinations, and supervising the conduct of elections. Administrative hearings are conducted and elections are supervised. Investigation reports are reviewed to determine adequacy for civil or criminal litigation. Determinations are prepared of violations cases arising under the trusteeship and election provisions of the act.

3. Compliance and enforcement.—Investigations are conducted of complaints alleging violation of the law. An estimated 3,700 cases will be opened in 1963. Included in the program are special investigations in areas where strong evidence exists of persistent willful violations. Technical assistance is rendered concurrently with investigations. Compliance conferences are held in cases of nonwillful violations. These activities operate principally from the Bureau's field offices.

1. Training promotion and service to industry.—Management and labor are encouraged and assisted to develop more highly skilled employees through the organization and improvement of programs of apprenticeship and training. Among a workload of 180,000 plants and other industrial establishments, more than 213,000 apprentices and other workers are in training. About 1,200 apprenticeship programs and 1,400 training programs are developed and installed annually.

2. Training research and technical services.—Information on skill requirements, training needs and technology, and apprenticeship labor standards is provided. Training aids and techniques designed to increase effectiveness of apprenticeship and training are made available. About 50 pamphlets, articles, and reprints are published annually to call attention to skill needs of various industries, and to describe superior programs.

The Bureau of Employment Security supervises the administration of the Federal-State system of employment security agencies consisting of 54 State agencies and about 1,800 full-time local offices assisting workers in finding jobs, assisting employers in recruiting workers, and paying unemployment compensation benefits.

1. Veterans employment service.—This service assists the State-local employment offices in giving suitable counseling and placement service to veterans and promotes the interest of employers in employing veterans. In 1963 emphasis will be placed on providing more and better job opportunities for the larger number of veterans moving into the older worker group and the increased number of career military personnel entering the civilian labor market.

2. Farm placement service.—In cooperation with the State farm-placement offices this service develops and uses special recruitment and farm-placement programs to assist farmworkers in finding continuous employment to meet agriculture's need for year-round and seasonal workers. Where necessary it recruits supplemental foreign agricultural workers under conditions that will not adversely affect domestic agricultural workers. In 1963 emphasis will be placed on (a) carrying out the Secretary's regulations relating to the interstate recruitment of domestic workers concerning wages, housing, transportation, and other conditions of employment, (b) evaluating and guiding State agencies in the individual selection of workers and crew leaders; (c) assisting State agencies in the investigation and evaluation of cases of aliens seeking permanent entry, and approving or disapproving entry of aliens when necessary to prevent the displacement of domestic agricultural workers.

3. Collection and interpretation of labor market information.—Information is analyzed on the administrative operations of the unemployment insurance and employment service programs and on the supply, demand, and utilization of labor by areas, industries, and occupations. In 1963 emphasis will be placed on program and labor market research directed toward the better utilization of the Nation's manpower resources.

4. Assistance in maintaining public employment services.—State employment security agencies are assisted in providing (a) an efficient placement service in all occupations for all workers and employers; (b) employment counseling and testing services to assist both workers and employers in meeting their individual employment needs; (c) specialized services for job seekers requiring particular attention in order to facilitate their employment, including youth, older workers, handicapped, minority groups, and workers displaced by automation and technological change; (d) improved mobility of labor by guiding necessary shifts of workers between geographical areas and across occupational and industrial lines; (e) labor market information, occupational analysis and industrial services, to stimulate and support community action to develop expanded job opportunities and to stabilize employment; and (f) an operating mechanism that can be used as a basis for meeting local, State, and national manpower needs in times of disaster or defense emergencies. In 1963, continued emphasis will be placed on further strengthening and improving local office operations, including the larger cities, and meeting special problems raised by automation, technological changes, and economic growth.

5. Unemployment insurance service.—State laws and interpretations are reviewed to assure conformity with the Federal law requirements. Surveys are made to assist States in improving administrative procedures. The Bureau directs State and Federal agencies in the administration of Federal benefit programs for unemployed Federal employees and ex-servicemen. In 1963, emphasis will be placed on (a) development of structural improvements in the system, based on extensive research and study programs conducted jointly with the States, and (b) strengthening administration through an expanded program of experimentation with new methods, surveys, time and cost studies, planning for data processing installations, and guidance in quasi-judicial functions.

6. Field guidance, financing, and auditing of State operations.—The 54 State employment security agencies are assisted in improving their programs, organization, and management. Agencies are audited annually.

7. Emergency management of the labor force.—This responsibility includes insuring the availability of an adequate labor force, including preattack assignment of manpower for emergency needs, as may be necessary to meet mobilization manpower requirements.

Grants are made to the States for the administration of the unemployment compensation and employment service programs. Commencing in 1961, the Social Security Act amendments shifted the financing of these grants from the general budget to a newly created trust account within the Unemployment trust fund and established a $350 million limitation. This limitation was temporarily increased to $385 million for 1961 and $415 million for 1962.

LIMITATION ON GRANTS TO STATES FOR UNEMPLOYMENT COMPENSATION AND EMPLOYMENT SERVICE ADMINISTRATION—Con.

Requirements for 1963 are estimated at $424,900 thousand. Of this amount, $350 million is under existing legislation and $74,900 thousand under legislation which will be proposed to amend Public Law 86-778 to remove the limitation of $350 million.

An increase of $19,900 thousand is requested over the 1962 limitation primarily for the continued expansion and improvement of the employment service, increased tax and auditing workloads, and increases in the average annual salary rate partially offset by a reduction for fewer claims to be filed in 1963 and the termination of the temporary extended unemployment compensation program. The average annual salary rate in the State agencies is expected to rise from $4,813 in 1962 to $5,020 in 1963.

1. State unemployment insurance service.—State funds are used to make unemployment compensation payments to unemployed workers eligible under State laws. Federal grants in 1961 provided State administrative costs to collect $2.4 billion in taxes and pay $3.6 billion in benefits. Claims filing is expected to decrease in 1962 and 1963.

2. Federal unemployment insurance service.—Claims filed under the Federal unemployment compensation programs require processing activities similar to those under State laws. The benefit payments are provided under the appropriation Unemployment compensation for Federal employees and ex-servicemen.

3. Employment service.—Federal grants finance an employment service to find employment for persons seeking jobs and to provide workers for employers who need them. This is accomplished by selecting and referring workers to jobs, by providing services to employers in the analysis of jobs and staffing problems and by the use of counseling and testing services. Necessary research in manpower problems is conducted to assist in the direction of the States program.

5. Emergency management of the labor force.—This responsibility includes insuring the availability of an adequate labor force, including preattack assignment of manpower for emergency needs, as may be necessary to meet mobilization manpower requirements.

6. Contingency fund.—This fund is used to meet unforeseen increases in the number of claims filed, in State salary rates due to changes in State compensation plans embracing employees of the State generally and changes in State unemployment compensation laws.

7. Temporary extended unemployment compensation.—Claims filed under the Temporary Extended Compensation Program require processing activities similar to those under State law. The benefit payments are provided under the appropriation Payment to the Federal extended compensation account. This program will expire for benefit payments by June 30, 1962.

8. Obligations incurred for programs of other years, net.—Because of State legal requirements, funds must be made available to the States before the year begins. In 1961 obligations were increased by $7,213 thousand because $26,137 thousand had been advanced to the States in 1961 from 1962 funds while only $18,924 thousand from 1961 funds was advanced to the States in 1960.

Mexican agricultural labor is imported for use in areas having a shortage of domestic agricultural workers. Commencing in 1963, the cost of services rendered by the States under delegations made by the Secretary of Labor will be paid from this account rather than from Grants to States for unemployment compensation and employment service administration. All costs, except for compliance activities, will be paid from the farm labor supply revolving fund. These costs were $11.41 per worker supplied in 1961 and are expected to be $12.02 in 1962 and $14.18 in 1963.

1. Determining Mexican labor requirements.—The agricultural areas needing Mexican workers and the number of workers required are determined. Through the conduct of field surveys, determinations are made of prevailing wages of domestic workers in areas where Mexicans are employed to prevent the employment of these workers from adversely affecting the wages or working conditions of domestic workers. Farm labor reports evaluate the Mexican labor program. Technical assistance is provided the States in the preparation of these reports. Information is provided concerning the conditions of availability and conditions of employment of Mexicans to prospective users.

2. Supplying Mexican labor.—Workers are recruited in Mexico and transported to centers in the United States where employers contract for their use. In 1961, 294,355 workers were contracted. An estimated 290,000 workers will be contracted in 1962 and in 1963.

This fund covers transportation and other costs directly involved in importing Mexican farm workers (7 U.S.C. 1461-1468). Authority for this program was extended until December 31, 1963.

Budget program.—The program involves the recruitment, selection, and importation of Mexican workers for agricultural work on farms in the continental United States. Mexican workers recruited and selected by the Mexican Government are sent to three migratory stations in Mexico where they are examined for ability to do farm work, screened for subversive activities, vaccinated, and transported to five reception centers in the United States where they are X-rayed, examined and treated for disease, and contracted to employers. This requires the establishment and operation of reception centers to provide housing, subsistence, and medical care. An estimated 290,000 Mexican farm workers will be imported in 1962 and in 1963.

Financing.—The costs of operating this program are met by fees charged the employer for each worker contracted. The fees for 1961 were established January 1, 1960, and were $10 per worker initially contracted and $5 per worker recontracted. These rates will be increased to $15 per worker for both contracting and recontracting on July 1, 1962. The rates provide for the cost of importing workers, including services performed by the States under delegations from the Secretary of Labor and for the serological testing administered by the Public Health Service.

Operating results and financial conditions.—Revenue from operations is estimated to be approximately $959 thousand less than expenses in 1962 and approximately $291 thousand greater than expenses in 1963 after allowing for transfers of $1,519 thousand to Salaries and expenses, Mexican farm labor program, in 1962 and $2,269 thousand

This fund established by the Employment Security Act of 1960 (74 Stat. 970) makes advances without fiscal year limitation to the employment security administration account in the Unemployment trust fund. The purpose of this fund is to finance the Federal and State administrative costs of the employment security programs on a repayable basis from the beginning of the fiscal year until the Federal unemployment tax receipts become available in February of the same fiscal year.

During 1961, the first year of operations, $301.5 million was advanced to the Employment Security Administration account of which $250 million was repaid. The balance of $51.5 million will be repaid from tax receipts in 1962. In addition, the balance of the fund will be used to finance the program in 1962 until the Federal unemployment tax receipts are received in February 1962. During 1963 about $235.7 million of the fund will be used to finance the program until the Federal unemployment tax receipts are received during February 1963.

This fund will be needed until the Employment Security Administration account accumulates a carryover balance of $250 million. Earnings are retained to meet future requirements.

1. Manpower and employment.—Analysis of the level and trend of nonagricultural employment, hours, earnings, and labor turnover. Analysis and publication of the Monthly Report on the Labor Force. In 1963 new programs will provide information on: (a) annual data on the pay and hours of employees in manufacturing; (b) statistics on the changing structure of the labor force and unemployment and on the mobility of workers; and (c) estimates of the number of workers that must be trained annually for various occupations. Extension of pricing for the Consumer Price Index to more items in more types of stores, and a program of research in pricing procedures to improve the accuracy of the index will be initiated in fiscal 1963. Investigations are made to correct violations and to assist employers in meeting legal requirements and workers in recovering wages due. During 1961 a total of 44,268 establishments were investigated and 201,810 employees were found to be due wages in the amount of $30,943 thousand of which employers agreed to pay $14,478 thousand. The investigation program for 1962 and 1963 will be expanded to enforce the higher minimum wage standard for previously covered employees and the new minimum wage, overtime, and child labor standards made applicable for the first time to millions of additional employees by the 1961 amendments to the Fair Labor Standards Act.

2. Wage determinations.—During 1962 a total of 27 industries will be reviewed by committees convened to recommend minimum wage rates under the Fair Labor Standards Act in Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, and American Samoa. These committees will review the wage rates in industries newly covered by the 1961 amendments to the act and consider appeals from statutory increase in minimum wages in Puerto Rico in addition to conducting the regular biennial review program. In 1963, the 29 industries in Puerto Rico that have not reached the statutory minimum rates will be reviewed. Regulations governing special minimum wages for learners, apprentices, messengers and handicapped workers are being constantly reexamined. It is estimated that 2,800 applications for special minimum wage certificates will be received each year in 1962 and 1963 as compared to 1,800 in 1961. The wage determinations program under the Walsh-Healey Act will be conducted at a level of 6 determinations in 1962 and 1963.

3. Regulations and research.—Regulations and interpretations are prepared to give effect to the Fair Labor Standards Act. Emphasis will be directed to development and revision of issuances affected by amendments to the act and changes in industry practices. Economic research and analysis and development of statistical data, necessary in the consideration of administrative problems and legislative proposals, are provided. The report of studies of effects of $1 minimum wage, required by law to evaluate the minimum wage in effect at the time and to determine the ability of employers to absorb wage increases, was completed in 1961. Further studies will be conducted in 1962 and 1963 to provide current data for reports to the Congress and to provide statistical data needed in the consideration of administrative problems.

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT

Mail volume.—The budget estimates for 1963 are based on expected volume of 70.3 billion pieces of mail, an increase of 4.9% over that expected for 1962 and 8.2% over the actual volume of 64.9 billion handled in 1961.

The 1963 forecast includes 37.8 billion first-class letters and cards; 1.6 billion airmail items; 9.3 billion magazines, newspapers, and other publications; 17.8 billion pieces of printed matter and small parcels; and about 1 billion zone rate parcels, catalogs, and other fourth-class matter. Comparisons of these and other items of postal workload and their related revenues for 1963 with the corresponding estimates for 1962 and actual results for 1961 appear in the table on the next page.

Obligations and accrued costs.—During 1961 the accounting system of the Department, which had been expanded in 1960 to incorporate accrued cost data, was perfected to the point where accrued costs can now be used to give a more complete budget presentation by fully disclosing the application and consumption of all resources available to or requested for the postal service.

Expenditure authority is still requested in terms of obligations to be incurred, but the supporting schedules show the relationship of obligations to cost by taking into account the work actually performed and the physical assets actually received. In addition, costs are segregated between capital and operations. To the latter are added costs not involving current appropriations, such as depreciation of buildings and equipment and services rendered by other agencies without reimbursement. The operating expenses of the Department are thus reported and projected in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles as well as in terms of obligations incurred.

A summary comparison of total operating expenses on an accrual basis and reconciliation with obligations for the three years follows (in millions of dollars):

	1961 actual	1962 estimate	1963 estimate
Total operating expense, accrual basis.....	4,251	4,399	4,560
Adjustment to obligation basis.....	52	24	53
Capital obligations financed by reimbursements.....	9	10	9
Gross obligations.....	4,312	4,433	4,622
Obligations financed by reimbursements and by charges to revenue.....	-63	-67	-68
Net appropriation obligations.....	4,249	4,366	4,554

The principal element in the difference between operating expenses on an accrual basis and gross obligations is the excess of capital obligations over depreciation less the amount of services rendered by other agencies without reimbursement by the Department. The growth in expenses and in obligations is attributable primarily to the growth in the volume of mail and in the spread of the city delivery service. Gross capital obligations (including acquisition of sites for resale under the commercial leasing program) are estimated at $143 million, compared with $119 million for 1962 and $132 million for 1961.

Financing.—The postal service is financed by (1) postal revenues, (2) receipts of appropriations from the Treasury general fund for identified public services, and (3) an indefinite appropriation from the general fund to the extent of any deficiency between the sum of these and the amount annually authorized for obligations. Revenues at current authorized rates are projected at a steady increase approximately paralleling the anticipated growth in mail volume.

For 1963 the reimbursement from the general fund for public service losses is estimated at $247.8 million compared with $62.7 million appropriated for 1962 and $49 million for 1961. The substantial increase proposed for 1963 is the result of substituting total loss on free and reduced rate mail for revenue foregone previously used and of including the loss on special and nonpostal services previously excluded.

The estimates for 1963 include in the overall summary tables (but not in the detailed schedules) anticipated revenue increases from new postage rates aggregating $680 million. There is presently pending before the Interstate Commerce Commission the Department's proposal to establish increased rates and other reformatations affecting parcel post and catalogs. It is anticipated that necessary reformatations on such fourth-class mail will be effective by July 1, 1962, so as to produce a net increase in revenue of $85 million which will bring costs and revenue for this class of service within the allowed tolerance.

After giving effect to the proposed increase in public service allowances and the impact of the changes planned for parcels and catalogs, there still remains a deficiency in postal revenues produced by the rising levels of costs since the last general increase in rates in 1958. This deficiency is estimated at about $500 million on the basis of accrued costs or $553 million on the basis of total fund requirements for 1963, excluding proposed pay increase costs.

A bill was introduced in the first session of the present Congress (H.R. 7927) which, if enacted as originally introduced, would meet these fund requirements. On the basis of the volume anticipated for 1963 this legislative proposal would produce in that year approximately $595 million in additional revenue and provide an additional $26 million when the final rate step would become effective in 1964.

The following table shows the principal financial elements affecting budget expenditures for the postal service for 1961 through 1963 (in millions of dollars):

The Postal Policy Act of 1958 (39 U.S.C. 2301-5) identifies as "public services" certain types of services traditionally rendered by the Post Office Department and provides that the loss thereon or cost thereof should not be considered as a charge against users of the mail. The act provides that estimates of such losses and costs shall be determined annually and paid into postal revenues by appropriation from the general fund of the Treasury. Such appropriations, therefore, under existing law, must be taken into account in applying the cost recovery standard set by the Postal Policy Act. The appropriation does not, however, augment the Department's obligational authority.

The Department proposes for 1963 that the public services appropriation include the items shown in the program and financing table. The principal changes from prior years are (1) the use of total loss (cost minus revenue, if any) rather than revenue loss (revenue foregone) on free and reduced rate mail and (2) the inclusion of losses on special and nonpostal services.

¹ Gross amounts for 1961 include $13,668 thousand settlements effected by offsetting payables and receivables.

Revenue from mail and other services of the Post Office Department is placed in the postal fund, which was established as a revolving fund in 1950 (39 U.S.C. 2202). The fund is available for obligation and expenditure by the Post Office Department in accordance with limitations established by appropriations from the postal fund. The fund is also used without annual action by Congress for the purchase of stamp-embossed envelopes and for payment of certain indemnities, claims, and adjustments.

Postal revenue comes primarily from private postal patrons. Postal revenue also includes receipts from various Federal agencies for the handling of official mail, payment by the Congress for franked mail, and the annual appropriation from the general fund of the Treasury for statutory public service losses. Reimbursements received from nonpostal services and other recoveries are likewise deposited in the postal fund.

In previous years the aggregate of postal revenues have been insufficient to cover the obligations authorized for payment from the postal fund. An indefinite appropriation is made from the general fund of the Treasury to make up the difference. It is estimated that if the postal rate increases proposed for legislative action and approval by the Interstate Commerce Commission become effective by July 1, 1962, postal revenues for 1963 will exceed obligations by $42 million. After taking into account anticipated changes in funded working capital and payments from the Treasury for public service losses, the net budgetary expenditures for the postal service for 1963 will then amount to $203 million, exclusive of pay increases.

The additional revenues projected to be received from the proposed rate increases and changes in parcel post regulations have been included only in the final summary tables and not in the detailed schedules. The indefinite appropriation for any excess of obligational authority over the revenue received is required again in 1963 because the extent of revenues to be received is not within the control of the Department.

² The changes in these items are reflected in the program and financing schedule.

³ Liabilities do not include: (1) undetermined amounts of postage in the hands of the public which, for practical considerations, have been accounted for as revenue when sold, and (2) the following contingent and future obligations which by law the Department may not fund or account for as obligations until payments are due: contingent liabilities for cases still pending before Civil Aeronautics Board in the amount of $0.4 million at June 30, 1961, and contingent liabilities for pending suits and damage claims of $31.9 million at June 30, 1961, a substantial portion of which are expected either to be settled at less than the amount claimed or disallowed; and undetermined amounts for employees' accrued leave and long-term leases.

⁴ After returning to Treasury $27,354 thousand of unobligated balances lapsing.

Proposed for separate transmittal:

Under proposed legislation, 1963—Postal rate increase.—Legislation will be proposed to increase postal rates by amounts which will increase revenue in 1963 by approximately $595 million.

Postal pay increase.—Legislation will be proposed to increase the pay rates for postal employees effective January 1, 1963. The 1963 cost is estimated to be $60 million.

1. Executive direction and administration.—This activity provides for the overall direction and administration of the postal service, including all offices and bureaus at Washington headquarters, the headquarters research and engineering staff, and the money order processing activity at Kansas City, Mo., and Washington, D.C. The estimate for 1963 proposes an increase of 8 positions in the administration staff and 106 positions in the engineering staff. Field personnel of the internal audit division, formerly a part of this activity, are now included under Field inspection service.

This activity also includes claims settled administratively under the Federal Tort Claims Act, the payment of compromise settlements and damage suits, and, for 1962, the biennial fidelity bond premium of all employees.

2. Field inspection service.—This activity embraces postal inspection and internal audit. Postal inspection covers all field investigative and inspection functions pertaining to violation of the postal laws, prevention and detection of mail loss and mistreatment and of losses of Government funds and property, field audit of postmasters' accounts, personnel security and suitability investigations, and special surveys and investigations. The internal audit program includes comprehensive reviews and financial audits of activities at the departmental level, regional offices, and other selected field installations.

3. Contract research, development, and engineering.—This is the industrial research and engineering program of the postal establishment. It includes (a) the design, development, and testing of new types of postal equipment and materials; (b) the development of better work methods, production measurement standards, and manpower utilization systems; and (c) the recommendation of general location, functional design, building modifications, layouts, and mechanization requirements of facilities. This activity covers the portion of the program performed by contracts with private firms, research institutions, and Federal agencies.

The work performed under most research and development contracts runs over a period of more than 1 year. In some instances the scope is of such magnitude as to require several years for completion. The level of obligations incurred for this activity is, therefore, not necessarily indicative of the level of the work actually performed. As indicated by the funded operating costs shown in parentheses in the program and financing table, the cost of the work actually performed each year is programmed at a relatively constant level.

4. Regional operation.—There are 15 regional offices which direct and take final action on all field aspects of postal management (personnel, operations, transportation, finance, engineering, modernization, equipment, supplies, and facilities within each region) except for specified areas primarily involving policy and technical guidance reserved to the bureaus and offices at headquarters.

The funds provided in this appropriation pay the personal services and related expenses required to perform the primary function of the Post Office Department—the collection and delivery of mail. The employees paid with these funds include postmasters, who administer the operations of the postal installations, supervisors and clerks, who direct and process the handling of mail; city carriers, special delivery messengers, and rural carriers, who collect and deliver the mail; maintenance personnel, who keep the buildings and equipment in operating condition; and the vehicle maintenance employees, who service the Government-owned trucks.

The funds requested for 1963 total $3.562 billion, an increase of $115 million over the estimate for 1962. The additional funds will provide the manpower and cover the related expenses necessary to handle the estimated increase of 3.3 billion pieces of mail in 1963, to service the additional delivery areas, and to improve existing services.

1. Administration of postal installations.—Services are performed under this activity by postmasters, assistant postmasters, supervisors, and technical personnel. These employees are engaged in the local management and supervision of all postal units. Technical personnel under this activity include accountants, station examiners, and medical, safety, and personnel employees.

2. Mail handling and window service.—This activity provides for the separation and distribution of all mail received in the postal units, including highway and railway post offices. It also covers the rendering of window service to patrons, payment for the operation of contract stations, dispatch control of trucks, and reimbursements to Federal Reserve banks for handling deposits made by postmasters and for processing paid money orders.

It is expected that continued benefits from the mechanization program, the Nationwide Improved Mail Service program, and the work measurement system will enable the increase of 4.9% in mail volume to be handled with an increase of 3.7% in manpower in this activity.

The following table shows a comparison of employment and workload. The effect of the extra leap year day has been excluded from 1960 data for comparability.

3. Collection and delivery service.—This service provides for delivery of mail to residences and business places in cities and their suburbs, collection of mail from street letter boxes and other collection boxes in these areas, delivery of mail on rural routes, and delivery of special delivery articles. This service also includes the local pickup and delivery of mail between stations and the post office and other installations. In some instances drivers trans-

4. Maintenance service.—The services under this activity relate to the maintenance of equipment and protection and cleaning of buildings used by the postal service. The employees under this activity include, among others, guards, mail-handling elevator operators, janitors, and mechanics to service mechanical mail handling and office equipment.

5. Vehicle service.—This activity provides for the maintenance and operating cost of vehicles used for the local collection and delivery of mail and for the transport of mail between cities. This includes employment of mechanics; the purchase of parts, gasoline, oil, tires, and contract maintenance; and the cost of hired vehicles used in lieu of Government-owned vehicles when it is economically advantageous.

6. Employees' compensation fund.—This provides for reimbursement to the Federal employees' compensation fund, Department of Labor, for any payments made from that fund on account of service-connected injury or death of postal employees paid from the Operations appropriation. These reimbursements will be made for the first time in 1963 in accordance with the provisions of Public Law 86-767, approved September 13, 1960, and for that year will cover costs paid from the compensation fund from December 2, 1960, through June 30, 1961, for accidental injuries or deaths occurring during that period. The funded operating costs shown in parentheses under this activity represent the Department's estimates of the total costs ultimately to be paid by the employees' compensation fund and reimbursed by the Department for accidents occurring in each year, beginning with December 2, 1960. The cost of accidents which occurred prior to that date, while included in the revenue and expense statement for purposes of determining total accrued costs, is not a liability of the Post Office Department and is therefore not included with funded operating costs in the program and financing statement. This unfunded cost has been estimated at $2,674 thousand for the period July 1 to December 1, 1960.

This appropriation covers the transportation of mail by air, land, and water. The request is $601.5 million, an increase of $22 million over the obligations for 1962, which is due to increased mail volume and to the expansion of transportation services.

1. Surface transportation.—This includes transportation of mail by water, highway, and rail.

(a) Water.—Water transportation includes transportation by powerboat within the United States and by steamship to foreign countries.

Domestic water transportation service is utilized for the transportation of mail on the inland and coastal waterways at per annum contract rates ($0.9 million in 1963) and at pound rates ($4.7 million in 1963). Pound rate service is utilized for Alaska and Hawaii, where there is a substantial increase in mail volume, and also for Puerto Rico.

This appropriation provides for expenses of building occupancy (other than personal services), for supplies and certain types of contractual services required by the postal service, and for field personnel assigned to the several service organizations operated by the Bureau of Facilities. The amount requested is $177 million, an increase of $24.5 million over 1962 and $40.8 million over 1961.

1. Building occupancy.—This activity provides for rental of real estate: for utilities, fuel, and communication costs; and for the acquisition and resale of post office building sites under the commercial leasing program. The recoveries from the resale of such land shown under Advances and reimbursements are applied to the purchase of additional sites for resale. In addition to the recoveries, $10.8 million for site acquisition is included in the appropriation request for 1963. Increased rental costs result from (a) the acquisition of additional postal space, (b) increased rental rates, and (c) replacement of inadequate or substandard space in Government buildings.

The objectives of the foreign buildings program are to provide consolidated office space for the Foreign Service and other Government agencies abroad, and living quarters for American employees in localities where suitable facilities are not available. Through this program the Department has acquired real property capitalized at approximately $192 million, consisting of 217 office buildings, 152 principal officer residences, 267 residences for senior officers and attachés, and 2,405 staff living units. This program also finances real property leases of 10 years or more (shorter term leases are included in Salaries and expenses, above), procurement of initial furniture and furnishings and repair, maintenance, and operating costs of these facilities.

Since 1946, the program has been financed primarily through the purchase of foreign currency credits held by the Treasury Department resulting from lend-lease settlements, sale of surplus war property, and other sources. Starting in 1961, a separate appropriation for the purchase of foreign currencies, which accrue under title I of Public Law 480, the Agricultural Trade Development and Assistance Act of 1954, increased the resources available to the buildings program. These supplemental funds are being used almost entirely to acquire capital assets in the form of real property, thereby accelerating the foreign buildings program. These foreign currencies supplement the regular appropriation by providing the indigenous currency element of a project, which ranges as low as 60% on construction projects in countries where many building materials are not available locally to 100% on acquisition of land or improved properties.

The purpose of the program for acquisition and construction is generally to replace outmoded or otherwise unsatisfactory Government-owned or leased office space. Such space is replaced with structures that are designed specifically to meet the particular needs of the Foreign Service and other oversea Government operations from the standpoint of conducting efficient operations and of providing adequate security protection. In addition, housing is provided American employees in localities where housing either is not available or is substandard in relation to American living standards.

The Department has previously presented to the Congress a 10-year building program estimated to require approximately $100 million for acquiring new office and housing facilities. The table below represents accomplishments with funds appropriated through 1962 under this program.

For 1963 and subsequent years new legislative authority will be sought. A long-range program will be presented to the Congress in support of proposed legislation authorizing additional appropriations. This program will include requirements which have been developed since preparation of the 1957-65 program, particularly in Africa, together with many of the projects unable to be funded under the prior authority.

In 1963 the United States will contribute its assessed share of the expenses of the United Nations and 8 of its specialized agencies, 7 inter-American organizations, 6 regional organizations, and 10 other organizations.

Peace and security operations, beginning July 1, 1962, will be financed through the sale of United Nations bonds, rather than by assessments. Two supplemental estimates for 1962 are anticipated—one for the purchase of these bonds and one for additional 1962 costs of Congo operations. The resulting decrease in the estimate for the United Nations is offset, in part, by an increase in the organization's salary scale and by a large conference on science and technology for the less-developed countries.

The World Health Organization plans an increase to absorb costs of malaria eradication, previously financed through voluntary contributions, and to aid lesser developed countries improve their national health services. Additional amounts are necessary for the Food and Agriculture Organization to expand agricultural development activities in underdeveloped countries, to enlarge the Freedom from hunger campaign and agricultural education in Africa, and to increase fellowships, salaries, and allowances.

Increases for the Pan American Health Organization result from holding the 1962 conference away from headquarters and from expanding field projects and programs in public health administration, environmental sanitation and nutrition. Expansion in the activities of the Organization of American States is necessary to achieve the goals of the President's Alliance for Progress.

The request for the North Atlantic Treaty Organization has been enlarged primarily to cover increased organization salaries and higher costs of goods and services. A major portion of the increase in the total contributions account represents the United States assessment for membership in the new Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development.

The Secretary of the Treasury is responsible for completing the liquidation of business loans and securities with individual balances of $250 thousand or more as of June 30, 1957, securities of and loans to railroads, and securities of financial institutions, and for the windup of corporate affairs.

Budget program.—Liquidation transactions in 1961 produced net budget receipts of $4 million and it is estimated that transactions in 1962 and 1963 will produce net budget receipts of $1 and $3.5 millions, respectively.

The progress made and anticipated in the liquidation of the assets transferred to the Secretary of the Treasury is summarized in the following table (in thousands of dollars):

LIQUIDATION OF FEDERAL FARM MORTGAGE CORPORATION—Con.

This corporation was abolished October 4, 1961, by Public Law 87-353 (75 Stat. 773), and its remaining assets were transferred to the Secretary of the Treasury.

The corporation has been in liquidation for several years, its only remaining activities being the collection of non-interest-bearing notes sold to the Federal land banks on June 30, 1955, paying the proceeds as dividends to the Treasury, and the payment of outstanding bonds payable upon presentation by rightful owners.

As required by Public Law 87-353 (75 Stat. 773) the following balances were transferred to the Secretary of the Treasury on October 4, 1961 (in thousands): Cash balance $298; notes receivable, $1,525; interest payable on outstanding matured bonds, $39; matured bonds held by public, $174; and retained earnings (total Government equity), $1,611.

The Secretary of the Treasury is authorized to purchase securities or make loans (including participations therein and guarantees thereof) to aid in financing projects for civil-defense purposes upon certification by the Director, Office of Civil Defense, Department of Defense (50 App. U.S.C. 2261, and sec. 104, Reconstruction Finance Corporation Liquidation Act). Investments under the program are limited to a total of $250 million outstanding at any one time.

Budget program.—The sole program cost continues to be the payment of interest on borrowings from Treasury. As of June 30, 1961, there were outstanding $798 thousand in loans and $1,776 thousand in commitments to participate in loans made by banks wherein disbursement of Treasury funds is deferred. It is estimated by the close of 1963 that the loans will be reduced to $583 thousand and the deferred participation commitments to $1,223 thousand.

No new loans were authorized in 1961. It is anticipated that use may be made of these funds in 1962 and 1963. The accompanying schedules have been developed on the basis that no additional loans will be authorized for these years. However, the Office of Civil Defense plans to give consideration to encouraging the use of this fund by eligible borrowers participating in the national civil defense program.

Financing.—Program activities are financed from borrowings from Treasury. The unobligated balance of such authority at the end of 1963 is estimated to increase slightly to $248.6 million.

1. Processing deposits of withheld tax payments.—Employers and certain business enterprises deposit monthly, with designated banks, excise, withheld income, railroad retirement, and withheld social security taxes, to the credit of the Treasurer of the United States. The Federal Reserve banks, acting as fiscal agents of the Treasury, issue depository receipts which the employers attach to their returns as evidence of payment of taxes. Of the $1,578 thousand obligations estimated for 1963, $746 thousand will be recovered and credited to miscellaneous receipts by charges against the Federal old-age and survivors insurance trust fund and the Federal disability insurance trust fund. The work volume is estimated at 11,162,000 depository receipts in 1962 and 11,742,000 in 1963 as compared with 10,537,763 in 1961. The increase in obligations estimated for 1963 of $133 thousand over 1962 is due to the increase in the estimated volume of receipts, increase in unit rate and related increase in purchase of additional depository receipts and envelopes.

2. Financial reporting and maintenance of the Government's central accounts.—This activity includes the maintenance of central accounts of appropriations, receipts and expenditures which provide data for financial statements. It also includes the preparation and publication of financial reports on the Government's fiscal operations, such as the annual Combined Statement of Receipts, Expenditures, and Balances; the Monthly Treasury Statement; the Secretary's Annual Report; the Treasury Bulletin; and reports on foreign currencies acquired without payment of dollars. The work volume is estimated at 3,656 thousand accounting items in 1962 and 3,670 thousand in 1963 as compared with 4,284 thousand in 1961.

3. Accounting and reporting development and internal audit.—This activity includes furnishing technical accounting advice and assistance to other agencies in relation to central accounting, reporting, disbursing and depository matters; participation in the governmentwide financial management improvement program; performing systems work within the fiscal service and the Bureau of Accounts; performing internal audit in the Bureau, and other audits of a departmental character.

4. Processing investments, loans, claims, collections, and surty bonds.—Investments in interest-bearing securities are processed for certain funds, such as the Federal old-age and survivors insurance trust fund, the unemployment trust fund, the veterans insurance trust fund, and various Government retirement funds. The work includes accounting for purchases, sales, and redemptions of securities, processing of capital stock subscriptions of Government corporations, payment of international and other claims, and examination of the financial conditions of companies issuing surety bonds in favor of the United States. The number of transactions is estimated at 75,481 for 1963 as compared with 72,469 in 1962 and 70,665 in 1961.

5. Supervision of the Federal depository system.—Banking facilities are provided for all agencies of the Government through the designation of selected institutions to act as official depositories of the Government's funds. Workload is expected to increase in 1963 as follows:

The increase in 1963 is due to additional work volume (17.7 million payments) and increases in program activities.

The funds required are determined by multiplying work load by the unit cost as shown in the following tables:

Under existing legislation, 1962.—It is anticipated that a supplemental appropriation of $390 thousand will be required to meet the cost of the provisions of the following act.

Public Law 87-64 (75 Stat. 131), approved June 30, 1961, reduced the age of eligibility of men for social security benefits from 65 to 62, liberalized the insured and status requirements and changed provisions for withholding of monthly benefits based on earnings.

The latest information received from the Social Security Administration indicated that as a result there will be an additional 4,610,000 checks issued at a cost of $322 thousand, which includes postage of $184 thousand. The act also provided for an increase in the minimum benefits and widows' benefits necessitating changing 3,700,000 payment records at a cost of $68 thousand.

The additional cost due to this legislation will be reimbursed to the general fund of the Treasury as provided in section 201(g) of the Social Security Act, as amended.

This revolving fund was created as self-insurance to cover losses in shipment of Government property such as coin, currency, securities, certain losses incurred by the Post Office Department, and losses in connection with the redemption of savings bonds (5 U.S.C. 134). Since these claims are only partially offset by recoveries, the net losses have gradually increased to $952 thousand as of June 30, 1961, and are expected to increase to $1,044 thousand by June 30, 1962. The increase in 1963 obligations reflects a sudden rise in claims cases beginning in 1962 and anticipated to continue in 1963. It is estimated that the creation of this fund has resulted in a savings of over $100 million of insurance premiums on shipments of Government property.

Under proposed legislation, 1963.—Legislation is proposed to amend certain of the present tax laws which will include provisions to withhold specified deductions from interest payments on savings bonds and other Treasury securities.

In anticipation of action by the Congress early in 1962 and the application of the withholding tax provisions for the fiscal year 1963 as they relate to interest on savings bonds and other Treasury securities, an estimate in the amount of $8,000 thousand has been developed as a cost for the first full fiscal year of operation. This amount is expected to cover the administrative costs in the Bureau attendant to converting all open individual bond accounts to a basis where withholding of interest in accordance with provisions of law will become almost automatic, and also to cover increased costs in the Federal Reserve banks in their capacity as fiscal agents of the Treasury and to the agents who redeem series "E" savings bonds.

This Office (a) receives, keeps and disburses the moneys of the United States; (b) processes claims for the proceeds of Government checks; (c) receives, stores, issues, transfers, and retires currency; (d) issues and redeems Government securities; (e) maintains fiscal accounts; and (f) prepares financial statements and reports.

1. Payment and reconciliation of checks.—This consists of maintaining checking accounts of Government disbursing officers and Government-owned corporations; processing documents crediting Government disbursing accounts; performing centralized payment function of all checks drawn on the Treasurer of the United States; reconciling deposits claimed and checks issued as reported by disbursing officers with the deposits credited and checks paid by the Treasurer and determining the outstanding checks in each disbursing account.

Including the checks paid by this activity on a reimbursable basis, approximately 430 million checks were paid and reconciled in 1961 by the Treasurer in Washington through the use of electronic equipment. Based on estimates furnished by the various Government agencies, a check volume of 452 million is expected in 1962 and 467 million in 1963.

The electronic installation will be expanded to include the payment and reconciliation of postal money orders beginning late in 1962, on a reimbursable basis. The new postal money order system will require about a year to become fully effective and, when in complete operation, is expected to result in overall savings to the Government of about $650 thousand annually. In 1962 an estimated 8 million money orders will be processed by this activity, and in 1963 an estimated 180 million.

2. Processing check claims.—This consists of the processing of all claims for proceeds of Government checks, including the allowance or disallowance of claims against the United States and enforcing of claims of the United States against banks, endorsers, principals, and sureties or other parties having liability due to the fraudulent or otherwise improper negotiation of checks.

The Bureau of Customs collects the duties and taxes on imported merchandise, inspects all international traffic, regulates certain marine and aircraft activities, combats smuggling, undervaluation, and frauds on the customs revenue, and performs related functions in connection with the importation and exportation of merchandise.

Direct obligations are estimated to be $66,000 thousand for 1963, an increase of $2,675 thousand over the amount now appropriated for 1962.

The unobligated balance of $300 thousand is a special fund available to this account when necessary to help pay the expenses of reimbursable customs work pending the collection of receivables from private interests.

1. Assessment and collection of duties, taxes, and fees.—The collectors of customs assess and collect the duties and taxes on imported merchandise, inspect international traffic, combat smuggling, perform certain marine activities relating to ownership and documentation of vessels of the United States and the movement of vessels in the foreign trade, and enforce the laws of other Government agencies affecting imports and exports.

The Internal Revenue Service is the primary revenue collecting agency of the Federal Government. Gross total collections of the Internal Revenue Service amounted to $94 billion in 1961.

The number of tax returns filed has increased over the past 6 years from 90.3 million to 95.8 million. The Service has developed a long-range plan not only to cope with this increasing workload, but also to raise the level of enforcement and public compliance. The 1963 recommendation provides funds to continue the increase in enforcement personnel authorized in 1961 and 1962, and to further the installation of an electronic computer system designed to maintain a consolidated master file of taxpayer accounts. These funds, which will allow significant increases in work accomplishment as indicated in the following workload tables (particularly in the collection and audit activities), constitute the third step in the long-range plan to improve the administration and enforcement of our tax laws.

1. Rulings, technical planning, and special technical services.—The Service interprets statutory provisions, issues rulings, and prepares regulations and Treasury decisions. It conducts continuing research on tax loopholes, inequities, and related problems; provides special technical services; and negotiates tax treaties with foreign governments.

The Bureau of Engraving and Printing designs, manufactures, and supplies all major evidences of a financial character issued by the United States. It is the sole source of U.S. currency and Federal Reserve notes, certificates of indebtedness, as well as most of the minor evidences of a financial character issued by the United States, such as postage, internal revenue, customs, and savings stamps. In addition, the Bureau prints bonds, commissions, certificates, etc. The Bureau also prints bonds, postage and internal revenue stamps for the Governments of insular possessions.

The Bureau finances its operations out of reimbursements received from other agencies for all direct and indirect costs, including administrative expenses (31 U.S.C. 181-181e).

Budget program.—The anticipated work volume is based on estimates of requirements submitted by agencies served. The program comprises the following activities:

1. Engraving and printing—(a) Currency.—The anticipated deliveries reflect an overall decrease of 1.7% in 1962 and 5.8% in 1963 as compared with deliveries made in 1961. Analysis of this decrease by type of currency reflects a reduction in requirements for U.S. currency of 1.2% in 1962 and 10.1% in 1963. Requirements for Federal Reserve notes decrease 2.8% in the current year and increase 2.9% in the budget year.

(b) Stamps.—Estimated requirements for this class of work which comprises primarily postage and internal revenue stamps reflect an increase of 10.3% in 1962 and 3.6% in 1963 over 1961. The appreciable rise in the requirements for the current year is due principally to an increased demand for postage stamps in that year.

(c) Securities.—This program encompasses the production of a wide variety of bonds, notes, and debentures for the Bureau of the Public Debt and certain other agencies of the Government. The anticipated requirements of the agencies reflect an increase of 9.6% in 1962 and 16.4% in 1963 over 1961.

(d) Commissions, certificates, etc.—The estimated requirements of the various agencies for this type work indicate a substantial increase in the number of units to be produced primarily as a result of a special project to be performed for the Department of Defense. Although the volume requirements will increase substantially, the total production cost for all of these items represents only slightly more than 2% of the overall engraving and printing program.

2. Card checks.—Effective July 1, 1960, all functions formerly performed by the Bureau in connection with the awarding of the annual contract to a commercial firm for the printing of Government checks in punched card form, and exercising administrative control over their procurement, was transferred to the Office of the Treasurer of the United States. The small amount of deliveries indicated for 1961 represents carryover orders from the previous year.

3. Operation and maintenance of incinerator and space utilized by other agencies.—Charges are made to other agencies on an actual cost basis for use of the incinerator and maintenance services provided for the space they occupy in the Bureau's buildings.

4. Other direct charges to agencies for services.—Charges for a wide variety of miscellaneous services performed by Bureau personnel are made to the agencies concerned on an actual cost basis.

Operating results and financial condition.—The Bureau sustained a loss of $24 thousand as a result of operations during 1961. This loss, together with a deficit of $64 thousand brought forward from prior years, will be recovered from any profits accruing in subsequent years in accordance with provisions of 31 U.S.C. 181–181e. Budget expenditures are expected to be below receipts in the amount of $321 thousand in 1962 and $777 thousand in 1963.

The capital of the fund is expected to remain at $25.3 million represented by an appropriation of $3.3 million and donated assets of $22 million.

The Coast Guard enforces maritime law, provides limited security of ports and waterfront facilities, saves life and property, provides navigational aids to maritime commerce in navigable waters, promotes the safety of the American Merchant Marine and maintains a state of military readiness to serve as a part of the Navy in time of war or national emergency.

Direct program by activities—1. Vessel operations.—Multifunctional vessels are strategically stationed along the coast and inland waterways for search and rescue; tending aids to navigation; operating an international ice observation and patrol service in the North Atlantic Ocean; performing limited ice breaking in navigable lakes, rivers, canals, and harbors; and for law enforcement.

3. Shore stations and aids operations.—Bases, moorings and lifeboat stations are strategically situated for search, rescue and law enforcement and for maintaining aids to navigation. Port Security units control anchorage areas; supervise the loading and unloading of dangerous cargoes; and screen merchant seamen and longshoremen to bar subversive elements from merchant vessels and critical waterfront areas.

Buoys, lightships, lighthouses, fog signal stations, light attendant stations, radiobeacons, and loran stations are maintained as navigational aids in the waters of the United States, its possessions and military bases overseas. Radio stations provide rapid communication incident to all Coast Guard operations. They also maintain a guard on the international maritime distress frequencies. Marine inspection offices and detachments administer laws and issue regulations on safety equipment and inspection of merchant vessels, and on licensing and certification of Merchant Marine officers and crews. They review plans for construction or alteration of merchant vessels, investigate marine accidents, and handle disciplinary cases. These offices also administer the small-boat safety program.

¹ Includes the past 5-year average of 6,758 maximum buoy stations in the Second Coast Guard District. The number of buoys required to properly mark the rivers is directly related to their water levels.

4. Repair and supply facilities.—Thirteen repair and eleven supply facilities are maintained at strategic points for support of Coast Guard operating units. Also, two facilities are maintained for testing, developing and adapting material for safer and more effective Coast Guard use.

5. Training and recruiting facilities.—This activity includes the Coast Guard Academy for the training of cadets, recruiting stations, training units for recruits and petty officers, and outside training programs.

7. Other military personnel expense.—This activity provides for certain military personnel expenses such as social security, the pay of personnel in hospitals, and in transit, expense of permanent changes of stations, including travel of dependents and transportation of household effects; and expenses of military separation, training and recreation.

8. Supporting programs.—This activity consists of procurement of ammunition and maintenance of ordnance; replacement of vehicles, boats and electronic equipment; transportation of materials; and printing. These programs have such general applicability that they cannot properly be charged to specific units.

9. Reimbursable program by activities—Operation of ocean stations (Navy).—The operation of 6 ocean stations (4 in the Atlantic and 2 in the Pacific), on the basis of 3 cutters per station, is financed by the Department of Defense as defense requirement. These vessels perform the dual function of ocean station duty and search and rescue.

10. Miscellaneous services to other accounts.—Various activities of the Coast Guard are financed by other agencies. They include, in part, operation of 1 vessel for United States Information Agency.

This appropriation provides for the acquisition, construction, rebuilding, and improvement of vessels, aircraft, shore facilities, and aids to navigation.

Direct program.—1. Vessels.—A program to replace overage, obsolete, and deteriorated vessels of the Coast Guard fleet was begun in 1960. This program will be continued in 1963 by construction of replacement vessels for two small tenders, five harbor tugs, two large patrol craft, and one coastal tender. To meet our statutory obligations to maintain aids to navigation, one new river tender will be constructed for service on the Missouri River.

2. Aviation facilities.—Replacement aircraft for eight medium helicopters and one medium-range transport plane will be procured. Two new air detachments will be established and the accompanying eight additional helicopters procured. Also construction of a new air station will be commenced at Boston, Mass., and initial planning will be accomplished for a new air station at New Orleans, La. All of the above programs are in consonance with the reevaluation of the requirements of Coast Guard aviation. Finally, an SC-130B nose hangar will be constructed and improvements to the fire protection system completed at Elizabeth City, N.C., Air Station.

3. Shore stations and navigational aids.—Aids to navigation will be established in waterways improved and developed by the U.S. Corps of Engineers. Other aids will be established or replaced as made necessary by the natural shifting of channels and the changing needs of marine commerce. Additional search and rescue facilities will be provided by establishing two houseboat rescue detachments and by constructing and equipping one rescue station. A fixed light will be constructed on a marine site to replace Frying Pan Shoals lightship station. Finally, aids to navigation, communications, and search and rescue capabilities will be improved by relocation of the Loran station on French Frigate Shoals; by improving or installing aids at three locations; by converting power supplies at light stations to alternating current; by improving facilities at two radio stations; and by repairing, modernizing or replacing facilities at four lifeboat stations.

4. Repair and supply facilities.—Quarters and necessary facilities for officers and enlisted men will be constructed at Base, Charleston, S.C. The second and final phase of the program to improve facilities at Base, Morehead City, N.C., provides for dredging, bulkheading, and a dock slab. Finally, a building containing berthing and messing facilities, offices, a garage, and laboratory for the International Ice Patrol Office will be constructed at Base, Woods Hole, Mass., as the first phase to improving this base.

5. Training and recruiting facilities.—The program of expansion and improvement of facilities at the Academy, New London, Conn., will be continued in 1963. The project provides for expansion and improvement of the Infirmary; first phase improvement of utilities; minor alterations to Hamilton Hall, Yeaton Hall, and the Superintendent's Quarters; and grading and partial filling of former Riverside Park land. Construction of facilities at Receiving Center, Cape May, N.J., will provide the second replacement 500-man barracks.

Reimbursable program.—6. Loran to meet Department of Defense requirements.—This program is accomplished by the Coast Guard with reimbursement from the Department of Defense. The 1963 program contemplates reimbursement of $22 million to continue implementation of the Joint Chiefs of Staff Loran installation plan of 1961.

The Reserve training program is designed to provide a trained force of 39,600 officers and enlisted personnel in the Ready Reserve available for active duty in time of war or national emergency and at such times as the national security requires to fill the needs of the Coast Guard.

The training program is organized into categories compatible with the required phases of mobilization. The first or primary category is organized to provide trained units and personnel for specific assignments or tasks within 15 days of the outset of mobilization. This program provides 48 paid drills of at least 2 hours duration and 2 weeks active duty for training for personnel assigned to organized training units who occupy positions that require continued training in critical specialties in order to maintain a high standard of proficiency for unit or specific mobilization assignments. The second category is designed to provide specialized training to additional individuals, scheduled for early mobilization, in nonpay units and/or 15 to 30 days periodic active duty for training. The third category is comprised of personnel scheduled for mobilization within 6 months of the outset of mobilization who, due to previous training either in units or on active duty, and in some cases whose civilian occupations are closely allied to their military specialties, do not require frequent training.

The proposed program for 1963 will provide a total of 27,858 officers and enlisted personnel in all categories of the Ready Reserve by the end of the year. This figure represents a decrease of 2,248 personnel from that attained in 1962. This overall decrease in the Ready Reserve is the result of the high rate of attrition among the reservists, whose enlistments expire or whose obligations are completed. This drop in the Ready Reserve takes into account an increase of 2,097 in the number of reservists receiving training in 1963.

Direct program by activities—1. Trainee expense.—The program for 1962 provides for a decrease from 16,777 to 16,556 in the number of reservists to receive training of the types required for mobilization purposes. The 1963 program provides for an increase from 16,556 to 18,653. The increase by category allows for additional drill training of 100 officers and 1,710 enlisted in the group A area. Group D personnel training has been increased by 315 personnel for a total of 9,015 man days (officer and enlisted).

The group F 6-month officer trainee program will be completed in 1962. The additional savings generated will be applied to meet the rise in the average cost of trainee expense due to a rise in the pay grade structure.

2. Operation of training facilities.—This activity encompasses the operation of facilities for the training of reserve personnel at the receiving center, Cape May, N.J.; training station, Groton, Conn.; base, Alameda, Calif.; and Reserve Training Center, Yorktown, Va. It also includes the operation of 2 training vessels and 248 Organized Reserve training units, an increase of 18 units over 1962. This use of Yorktown will increase from 2,690 receiving summer training in 1962 to 3,000 in 1963. This requires the addition of summer instructors to augment the permanent staff.

3. Construction of training facilities.—Participation with the Navy in the construction of a Reserve training center at Tacoma, Wash., is planned for 1963.

4. Administration.—This activity encompasses all administrative costs at both headquarters and district offices associated with the management of the Reserve training program, recruitment of personnel, and the "in training and ineffectives" billets for personnel in school, in transit, etc. No change for 1963 is planned.

The Coast Guard supply fund, in accordance with 14 U.S.C. 650, finances the procurement of uniform clothing, commissary provisions, general stores and technical materials. The fund is financed by reimbursements from sale of goods.

Costs of approximately $17.2 million to be incurred under this fund in 1963 are divided 13% for uniform clothing, 65% for commissary provisions, 22% for general stores and technical materials.

Sales are expected to be $495 thousand more in 1962 than the 1961 actual and $1,060 thousand more in 1963 than 1961. Sales in 1963 are expected to exceed 1962 sales by $565 thousand. This increase in sales is attributable to the rise in number of personnel to be maintained and rise in cost of provisions.

Very little variation is expected between sales and purchases. The inventory level will remain near the 1961 level. Although the clothing inventory will be reduced in 1962 and 1963 due to a planned reduction in stock levels, it will be offset by an increase in stocks of engine parts under the general stores inventory.

The Commission procures raw materials; manufactures special nuclear materials and atomic weapons; develops improved weapons; conducts research and development aimed at generation of atomic power and protection of health against possible hazards arising from atomic energy operations; conducts investigations in the physical and life sciences related to atomic energy, including investigation of controlled thermonuclear reactions; establishes and enforces regulations for civilian uses of atomic energy; promotes industrial participation in atomic energy development for peaceful purposes; encourages scientific and industrial progress through the dissemination of atomic energy information; and participates in programs of international cooperation in peaceful applications of atomic energy.

The program is administered through field offices. Most of the Commission's activities are carried on in Government-owned facilities by industrial concerns and educational institutions operating under contracts. Coordination with the armed services is achieved through the Military Liaison Committee of the Department of Defense.

Total program costs in 1963 are estimated at $2,682.3 million, or $187.0 million greater than the estimated 1962 costs of $2,495.3 million, and $224.1 million greater than actual costs of $2,458.2 million for 1961. In 1963, increases are provided in the weapons and reactor development programs and in research in the physical and biomedical sciences. Activities for which increases are provided include weapons production and development, rocket propulsion reactors, satellite and small power sources, general reactor technology, nuclear safety, high energy physics, nuclear structure and neutron physics, chemical properties and reactions and somatic effects of radiation. Costs for the procurement of raw materials, consistent with present contractual commitments, decrease from the prior years.

In 1963, as in 1962, total program obligations will exceed program costs, the difference being obligations incurred for costs which will not materialize until future years. Total program obligations for operating expenses in 1963 are estimated to be $2,727.5 million compared to $2,533.8 million in 1962 and $2,452.5 million in 1961.

1. Raw materials.—Uranium ores and concentrates are procured for processing in the production facilities of the Commission. An estimated 28,600 tons of concentrates, of which approximately 17,300 tons will come from domestic sources, will be obtained in 1963. This is a decrease of 1,325 tons from the 29,925 tons estimated to be procured in 1962. Procurement in 1961 was 32,260 tons.

2. Special nuclear materials.—Uranium concentrates are processed into feed materials from which (a) plutonium is produced in the reactors at Hanford, Wash., and Savannah River, S.C. and (b) the isotope uranium 235 is extracted in plants at Oak Ridge, Tenn., Paducah, Ky., and Portsmouth, Ohio. Production of special nuclear materials will be at rates required to meet weapons production schedules and nonweapons requirements. Work will continue on process improvements to assure continuity and safety of operation and more economical methods of production.

3. Weapons.—The program encompasses the production of weapons; the maintenance of stockpiled weapons in a state of constant readiness; the design, development, and testing of new weapon types; and development of test detection methods. A supplemental estimate for 1962 is anticipated for separate transmittal.

4. Reactor development.—This program includes primarily the development of (a) civilian power reactors leading to reliable and economic power, including general reactor work on fuel element development and related technology, (b) power and propulsion reactors for a variety of military and space applications, (c) commercial ship reactors, (d) advanced reactor systems, and (e) a program of nuclear safety. The costs by major category are (in thousands of dollars):

The Commission's civilian power reactor program establishes a foundation of technical knowledge through a program of research and development on promising reactor concepts; design, fabrication, and operation of power reactor experiments; the development of experimental reactors; and development of conceptual designs for prototype powerplants.

Costs of $10.4 million will be incurred for the power demonstration reactor program assistance whereby the Commission provides financial aid in development of full-scale power reactors built by private utilities and for public power bodies. This aid provides a basis for a privately financed nuclear power industry.

Costs of $4 million shown for Euratom are for research and development under a joint program with the European Atomic Energy Community, for which $10 million has been appropriated. Authorization for and appropriation of an additional $5 million is being requested.

The Commission's program includes work to develop atomic powerplants for use in commercial vessels. Experimental operation of the NS Savannah, the nuclear-powered merchant ship, will continue during 1963.

Efforts will be continued to develop reactors to meet requirements of the Department of Defense, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, and other Government agencies. These include propulsion reactors for submarines, surface combatant ships, ramjet missiles (Project Pluto), space rockets (Project Rover), transportable power reactors for the generation of electric power and heat at remote military installations, and small power sources for satellites and other special purpose applications (Project SNAP). The principal increases are for Project Rover and Project SNAP. In Project SNAP a new program is being launched to develop a high power system for application to large communication satellites, reconnaissance systems, and space probes. This program will use basically the technology to be developed from the high-temperature lithium-cooled reactor experiment.

To provide broad support primarily for civilian power reactor projects, the Commission conducts research in general reactor technology, which includes general research and development on materials, components, moderators, control techniques, fuel elements, spent fuels reprocessing, and waste processing. Some of this work is also applicable to military reactor development programs.

The Commission's advanced reactors systems research and development program is devoted to the development of five advanced experimental reactors and other advanced research and development.

In its nuclear safety program, the Commission conducts investigations related to nuclear safety problems which have general application. The increase includes provision for the testing of simulated SNAP devices and purchase of flight vehicles required for aerospace safety environmental research and development.

The Commission also operates the National Reactor Testing Station in Idaho, including two test reactors which provide irradiation services for the Commission's programs.

The cost categories in the table above may be recapitulated to indicate the relative efforts placed on central station civilian atomic power applications, outer space applications, and all other applications. This comparison is as follows (in thousands of dollars):

	1961 actual	1962 estimate	1963 estimate
Development and support related primarily to civilian power.....	172,315	191,835	191,297
Development and support related primarily to outer space.....	45,791	91,931	148,248

Total reactor development.....	424,382	430,596	488,745

5. Physical research.—This program is directed toward basic and applied research relevant to the Commission's responsibilities for the development, use, and control of nuclear energy. Within this framework, investigations are undertaken in the fields of physics, chemistry, metal-lurgy and materials, and controlled thermonuclear research. By major category, the costs are (in thousands of dollars):

Category:	1961 actual	1962 estimate	1963 estimate
High energy physics.....	53,448	63,659	81,165
Other physics and mathematics research.....	26,103	27,100	33,600
Chemistry research.....	35,108	39,514	47,675
Metallurgy and materials research....	15,268	18,713	23,060
Controlled thermonuclear research (project Sherwood).....	29,999	26,500	26,500
General purpose capital equipment....	1,072	492	4,000
Total physical research.....	160,998	175,978	216,000

Research in high energy physics continues to expand as new accelerators, on which construction was initiated in prior years, are put into operation. The increase in costs for other physics and mathematics research provides for several low energy physics accelerators on university campuses and an expanded research program in this important field. Chemistry and metallurgical research, aimed at advancing basic knowledge in these fields of science and developing such knowledge for practical operations of the atomic energy program, increases to include operation of large new research tools plus initiation of some additional new projects. Project Sherwood, directed toward ultimate production of power from the controlled fusion of heavy hydrogen nuclei, continues at the 1962 level. The increase in general purpose equipment costs primarily reflects the acquisition of a major computer for one of the national laboratories and the provision of general and multipurpose equipment required to support research programs of the magnitude described above at those major laboratories which are primarily oriented to the physical research program.

Approximately 74% of the physical research program is conducted at 13 laboratories owned by or operated for the Commission, and the remainder, comprising approximately 570 projects, is supported in more than 150 universities, colleges, institutes, and independent laboratories.

6. Biology and medicine.—Research is conducted on the effects of radiation on living things. It includes investigations of the biological effects of radioactivity in the body, and the development of methods for minimizing exposure to radioactive materials of all kinds and for minimizing and protecting against the injurious effects of radiation. Support is given to the development of methods of utilizing radioactive materials for human welfare and for the diagnosis, treatment, and understanding of human diseases such as cancer. Evaluation of the significance of human exposure to radioactivity from all sources is given special emphasis. Studies being carried out include the measurement of radioactive byproducts (including fallout), their concentrations, redistribution, and mechanisms of translocation in the atmosphere, soils, fresh waters, oceans, and biosphere proper. Research provides the basis for establishment of standards to insure that the Commission's activities are conducted with safety.

The major portion of the research is carried on at 15 laboratories which are owned by or operated for the Commission, and the remainder, comprising approximately 600 projects, is supported in more than 250 universities, colleges, hospitals, and independent laboratories. The program includes the operation of several facilities in the United States devoted to cancer research and two laboratories in Japan for the determination of long-term effects of atomic bomb radiation on the affected population.

7. Training, education, and information.—This activity includes operation of special schools; conduct of specialized courses; granting of fellowships for graduate students; assistance to colleges and universities; and dissemination of technical information, including participation in international conferences and exhibits on nuclear science and technology.

Two schools will be operated in 1963: The International Institute of Nuclear Science and Engineering at the Argonne National Laboratory and the Puerto Rico Nuclear Training Center. Specialized courses are conducted at the Oak Ridge Institute of Nuclear Studies. In addition, at the Oak Ridge National Laboratory, specialized courses including reactor hazards and supervision instruction will be offered. Tuition charges are made depending on the type of training provided.

In order to assist the States in the implementation of Public Law 86-373, which authorizes the Commission to transfer certain regulatory functions to the States and also authorizes related training activities, training courses have been established in radiation safety, radiological health protection, waste disposal, etc., for State and local government employees. No tuition charges are made for these courses.

Under the fellowship program in 1963, approximately 170 college graduates, compared to 159 in 1962 and 178 in 1961, will receive assistance for graduate studies in nuclear science and engineering. In 1963, 113 fellowships will be offered in the fields of radiological physics, industrial hygiene and industrial medicine, which compares to 102 fellowships in these fields in 1962 and 94 in 1961. Assistance to schools to provide for educational programs in nuclear science and engineering will be continued. Grants are made to universities to help them acquire nuclear training equipment, teaching aids, demonstration apparatus, and special laboratory equipment. University summer and academic year courses in radiobiology are made available to high school science teachers, and special training in the nuclear aspects of the engineering, life and physical sciences for university faculty members is provided.

To broaden the dissemination of information on matters relating to atomic energy, the Commission operates the Technical Information Service, maintains libraries, performs translation services, and operates traveling atomic energy exhibits. The Commission arranges for nuclear exhibits at selected foreign conferences and exhibitions in order to demonstrate U.S. technology.

8. Civilian applications of isotopes and nuclear explosives—Isotopes.—This program is designed to extend and accelerate the development of new technology for widespread use of radioisotopes and radiation. Emphasis is given to development of large scale economic uses of fission product wastes arising from nuclear reactor operation. Effort is directed to development of nuclear technology for solution of major problems in meteorology, seismology, control of environmental pollution, and water resources development.

Nuclear explosives.—This program (project Plowshare) provides for the investigation and development of the peaceful uses of nuclear explosives, including research, development, and experimentation on specific applications. In 1963, efforts will be pursued on both the basic research and engineering aspects.

9. Communities.—The 1963 estimate of $9.1 million provides for operation of the town of Los Alamos, N. Mex., with a population of about 14,000, and assistance payments to the former Atomic Energy Commission communities of Oak Ridge, Tenn., and Richland, Wash., in accordance with the Atomic Energy Community Act of 1955. Operating revenues at Los Alamos (budgeted under revenues applied) are estimated at $5.8 million, leaving net costs of $3.3 million.

10. Program direction and administration.—This program includes the salaries and other costs for employees of the Federal Government engaged in executive direction, general management, and technical supervision of the atomic energy program; the negotiation and administration of contracts; establishment and enforcement of regulations for civilian uses of atomic energy; and other related administrative activities. Employees under this program are located in the headquarters in Germantown, Md., and in field offices. The 1963 increase of $1.6 million is related principally to an increase in staff provided for in 1963.

11. Security investigations.—The Atomic Energy Act of 1954 requires background investigations of those persons proposed for access to restricted data of the atomic energy program. The number of full background investigations to be requested in 1963 is estimated at 17,050 compared with 17,100 for 1962 and 18,812 for 1961.

12. Cost of work for others.—In furthering the objectives of the Atomic Energy Act of 1954 concerning utilization of atomic energy for peaceful purposes, the Commission furnishes materials and services, apart from those which it provides normally for its own basic programs, to industrial organizations and other private parties. Costs for these are incurred only upon the request of others. Charges made for such products and services are reflected in the budget under advances and reimbursements from non-Federal sources (revenue applied) and are applied as a source of funds, thereby reducing the amount of appropriations required. The items included are (in thousands of dollars):

This item, shown as a source of financing on the program and financing schedule, reduces appropriation requirements and is obtained from services performed; the sale and lease of products, including sale and lease of nuclear materials produced as a part of the Commission's own basic program; the operation of Atomic Energy Commission-owned communities and housing; the sale of special reactor materials; and products and services for which costs are incurred only upon the request of others and are included under Cost of work for others. The items included are (in thousands of dollars):

PLANT ACQUISITION AND CONSTRUCTION—Continued

From this appropriation the Atomic Energy Commission constructs the plants and facilities necessary for its production, research and development, and supporting operations. Appropriations for plant acquisition and construction and for financial assistance in the development of reactors require specific authorization by the Congress. Of the new obligational authority being requested for 1963, $160.5 million applies to construction projects previously authorized, with the balance of $125.5 million being applicable to projects for which authorization is being requested for 1963. The details of the estimates by activity are as follows:

1. Raw materials.—This provides for minor construction to support the Government-owned procurement installations.

2. Special nuclear materials.—This provides for additions, modifications, and improvements to feed materials plants, the gaseous diffusion plants, and the production reactor installations. Obligational requirements of $62.6 million in 1963 include $33.6 million for new projects and an additional $29.0 million for previously authorized projects.

3. Weapons.—This provides for the construction and modification of facilities for the production of weapons and for the development and engineering of new weapon types.

4. Reactor development.—This provides for the construction of laboratory buildings for fundamental engineering work on reactor concepts and materials, facilities for the housing of reactor experiments, civilian power experimental reactors generating electrical energy or producing over 10,000 kilowatts of heat, and construction of development installations. Obligational requirements in 1963 include $31.7 million for new projects requiring authorization and relating principally to research and development test plants for project Rover, modification to existing reactors, housing and plant modifications for a lithium-cooled reactor experiment, calcined waste storage tanks, and cafeteria. Also included are $16 million for projects already authorized, namely, the advanced test reactor and modifications to the sodium reactor experiment.

5. Physical research.—This provides for construction of large research machines and laboratory buildings. It includes construction and modification of ultra-high energy particle accelerators in the multibillion electron-volt range, which will assist in obtaining new knowledge about the atomic nucleus and the elementary particles. Obligational requirements in 1963 include $20.2 million for new projects requiring authorization and relating principally to new laboratory buildings for research in chemistry, physics, and mathematics, and for accelerator improvements, and $112 million to provide additional funding for projects already authorized, including the Stanford linear electron accelerator, the transuranium processing plant, the zero gradient synchrotron and modifications to other accelerators.

6. Biology and medicine.—This activity provides for construction supporting biomedical research in atomic energy. Obligational requirements in 1963 include $1.5 million for new projects requiring authorization and $3.3 million to provide additional funding for projects already authorized.

7. Training, education, and information.—This activity provides for minor construction in connection with the Commission's training program.

8. Civilian applications of isotopes.—This activity provides for the construction of facilities required for research and development directed toward the civilian applications of isotopes. New obligational authority is being requested for one research laboratory.

9. Communities.—Improvements and additions are made to community facilities at Los Alamos, N. Mex.

10. Administration.—This activity provides for improvements and modifications of administrative facilities at the Commission headquarters in Germantown, Md.

GENERAL PROVISIONS

Any appropriation available under this or any other Act to the Atomic Energy Commission may initially be used subject to limitations in this Act during the fiscal year [1962] 1963 to finance the procurement of materials, services, or other costs which are a part of work or activities for which funds have been provided in any other appropriation available to the Commission: Provided, That appropriate transfers or adjustments between such appropriations shall subsequently be made for such costs on the basis of actual application determined in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles.

Not to exceed 5 per centum of appropriations made available for the fiscal year [1962] 1963 for "Operating expenses" and "Plant acquisition and construction" may be transferred between such appropriations, but neither such appropriation, except as otherwise provided herein, shall be increased by more than 5 per centum by any such transfers, and any such transfers shall be reported promptly to the Appropriations Committees of the House and Senate.

No part of any appropriation herein shall be used to confer a fellowship on any person who advocates or who is a member of an organization or party that advocates the overthrow of the Government of the United States by force or violence or with respect to whom the Commission finds, upon investigation and report by the Civil Service Commission on the character, associations, and loyalty of whom, that reasonable grounds exist for belief that such person is disloyal to the Government of the United States: Provided, That any person who advocates or who is a member of an organization or party that advocates the overthrow of the Government of the United States by force or violence and accepts employment or a fellowship the salary, wages, stipend, grant, or expenses for which are paid from any appropriation contained herein shall be guilty of a felony and, upon conviction, shall be fined not more than $1,000 or imprisoned for not more than one year, or both: Provided further, That the above penal clause shall be in addition to, and not in substitution for, any other provisions of existing law. 1. Traffic management.—This activity covers the operation on a daily 24-hour basis of a national system of air traffic management in the United States and its possessions. With the aid of radar, communications, and other facilities, traffic management personnel at 37 centers monitor and control enroute flights of civil and military aircraft conducted under instrument conditions to assure safety and to expedite the flow of traffic. Control towers are operated at 257 major civil airports to guide traffic movements on and in the vicinity of the airports. Some 348 domestic and international flight service stations transmit weather and other essential information to pilots, and relay traffic control data between ground controllers and pilots. Major increases in 1963 are for (a) operating newly commissioned air traffic control facilities procured and installed with funds appropriated under Facilities and equipment; (b) new and improved traffic control services; and (c) full-year cost of facilities and services operated on a part-year basis in 1962.

2. Facilities maintenance.—This activity covers the maintenance of a national network of air navigation and traffic control aids in the United States and its possessions. Major increases in 1963 are associated with (a) maintenance of newly commissioned air traffic control and navigation aids; (b) new and improved traffic control communications services; and (c) full-year cost of facilities and services operated on a part-year basis in 1962.

3. Administration of flight standards.—This activity covers the establishment and enforcement of the civil air regulations which are designed to assure high standards of safety in aviation. Inspections are made and certificates issued for aircraft, airmen, aircraft operators, and air agencies that meet safety or competency requirements. Certain facility flight inspection functions are also included in this activity. Increases in 1963 are chiefly for (a) strengthening enforcement of air safety regulations; (b) flight inspection of newly commissioned facilities; (c) training and proficiency flying chiefly for inspectors of jet transport aircraft; (d) operation, major inspection, and overhaul of agency aircraft; and (e) full-year cost of services financed on a part-year basis in 1962.

4. Administration of medical standards.—This covers the development of regulations governing the physical and mental fitness of airmen and other persons whose health affects safety in flight; the development and supervision of a health and medical program for Agency personnel; and the administration of an aviation medical research program, the project costs of which are financed under Research and development. Increases in 1963 relate mainly to a program to provide required medical examinations for air traffic controllers and the operation of the Civil Aeromedical Research Institute Building at Oklahoma City.

5. Research direction.—This activity covers (a) the direction and administration of the research and development program, the direct project costs of which are financed under the Research and development appropriation; and (b) administrative support for the operation of the National Aviation Facilities Experimental Center at Atlantic City, N.J. The 1963 increase provides for the full-year cost of services financed on a part-year basis in 1962.

6. Administration of airport program.—This activity includes costs of administering grants for airport construction; inspection of airport facilities to determine their utility and to assure compliance with law and regulations; the provision of advisory services on airport design and engineering; and the development of standards for airport design and operation.

7. Flight inspection of military facilities.—Included in the activity are the Agency costs associated with the assumption by the Federal Aviation Agency of responsibility for flight inspection of military air-navigation and traffic control facilities.

Under this appropriation, the Federal airways system is being improved by the installation of new equipment and the construction and modernization of facilities. In addition, the appropriation finances major capital items required by other agency programs such as aircraft for facility flight inspection and personnel training, and experimental facilities for the research and development program. The 1963 estimate will carry forward the program to increase the capacity of the airways system and to make its operations more efficient and safe. Operating costs of facilities procured under this appropriation are financed by the appropriation entitled Operations.

The Federal Airport Act, as amended in 1955, provided for contract authorization of $42.5 million for 1956 and $63.0 million for each of the succeeding fiscal years 1957 through 1961. These authorizations continued a program of grants to public agencies to assist them in the development and improvement of a national system of airports to serve civil aviation. It is estimated that an appropriation of $20 million will be required for 1963 to liquidate obligations incurred under these contract authorizations.

Public Law 87-255, approved September 20, 1961, further amended the Federal Airport Act to provide for funding of grants through direct appropriations rather than contract authority. Appropriations proposed pursuant to these new authorizations are shown under heading "Grants-in-aid for airports." The narrative statement for that account includes data on the total airport grant program financed by both contract authorizations and direct appropriations.

GRANTS-IN-AID FOR AIRPORTS

For an additional amount for grants-in-aid for airports pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Airport Act, as amended, [$150,000,000] $75,000,000, to remain available until expended, as follows: for the purposes of section 5(d)(1) of such Act, $66,500,000 for [each of] the fiscal [years 1962 and 1963] year 1964; for the purposes of section 5(d)(2) of such Act, $1,500,000 for [each of] the fiscal [years 1962 and 1963] year 1964; and for the purposes of section 5(d)(3) of such Act, $7,000,000 for [each of] the fiscal [years 1962 and 1963] year 1964. (49 U.S.C. 1101-1106, 1108-1119; Supplemental Appropriation Act, 1962.)

¹ The $75,000 thousand for 1963 was appropriated in the Second Supplemental Appropriation Act of 1962. In addition, $75,000 thousand is being requested for 1964.

Under the Federal Airport Act, grants are made to public agencies to aid the development and improvement of public airports. These grants generally cover 50% of project costs and are limited to facilities deemed essential under criteria of safety, convenience, and efficiency. Contract authorizations were provided for this program through 1961. These authorizations together with the appropriations to liquidate obligations incurred under the authorizations are reflected in the schedules for Grants-in-aid for airports (liquidation of contract authorizations).

Public Law 87-255 amended the Federal Airport Act to provide appropriation authorizations of $75 million for each of the years 1962, 1963, and 1964. This account covers such appropriations.

The following table summarizes activity under both the contract authority and the new program which will be funded by direct appropriations:

The Second Supplemental Appropriation Act of 1962 appropriated $75 million for each of the years 1962 and 1963. An appropriation of $75 million is being proposed in this budget for 1964 to assure that local airport operators have sufficient time for advance planning of future airport improvements.

The Federal Aviation Agency carries out a program to improve and modernize the national system of aviation facilities through the development of new systems, procedures, and devices. The Agency also carries out a program of medical research to aid in the development of rules and regulations governing the certification of airmen and to assure aviation safety.

Research is conducted through contracts with qualified firms, universities, and individuals, or by agency staff or other governmental agencies. The data, procedures, or equipments resulting from this research are evaluated and tested to determine their potential value in meeting future air traffic control and navigation needs.

Supervision and administrative support costs for the research program financed by this appropriation are covered by the Operations appropriation. Costs of acquiring experimental facilities and major equipment for the research program are included in the Facilities and Equipment appropriation.

1. Air traffic control and navigation.—This provides for improving the airways system by adapting existing technology to the air traffic control and navigation problems and by long-range research and development to meet future needs. Studies of present airways system operations and future requirements and work in the fields of data acquisition, communications, navigation, and landing systems are included.

2. Aviation weather.—This provides for a program, coordinated with the Departments of Defense and Commerce, to develop devices and techniques to improve weather services for aviation users. The 1963 program provides for work in the fields of weather data transmission, display and presentation.

3. Aircraft safety.—This activity provides for research, testing, and experimentation on aircraft structures in order to provide a sound basis for airworthiness standards and safety regulations. Work on techniques and devices for airborne collision avoidance will also be conducted.

4. Airports.—This provides for research and experimentation to establish criteria for designing airports. Development and test of equipments located on the airport will also be pursued.

5. Aviation medicine.—This provides for conducting an aeromedical research effort directed toward the identification and elimination of those physical, physiological, and psychological factors which may jeopardize safety in flight.

This appropriation finances management, operation, protection and capital outlay for equipment and maintenance projects for the Washington National Airport. Major construction projects are financed under the appropriation Construction, Washington National Airport. The 1963 estimate provides for an increased level of facility maintenance and servicing.

Direct operating costs and capital outlays of the airport are currently financed by direct appropriations, with revenues received for services to tenants and other users being deposited in the Treasury. Legislation is pending to establish a National Capital Airports Corporation to operate the Washington National and Dulles International Airports.

The following statements reflect the financial results of the total operations at Washington National Airport, including unfunded depreciation and interest on investment on a basis comparable to that of other major commercial airports, and total actual revenue together with amounts representing the value of services furnished other Government agencies without charge. Unrealized revenue represents landing fees for Government aircraft and rent for office and hangar space used by Government agencies for which no collections are made.

Operations at the airport will continue to reflect a sound profit position despite increased costs resulting from the expansion and modernization program commenced in 1961. The continued healthy financial condition may be attributed to the increased revenues that will be realized from the new and more realistic schedules of rates and charges that were implemented during 1962. The following table shows the revenue and expenses of the airport (in thousands of dollars):

This appropriation finances management, operation and protection expenses, together with capital costs of equipment and minor maintenance projects at the Dulles International Airport. Construction of the airport is financed under the appropriation Construction and development, additional Washington airport. The airport is expected to be opened for public use in the fall of calendar year 1962. The 1963 estimate provides for increases in manpower and direct operating costs based on 9 months of full operation during the year.

Direct operating costs and capital outlays of the airport are currently financed by direct appropriations; revenues received for services to tenants and other users will be deposited in the Treasury.

The following statements reflect the financial results of the total operations at the Dulles International Airport, including unfunded depreciation and interest on investment on a basis comparable to that of other major commercial airports, together with revenues realized.

Operations at the airport will result in substantial deficits during the early years of operation when traffic volume will be relatively low. The anticipated schedules of rates and charges to be applied at the airport, however, are being developed to assure the future recovery of operating costs, including interest and depreciation charges, and to provide an equitable return on the Government's investment during the useful life of the facility. The following table shows the revenue and expenses of the airport (in thousands of dollars):

CIVIL SUPERSONIC AIRCRAFT DEVELOPMENT—Continued

The Federal Aviation Agency is conducting a 2-year program of research and development to determine whether the construction of a safe commercial supersonic transport aircraft is technically and economically feasible. The Department of Defense and the National Aeronautics and Space Administration are cooperating in this effort. It is expected that sufficient information will be assembled in late 1963 to serve as a basis for determining whether further Government-supported research and development on such an aircraft would be in the national interest. The $11 million appropriated in fiscal year 1962 will be used to initiate studies of critical technical airframe and engine problems. The 1963 program will continue the applied research effort begun in 1962.

¹ Includes capital outlay as follows: 1961, $2,223 thousand; 1962, $513 thousand; 1963, $1,113 thousand. Excludes adjustment of prior year cost—$25 thousand.
² Selected resources as of June 30 are as follows: Unpaid undelivered orders, 1960, $3,763 thousand (1961 adjustments—$105 thousand); 1961, $1,392 thousand; 1962, $1,000 thousand; 1963, $1,500 thousand.

This appropriation provides for the basic real property operations of General Services Administration. The functions of utilization of excess and disposal of surplus real property were transferred to the new Utilization and Disposal Service on July 1, 1961.

The appropriation request for 1963 is a net increase of $7,650 thousand above a comparable amount for 1962, which includes an estimate anticipated for later transmittal of $1,789 thousand for full-year costs of 1961 wage board rate increases effected between September 18, 1960, and June 30, 1961. The request also includes $81 thousand for full-year costs of wage board increases effected between July 1 and September 16, 1961.

The net increase provides primarily for management and operation of new Federal buildings scheduled for occupancy in 1962 and 1963; annualization of rental and operation costs of additional leased space acquired during 1962 for other agencies with funds transferred from those agencies to cover the part-year costs; and related administrative operations support.

Continuing the policy established in 1962, fund requirements are not included in this estimate for the rental and operation of additional leased space to be acquired during 1963 to support expanding programs of Federal agencies of the Executive Branch, but are included in estimates of the other agencies.

¹ Selected resources as of June 30 are as follows: Unpaid undelivered orders: 1960, $19,773 thousand; (1961 adjustments - $524 thousand); 1961, $27,777 thousand; 1962, $30,859 thousand; 1963, $32,859 thousand.

This appropriation provides for maintaining, repairing, remodeling, improving, and other alterations in federally owned buildings under the jurisdiction of the General Services Administration for these purposes, except extensions and conversions estimated to cost $200 thousand or more. The budget for 1963 provides for continuation of the long-range program initiated in 1957, to alleviate deterioration and obsolescence of buildings which adversely affect efficient operations of occupying agencies.

Fair value of personal property received from other appropriations or funds without cost for use by General Services Administration is as follows: 1961, $54 thousand; 1962, $21 thousand; 1963, $21 thousand.

1. Maintenance repairs.—Normal needs for day-to-day repairs and minor improvements and renovations to buildings and equipment are programed at a rate of about $0.16 per net square foot. About 1.2% of the activity provides for minor capitalized items too small to be considered as renovation projects.

2. Major repair, replacement, modernization, and renovation.—Elimination of major obsolescence and deterioration of buildings is provided by bringing the properties up to modern standards of usefulness to improve working conditions and efficiency in operations of occupying agencies. It is estimated that about 36% of this work will be for capital improvements.

3. Air-conditioning.—Improvements in working conditions are provided for occupants of buildings located in areas of high temperature and humidity. Costs except for amounts required for design and engineering supervision under this activity are considered to be capital improvements.

4. Program direction.—Overall direction and program development are provided under this activity. Except for a nominal sum required for purchases of office equipment the total is considered to be operating cost.

This appropriation provides for financing (a) construction of new public buildings and (b) extension and conversion of existing structures where individual project costs exceed $200 thousand. Expenses for related site acquisition, design, and supervision are provided for under Sites and expenses, public buildings projects. Also authorized under this appropriation are the construction of certain projects for which funds were appropriated in the Independent Offices Appropriation Act of 1959, the purchase of privately owned buildings and sites thereof for continued Government use, prepayment of purchase contracts, and certain alterations to Government-owned buildings.

1. Construction.—The total $1,116 million estimated for this activity includes $941 million for projects previously approved pursuant to the Public Buildings Act of 1959, or other law, and $175 million for additional projects expected to be approved during the 2d session of the 87th Congress. Of the $1,116 million, $615 million is for projects to be started through 1963; the $501 million required to complete represents those projects which will be undertaken in future years. The program for 1962 provides for construction starts on 32 specific projects costing $167.7 million.

The estimate for 1963 provides for construction starts on 33 specific projects costing $155 million, and $0.5 million for unspecified projects. Provision is made in the estimate for construction of fallout shelters, except for border station facilities.

2. Extension and conversion.—Through major extension and conversion projects, existing buildings are brought up to standards and expanded to make them suitable for current and future needs of the tenant agencies. Individual projects involving expenditures of more than $200 thousand are financed under this appropriation while those costing less are financed under Repair and improvement of public buildings.

The program for 1962 includes 6 projects costing $8.2 million. The estimate for 1963 provides for 12 additional projects costing $15.4 million.

3. Acquisition of buildings.—Where economically advantageous to the Government, privately owned leased buildings necessary for continued occupancy by tenant agencies are purchased and lease purchase contracts are prepaid.

While no specific acquisitions are contemplated at this time in 1962 and 1963, economic considerations may justify selected acquisitions.

This appropriation provides for preliminary planning of public buildings projects and for acquisition of sites, preparation of drawings and specifications, supervision of construction, and related costs incident to certain previously approved projects and projects approved under the Public Buildings Act of 1959. Costs of improvements, with minor exceptions, are financed from Construction, public buildings projects.

The program for 1962 contemplates design starts, including acquisition of sites, where necessary, on 46 projects involving improvement costs of $221 million, and review of drawings or supervision of construction on other projects for which funds were previously appropriated.

The estimate of $22 million for 1963 provides for design starts and acquisition of sites, where necessary, for approximately 35 additional projects involving improvement costs in the magnitude of $175 million. Prospectuses for these projects are now being developed for submission to congressional public works committees under provisions of the Public Buildings Act of 1959. Continued administration of other projects will be financed out of funds previously appropriated.

¹ Selected resources as of June 30 are as follows: Unpaid undelivered orders, 1961, $0; 1962, $0; 1963, $2,260 thousand.

This appropriation is to provide additional court facilities as the result of 75 Stat. 80 which authorized the appointment of 73 additional judges. A supplemental appropriation of $2.5 million was enacted in 1962 to provide limited facilities for judges appointed during the last session of Congress and a supplemental estimate for an additional $2.5 million for similar purposes is anticipated for separate transmittal. The 1963 estimate of $9 million includes $8 million to complete the program of providing furniture and facilities for all the new judges, and $1 million for other furniture and space of the U.S. Courts.

Amounts provided for furniture and furnishings, rental of additional space and related costs total $1,045 thousand in 1962 and $2,070 thousand in 1963. Similar costs for agencies in the Executive Branch are budgeted by the agencies rather than by the General Services Administration. Accordingly, these amounts should more appropriately be requested in the budget for the Judiciary. Although this is not being done, appropriate adjustments are made in the summary tables so that these charges are shown in the totals for the Judiciary chapter rather than that for the General Services Administration.

This fund finances, on a reimbursable basis, building management activities consisting of: Management, rental, operation, and protection of Government-owned and leased space in and outside the District of Columbia for housing Federal agencies; recurring repairs to Government-owned space under jurisdiction of General Services Administration; operation of joint-use communication facilities; protection and maintenance of excess and surplus properties; and maintenance and repair of sites or improvements thereon reserved for future construction of Federal buildings, including operation of space occupied by commercial tenants; and other related building services (66 Stat. 594). Retained earnings resulting from operations, after making provision for prior year losses, if any, are paid into the Treasury as miscellaneous receipts.

Operating costs for 1963 are estimated at $338.7 million, a net increase of $30.4 million over 1962, due mainly to work which will be performed for the Post Office Department in connection with its modernization program.

1. Buildings management—(a) Operation and protection of Government-owned space.—Provides for operation and protection of 102.5 million average square feet of space in 1963 compared to 99.4 million square feet in 1962 and 91.8 million in 1961. The change from 1962 reflects net additional space to be serviced due to construction of new buildings and buildings being vacated by the Post Office Department.

(b) Rental, operation, and protection of leased space.—Provides for 36 million average square feet in 1963 compared to 36.4 million in 1962 and 35.9 million in 1961, based on currently projected programs of Federal agencies.

(c) Operation and protection of purchase contract space.—Provides for 1.3 million average square feet in 1963 compared to 1.2 million in 1962 and 1 million in 1961. The increase over 1962 provides for full year costs of the Federal building, Sacramento, Calif., to be completed in November 1961.

2. Moving and space alterations.—Provides for minimum of moving and related alterations based on experience factors derived from buildings management operations.

3. Temporary space and moving costs incident to new buildings.—Provides rents, alterations, etc., incident to setting up temporary quarters for agencies that must be moved to make way for demolition due to construction and moving agencies into temporary space or completed buildings.

4. Operation of communication facilities.—Provides for operation of telecommunication services and facilities for use of Federal agencies.

5. Protection and maintenance, surplus properties.—Provides for protection and maintenance of excess and surplus properties.

6. Maintenance repairs.—Provides for day-to-day maintenance to GSA-operated buildings, Public Health Service facilities, and other Government buildings under jurisdiction of General Services Administration.

7. Security guarding.—Provides extra guarding service for other agencies where specifically authorized by law.

8. Operation and maintenance of sites held for future construction.—Provides for maintenance and repairs of sites or improvements thereon reserved for future construction of Federal buildings, and operation of space occupied by commercial tenants.

9. Job order work.—Provides for special services and improvements to buildings for General Services Administration and other agencies. Increases in 1962 and 1963 are primarily for work which will be performed for the Post Office Department in connection with its modernization program.

10. Other.—Provides for program supervision of repair and improvement operations as distinguished from architectural and design activities initially financed from the Construction services fund, utility services furnished in the District of Columbia to buildings operated by other agencies and utilities to concessionaires.

Operating results and financial condition.—At the end of 1961 the deficit in the fund was —$1.2 million, composed of $3.5 million appropriated, $5.1 million capitalized assets, less $0.6 million loss and $9.2 million unfunded leave liability.

² Selected resources as of June 30 are as follows: Unpaid undelivered orders 1960, $480 thousand; (1961 adjustments, -$120 thousand); 1961, $597 thousand; 1962, $385 thousand; 1963, $524 thousand.

This appropriation provides for (1) establishment of efficient personal property management practices throughout the Federal Government and (2) expenses of operating the nationwide supply system, heretofore provided under Expenses, supply distribution, through which common-use commodities are sold to Government agencies and cost-type contractors from depot stocks, or by direct delivery from suppliers. Most of the purchases of commodities are financed initially from the General supply fund, subject to reimbursement by ordering agencies. Costs of commodities furnished directly from suppliers are paid from funds of the requisitioning agency without involving the General supply fund.

The budget includes an item for separate transmittal under the 1962 appropriation Expenses, supply distribution to provide $488 thousand to adapt General Services Administration supply procedures to accommodate use of the new single line requisitioning and issue system (MILSTRIP) on all orders placed by the military departments. This is consistent with use of the new system by all supply elements of Department of Defense effective July 1, 1962.

The increase for 1963 is due primarily to increased reliance on the General Services Administration by the Department of Defense for supply support for common-use items. Further increases may be required in 1962 and 1963 if the transfer of supply support to the General Services Administration exceeds the level contemplated in the budget.

Fair value of personal property received from other appropriations or funds without cost for use by GSA is as follows: 1961, $54 thousand; 1962, $22 thousand; 1963, $14 thousand.

1. Supply distribution.—Stocks of common-use commodities are received, warehoused and sold at cost to Federal agencies through a nationwide system of supply depots. Stores sales reflect a continuous increase as follows: 1958, $120.7 million; 1959, $145.5 million; 1960, $154.3 million; 1961, $183.2 million; and 1962 and 1963 estimated at $220 million and $258.5 million, respectively.

2. Buying operations.—Commodities are procured to maintain inventories at stores depots to insure availability in advance of sales orders and for direct delivery to agencies. Term contracts for common-use commodities and services are established for large aggregate volume requirements against which agencies place individual orders at uniform price advantages. Total procurement in 1963 is estimated at $1,304.5 million, compared to $1,134.6 million in 1962 and actual purchases of $1,014.4 million in 1961.

3. Quality control operations.—Timely delivery of commodities of specified quality is assured by inspection at contractors' plants or supply depots, by laboratory tests and analyses of samples prior to acceptance, and by contract administration assistance.

4. Procurement policy and supply coordination.—Policies and regulations are promulgated to establish simplified procurement practices and improve supply operations throughout the Government; the Federal Procurement Regulations System is administered; orderly transfers of supply functions are arranged; and Federal agencies are assisted in installation of improved supply procedures.

5. Supply standards.—Standards of quality and other characteristics of common-use commodities are established by specifications, qualified products lists, and uniform item identifications for mandatory use by Government agencies. The accelerated item reduction program begun in 1962, in cooperation with the Department of Defense, will be completed in the latter part of 1963. The increase for 1963 provides for completion of about 64% of civilian agency item identifications as compared to 50% at the end of 1962.

6. Property rehabilitation.—Provides direction over a program to rehabilitate personal property to extend its useful life and reduce new procurement; and develops use, replacement, and maintenance standards.

The increase for 1963 will provide for greater emphasis on this program, including more effective utilization of property now in use to furnish and equip new buildings.

7. Motor vehicle management.—Governmentwide policies and procedures are developed for improving the overall efficiency of the operation of the Government-owned motor vehicle fleet, and assisting the various Federal agencies with motor equipment management. Inter-

This fund finances, on a reimbursable basis, a national supply depot system and a system of ordering supplies for direct delivery to agencies. Supplies or services are sold from the fund at cost to other agencies and the District of Columbia. Related operating expenses are provided for under the appropriation Operating expenses, Federal Supply Service (5 U.S.C. 630g).

Also financed by the fund and reimbursed by the using agencies are operations of interagency motor vehicle pools established in areas of high vehicle density.

Budget program.—The estimates provide for continued increases in sales to the military under the program for progressively expanding use of these supply facilities by Department of Defense, and a slight increase in sales to civilian agencies. Activations of additional interagency motor vehicle pools in 1962 and 1963 are also reflected.

Supply distribution—(a) Stores items.—Stocks of common-use commodities are purchased in volume and stored in supply depots for issue to Government agencies. Sales reached an all-time high of $202.6 million in 1961 and are estimated to increase to $247 million in 1962 and $305.5 million in 1963.

(b) Nonstores items.—Definite quantity requirements of commodities which are not susceptible to economical stocking in supply depots are purchased for direct shipment to customer agencies. Sales through the fund are estimated to increase from $116 million in 1961 to $124.6 million in 1962 and $156.9 million in 1963.

Motor pools.—Services are supplied to agencies through a system of interagency motor pools, still under development, to serve areas of high vehicle density. Sales are estimated to increase from $18.7 million in 1961 to $21 million in 1962 and $21.5 million in 1963 due to activation of additional motor pools. The number of pools in operation is estimated to increase from 60 in 1961 to 74 in 1962 and 75 in 1963.

Rehabilitation and repair of furniture and equipment.—Furniture and equipment repair services, provided through commercial sources wherever feasible and economical, are estimated to increase from $1.6 million in 1961 to $4.2 million in 1962 and $4.9 million in 1963.

Equipment rental.—Operating equipment necessary to carry out the supply distribution activity is acquired and charged on an accrual basis to the using activities. Collections from using activities are expected to remain relatively stable through 1963.

Export packing.—Stores and nonstores items are packed for shipment to oversea destinations. Receipts from this operation are expected to increase from $7.4 million in 1961 to $12 million in 1962 and 1963.

Other revenue and expense.—Gain or losses on equipment disposals, adjustment between fiscal years, inventory writeoffs and discounts are applied against operating costs.

Operating results and financial condition.—Investment of the U.S. Government at the end of 1963 is estimated at $169.8 million, consisting of $148.7 million in direct appropriations, $18.4 million donated assets, $0.6 million capitalized surplus, and retained earnings of $2.2 million, with $0.1 million deducted for long-term leave liability. The estimates reflect $10 million to be requested in a supplemental appropriation in 1962 and $17 million requested for appropriation in 1963, required for continued expansion in warehouse and motor pool sales, equipment investment, and improvement of service to customer agencies.

Additional donated assets arising from transfers of motor vehicles from other agencies upon establishment of interagency motor equipment pools will be capitalized in the fund. Also to be capitalized is the value of inventories to be transferred from the Department of Defense as supply support for common-use commodities is assumed by GSA.

Any operating surplus, as determined by General Accounting Office audit, must be returned to Treasury as miscellaneous receipts. Payments so made in 1962 were $3,685 thousand and it is estimated that $2 million will be returned in 1963.

This fund was established to account for expenses incurred rendering procurement aid to the International Cooperation Administration (22 U.S.C. 1782). Earnings credited to the fund were derived from mutually agreed upon advances based on program workload received. Beginning with 1961, provision was made to finance these expenses from appropriated funds.

Net earnings have been retained to liquidate unpaid obligations in 1962, after which the unobligated balance will be returned to the Agency for International Development, successor to the International Cooperation Administration.

² Selected resources as of June 30 are as follows: Unpaid undelivered orders, 1960, $13 thousand; 1961, $22 thousand; 1962, $53 thousand; 1963, $71 thousand.

This new appropriation provides for all utilization and disposal functions of the General Services Administration with respect to excess and surplus real and personal property to be performed by the Utilization and Disposal Service, established July 1, 1961, except fees of auctioneers, brokers, etc., which are financed through a special account.

Funds for 1962 are provided by transfers from other appropriations corresponding to the transfer of functions to the new Service. Increases for 1963 provide for further emphasis on reuse or prompt disposal of existing real and personal property to obviate new capital and procurement outlays. Income from disposal activities in 1961 was $61.3 million, and is estimated to increase to $72 million in 1962, and $76.6 million in 1963.

Fair value of personal property received from other appropriations or funds without cost for use by GSA is as follows: 1961, $7 thousand; 1962, $8 thousand; and 1963, $10 thousand.

1. Real property.—This activity provides for (a) utilization of excess and disposal of surplus real property, including national industrial reserve properties; (b) protection and maintenance of surplus and national industrial reserve properties; and (c) payments in lieu of taxes on certain properties as required by law. The increase for 1963 is directly related to the current program of phasing out various military installations over a period of years and provides for utilization transfers of 140 properties in 1963 as compared to 135 in 1962 and sale of 375 surplus properties in 1963 as compared to 365 in 1962.

2. Personal property.—This activity provides for (a) utilization of usable excess personal property, thereby obviating new purchases; and (b) sale of surplus personal property. The increase for 1963 provides for screening of all excess inventories held by contractors with the Department of Defense and extending sales responsibility to civil agencies not now served. Utilization transfers at acquisition cost were $310.1 million in 1961 and are estimated at $350 million in 1962 and $400 million in 1963.

Appraisers, auctioneers, and brokers familiar with local markets are used to accelerate the disposal of surplus real and related personal property. Fees of appraisers, auctioneers, and brokers and costs of advertising and surveying are paid out of receipts, subject to a limit of 12% of the proceeds of all dispositions within each year (40 U.S.C.A. 485(b)). Also paid from such proceeds is the direct expense in connection with utilization of excess real and related personal property (68 Stat. 1051). Sales by both auctioneers and brokers amounted to $13 million in 1960, $8 million in 1961, and are estimated at $12 million in 1962 and $18 million in 1963.

² Selected resources as of June 30 are as follows: Unpaid undelivered orders 1960, $159 thousand; (1961 adjustments —$8 thousand); 1961, $300 thousand; 1962, $300 thousand; 1963, $300 thousand.

This appropriation provides for basic operations of the General Services Administration which deal with management of the Government's archives and records, including custody and administration of permanent records in the National Archives and other noncurrent records in Federal records centers, assistance to records management programs of Government agencies, operation of presidential libraries, and filing and publication of Federal laws and regulations. The estimate for 1963 is $532 thousand more than 1962 financing, $340 thousand of which is requested to initiate a records disposal microfilming program.

In 1963 records in custody of the National Archives and Federal records centers will total 8.2 million cubic feet, the equivalent of 1.3 million four-drawer filing cabinets. Reference services will total 5.3 million.

Fair value of personal property received from other appropriations or funds without cost for use by GSA is as follows: 1961, $190 thousand; 1962, $52 thousand; 1963, $51 thousand.

1. Records management and centers.—Records of Federal agencies which must be retained for a period of time, but are not needed for frequent reference, are brought into and administered in regional Federal records centers serving specified geographical areas. National centers at St. Louis administer the service and medical records of veterans of the armed services and records of former civilian employees of the Government, and maintain a locator file for civilians currently employed. In addition to civilian agencies, records center facilities are now furnished to the entire Naval Establishment, the Army, and Air Force at the seat of government, and for selected Army records throughout the world.

The workload in Federal records centers is shown in the following table:

2. Archives and related services.—The permanently valuable records of the Government are selected, arranged, cataloged, preserved, and serviced in the Archives of the United States. Related services consist of (a) publication of the Federal Register and related compilations and the United States Statutes at Large, (b) preservation and servicing of historical materials in presidential libraries, and (c) servicing the National Historical Publications Commission. The increases in 1963 are requested for annualization of the Eisenhower Library and full-year operation of the Hoover Library.

3. Microfilming.—Archival materials retained because of their unique informational value are preserved on microfilm, thus alleviating the critical space situation in the National Archives Building. The sum of $340 thousand is requested to begin records filming about December 1962, and $600 thousand will be required to continue this program on an annual basis. This program would result in the preservation on microfilm of between 12,000 and 15,000 cubic feet of records annually, equal to about 25% of the estimated annual increment of permanent records in the Federal Government. This assumes that of the 3 million cubic feet of records created annually, about 2% will be preserved permanently.

The Defense Materials Service acquires and administers national stockpile inventories pursuant to the Strategic and Critical Materials Stock Piling Act, and has custody of the supplemental stockpile established by the Agricultural Trade Development and Assistance Act of 1954. Programs are administered in accordance with guidelines established by the Office of Emergency Planning. This Service also administers the inventory of machine tools and industrial manufacturing equipment established under the National Industrial Reserve Act of 1948. The Department of Defense makes selections for the reserve and provides program guidance.

The 1963 obligational program of $38 million is to provide $3.1 million for new material acquisition and upgrading of existing materials required to meet stockpiling objectives, $30 million for inventory management and rotation of material subject to deterioration, $1.9 million for national industrial equipment reserve activities, and $3 million operating expenses. Increases in the warehousing (including relocation) and disposal programs are more than offset by reductions in the acquisition and rotation programs, resulting in a net reduction of $1.98 million in obligations in 1963 from 1962. The Strategic and critical materials appropriation became an annual account in 1961; therefore, no unobligated balance is available for 1962 or 1963 requirements.

In arriving at requirements to meet stockpile objectives, all U.S. Government inventories of strategic materials in General Services Administration custody are taken into account. Data below reflect the extent to which national stockpile objectives as of June 30, 1961, are provided: (a) From financing under the Strategic and Critical Materials Stock Piling Act, and (b) under all U.S. Government programs involving strategic materials.

Basic objectives are valued at $2,174.7 million and maximum objectives at $4,447.5 million. June 30, 1961, prices have been used.

(b) Upgrading materials.—Stockpile materials are upgraded to more usable forms in order to provide a minimum readiness inventory of materials in forms suitable for immediate use to meet the initial surge of demand and abnormal conditions of intensive mobilization.

2. Inventory management.—This activity covers costs of maintaining materials in the national and supplemental stockpiles so that they will be available for immediate use in an emergency, including rotation, storage, special preservation, and disposal of materials no longer required for stockpile objectives.

Acquisition cost of these inventories is as follows (in millions of dollars):

	1961 actual	1963 estimate
National stockpile.....	6,107.2	5,973.5
U.S. supplemental stockpile.....	950.6	1,300.6

(a) Rotation of materials.—Perishable materials in the national stockpile are rotated periodically to prevent deterioration and replaced with fresh materials to maintain the quality of the stockpile. Materials to be rotated in 1963 are the cordage fibers and sperm oil. Rotation sales and costs are as follows (in thousands of dollars):

	1961 actual	1962 estimate	1963 estimate
Gross replacement costs of materials rotated.....	8,525	17,104	14,507
Rotation sales.....	7,165	14,184	12,001

(b) Storage of materials.—Strategic and critical materials were stored at 213 locations as of June 30, 1961, utilizing approximately 25 million square feet of closed storage; 62 million square feet of open storage; and 2 million barrels of tank storage. Materials in the national and supplemental stockpiles totaled approximately 36.8 million tons on June 30, 1961, and it is expected that approximately 3.5 million tons a year will be added to the supplemental stockpile in 1962 and 1963. Distribution of storage costs is as follows (in thousands of dollars):

[In thousands of dollars]

	1961 actual	1962 estimate	1963 estimate
Total cost.....	720	1,986	2,171

Disposals from the national stockpile in 1961 totaled approximately $42.2 million for more than 98,000 short tons of materials, including rubber, coconut oil, gem diamonds, hog bristles, cadmium-magnesium alloy, nickel-cobalt-copper calcines and matte, and waterfowl feathers and down.

In 1962 and 1963, it is estimated that a total of approximately 200 thousand short tons of excess materials in the national stockpile will be disposed of each year. In accordance with existing Office of Emergency Planning authorizations, disposals are planned for materials in excess of revised stockpile objectives such as rubber, feathers and down, cordage fibers, and castor oil; materials removed from the stockpiling list such as coconut and palm oils; and various lots of subspecification metals, minerals, ores, and other materials which were primarily acquired as surplus transfers from other Government agencies in the early years of the stockpile program. It is expected that additional disposal authorizations will be received from Office of Emergency Planning.

3. National industrial equipment reserve.—The reserve of Government-owned machine tools and other industrial manufacturing equipment authorized by the National Industrial Reserve Act of 1948 consists entirely of items selected by the Secretary of Defense from lists of such property declared excess to the needs of the three military departments and other executive agencies.

Items in the national industrial equipment reserve are intended primarily for expansion in an emergency of defense-supporting industries such as manufacturers of ball bearings, gears, tools and dies, and machine tools. Each of the military departments also maintains a reserve of production equipment for current and mobilization requirements of direct military contractors and producers specifically designated as mobilization suppliers.

The Department of Defense estimates that total selections for the National industrial equipment reserve from excess declarations of production equipment will approximate 2,000 items in 1962 and 1,500 items in 1963. Budget estimates are based on those selection rates.

During 1961 the Department of Defense authorized and General Services Administration entered into loan agreements with vocational schools for equipment in the NIER where such loans are in the interest of national defense.

4. Operating expenses.—Covers all expenses at the central and regional office levels for administering programs financed under this appropriation head including the Defense Materials Service and the integrated staff offices of General Services Administration. The Central American abaca production program authorized by U.S.C. 541 has been administered by General Services Administration since July 1, 1954. The program was completed in 1960 and all assets sold. Final liquidation has been delayed due to a contingent liability of approximately $96 thousand pending in the U.S. Court of Claims. The program has $101 thousand in cash as of June 30, 1961. Final remittance to Treasury will be made after settlement of this claim.

Guarantees are given on loans made by public or private financing institutions, including Federal Reserve banks, to facilitate performance of defense production contracts. Upon demand of lending institutions the Government is required to purchase the guaranteed percentage of the loan or the Government may elect to make a voluntary purchase of the guaranteed percentage. Advances from appropriations available for procurement may be made to this fund for its temporary use, although such action has not been necessary to date. Net earnings are retained to meet possible future losses. (50 U.S.C. App. 2091).

The Government's maximum contingent liability as guarantor on two loans now in effect is estimated to be $9.9 million at the end of 1963, compared to $19.6 million on one loan June 30, 1961. In addition, the Government has a commitment to guarantee $21 million on a new loan and $23.8 million under a refinancing agreement covering one loan now in effect. Retained earnings are estimated to be $6.4 million at the end of 1963.

Under the provisions of Reorganization Plan No. 1 of 1957, the Reconstruction Finance Corporation was abolished as a corporate entity and the remaining functions of the Smaller War Plants Corporation and the World War II assets program were transferred to the General Services Administration for final liquidation.

Operations.—It is anticipated that there will continue during 1963 the servicing of leases and conditional sales agreements covering 11 facilities, plus servicing of 34 other miscellaneous assets. Financial and legal servicing will also be required on 6 liabilities, plus approximately 50 cases in the hands of the Department of Justice under the complex food subsidy program.

Operating results.—Proceeds from liquidation will be paid into miscellaneous receipts of the Treasury.

¹ Includes capital outlay as follows: 1961, $146 thousand; 1962, $108 thousand; 1963, $54 thousand. Excludes adjustments of prior year costs.

² Selected resources as of June 30 are as follows: Unpaid undelivered orders, 1960, $181 thousand (1961 adjustments, -$64 thousand); 1961, $223 thousand; 1962, $300 thousand; and 1963, $400 thousand.

This management fund provides for (1) an integrated staff organization to perform customary financial, administrative and legal services for all General Services Administration programs and for certain programs of other agencies and commissions under service agreements, and (2) a unified automatic data processing system in support of program operations.

These activities are financed through this fund by payments from various appropriations and funds for the programs serviced. Customary staff services for GSA programs are limited to those amounts included in the individual program appropriations for that purpose. The proposed appropriation language provides that reimbursements, including automatic data processing services, be excluded from the statutory limitation on administrative operations.

As the various operating programs increase in size, the workload generated requires expansions in related automatic data processing and customary staff services. Thus, in 1963, the budgeted increases in operating programs make provision for these supporting activities at minimum levels. The unit cost for handling the increased volume of workload in 1963 is below comparable unit costs in prior fiscal years.

Central blueprinting, photostating, duplicating, and distribution services are financed by a working capital fund pending reimbursements (40 U.S.C. 293). To meet the needs of General Services Administration and other Federal agencies, the Joint Committee on Printing, U.S. Congress, authorized the establishment of four field printing plants in General Services Administration regional offices in addition to the plant in Washington, D.C. All reproduction and distribution services in General Services Administration regional offices, as well as those provided by General Services Administration field printing plants, are financed through this fund.

Operating results.—Surplus earnings are deposited into miscellaneous receipts of the Treasury. Through June 30, 1961, a total of $70 thousand has been deposited, and it is estimated that $17 thousand and $10 thousand will be deposited in 1962 and 1963, respectively.

The Housing Act of 1954, as amended (40 U.S.C. 461) authorizes the Administrator to make matching planning grants to assist State and local governments in solving planning problems resulting from increasing concentration of population in metropolitan and other urban areas, including smaller communities, and to facilitate comprehensive planning for urban development by State and local governments on a continuing basis. Grants are made chiefly to State planning agencies for the provision of planning assistance to communities under 50,000 population and to State, metropolitan, and regional planning agencies authorized to carry on regional or metropolitan planning.

Amendments in the Housing Act of 1961 (75 Stat. 170) broadened the urban planning assistance program as follows:

1. The amount of the grant was increased from one-half to two-thirds of the estimated cost of the work for which the grant is made;

2. The authorization for appropriations was increased from $20 million to $75 million;

3. A statement was inserted in the definition of comprehensive planning to clarify and emphasize the fact that mass transportation planning may be undertaken within comprehensive planning;

4. The Administrator is authorized to provide technical assistance to State and local governments and their agenies undertaking comprehensive planning, and to make studies and publish information on related problems.

The Area Redevelopment Act (75 Stat. 58) further amends Sec. 701:

1. To permit direct grants to cities, other municipalities, and counties in redevelopment areas, regardless of size, and
2. To allow three-fourths grants for such cities, municipalities, and counties either directly or through a State planning agency.

The Housing Act of 1961 (75 Stat. 166, 173) authorizes grants for mass transportation demonstration projects payable out of the Urban renewal fund and long-term loans under the authority of the Public facility loan fund. The appropriation made available in the Supplemental Appropriation Act, 1962, encompasses funds for demonstration grants, long-term loans, and administrative expenses in connection with both of these functions. In this budget, appropriate amounts are shown in the schedules as transferred from this appropriation to the revolving funds established by substantive legislation; this account for 1963 accordingly covers only administrative expenses in connection with mass transportation demonstration grants. The legislation authorizing long-term loans expires on December 31, 1962.

Continuing program activity under revised legislation is anticipated for separate transmittal.

Title IV of the Housing Act of 1950, as amended (12 U.S.C. 1749), provides for direct long-term loans at low interest rates to assist institutions of higher education in the development of housing and related facilities for students and faculty, and to hospitals for housing facilities for nurses and interns. The program is funded by a Treasury borrowing authorization. Under the Housing Act of 1961, the authorization—currently $1,975 million—will increase in increments of $300 million each in 1963, 1964, and 1965. Interest rates are set by statute at the higher of 2.75% or 0.25% above the average rate on the total outstanding debt. The current rate is 3%.

Budget program.—A fund reservation is made after approval of an application filed to determine general eligibility and feasibility of a project. The reservation assures availability of loan funds to the applicant at the completion of Agency review of loan application. The following table shows funds available and net reservations issued (in thousands of dollars):

After execution of the contracts, the institutions proceed with final plans and specifications, award of construction contracts, and preparation of bond indentures.

Financing.—Bond purchases are estimated at $270 million in the current year and $393 million in the budget year. Purchase of bonds ordinarily occurs when construction is well advanced. Disbursements are based on the following projected construction schedule:

Budgetary expenditures total $250 million and $375 million for 1962 and 1963 respectively, including bond purchases, repayments of loans, and net operating receipts.

Operating results and financial condition.—Net earnings of $964 thousand are estimated for the budget year. Cumulative deficit is estimated to be further reduced in subsequent years.

The Housing Amendments of 1955 (65 Stat. 635, 642) and amendments thereto authorize a program of loans to assist local governments and their agencies to finance construction of specific public works, and pursuant to the Housing Act of 1961 (75 Stat. 149, 175), loans for the provision of mass transportation facilities. The program is funded by a Treasury borrowing authorization aggregating $650 million—of which not more than $50 million is available for mass transportation facilities. The basic program for public facilities extends priority in processing to small municipalities and to water, sewage, and gas-distribution systems unable to market their obligations in the private market at reasonable rates. Public facility loans may run for as long as 40 years and are secured by tax-exempt revenue or general obligation bonds. Interest rates previously established by the Administrator are now based on statutory formula—the average interest rate on all interest-bearing obligations of the United States computed at the end of the preceding year plus one-half of one percent—and will be 3½% for regular public facility loans in 1962.

Budget program.—Loan approvals for public facility loans are estimated at $60 million for the current year and $100 million for the budget year; for transportation facility loans, approvals are estimated at $26.5 million and $23.5 million, respectively. The following table shows the relation of this program to available funds (in thousands of dollars):

After loan approval, the locality proceeds with preparation of final plans and specifications, award of construction contracts, construction, and preparation of bond indentures and marketing of bonds in the private market or sale to the Government.

Financing.—Budgetary expenditures total $28 million and $59 million for 1962 and 1963 respectively, and at the end of the budget year it is estimated that Treasury notes outstanding will amount to $125 million.

Operating results.—Cumulative deficit at the end of 1963 totals $4.2 million of which $1.3 million represents an increase in allowance for losses for the current and budget years at the rate of 2% on loans disbursed. Loans disbursed are estimated at $28.1 and $60.0 million for the two years.

The Housing Act of 1954 (40 U.S.C. 462) established a program of interest free advances to State and local public agencies for the planning of local public works. The program has been revised by the Housing Amendments of 1955 and the Housing Act of 1961 (75 Stat. 149, 175).

Advances are made only if the project is planned to be constructed within a reasonable period of time, considering the nature of the project. The project must be in conformity with applicable State, regional, and local development plans. The following table shows funds available for approval of advances during the budget period (in thousands of dollars):

Financing.—The program is financed by an authorized revolving fund of $58 million of which $43 million has been appropriated to date. Cumulative repayments through 1961 amounted to $10.2 million. Repayments are estimated at $5 million in 1962 and $7 million in 1963. Estimated net approvals in the budget year amount to $20 million requiring an appropriation of $13 million.

Net budget expenditures are estimated at $7.05 million for the current year and $8.05 million for the budget year.

The Independent Offices Appropriation Act, 1955, established a single revolving fund for the more efficient liquidation of a number of Housing and Home Finance Agency programs as well as any other programs that may be transferred by legislation.

At June 30, 1961, the assets remaining to be liquidated consisted of loans, advances, installment sales contracts, and related assets having a net asset value of $19.4 million and properties with a net value of $1.7 million. The budget program centers on the accounting, servicing, and collection pertaining to these assets. Cumulative repayments to Treasury will total $888 million by the end of the budget year. URBAN RENEWAL

The Housing Act of 1949, as amended, authorizes Federal assistance to local governments for acquisition, clearance, and redevelopment of slums and blighted areas, and for conservation and rehabilitation of areas not requiring clearance action. Under the statute, Federal grants defray two-thirds of net project cost, except in cities with a population of less than 50,000 (or 150,000, if located in a designated redevelopment area), where the Federal share is three-fourths for projects approved after enactment of the Housing Act of 1961.

Prior to the Housing Act of 1961, $2 billion in contract authority for urban renewal grants had been authorized. The Housing Act of 1961 increased this total authorization to $4 billion; accordingly, no new obligational authority is anticipated for 1963. Temporary project financing and long-term financing of land disposed of under lease agreements through direct or guaranteed loans are provided through Treasury borrowing authorization of $1 billion.

As a condition precedent to Federal assistance, a community is required to develop a workable program for community improvement, intended to provide for eliminating blight and achieving a stable, well-planned community with well-organized neighborhoods. The Administrator's certification of this program is made for 1 year, and annual recertification based on demonstrated satisfactory progress is required for continued eligibility for additional Federal assistance.

The budget is based on the following volume of workable program activity:

Since grants are nearly a complete measure of Government program costs, the program and financing schedule for grants and an outline of associated activities are presented first. This is followed by a similar schedule and discussion of the loan assistance portion of the program, and combined financial statements for the entire program.

Budget program.—An administrative reservation of contract authority for grants is made at the time approval is given for planning a project, or for a more general neighborhood planning program looking toward one or more specific project applications. This is done to assure availability of grant assistance after a considerable period of time and after the substantial community investment required for planning an urban renewal project. In the typical case, it is estimated that planning will require about 18 months. It is estimated that new reservations and needed increases in existing reservations will total $700 million during the current year and $600 million in 1963. The following table reflects project planning activity during the 3 years:

The execution phase covers a period of several years, during which Federal grant progress payments are made as substantial action is completed, both with respect to the project itself and the provision of the local share of project cost. These progress payments permit the retirement of temporary project financing, thus achieving savings in interest cost to the project. The budget recommends appropriation of $325 million for the payment in 1963 of grants under prior contracts, as compared with $200 million appropriated for this purpose for the current year.

Federal grants are made to communities for renewal projects and for special demonstration projects reporting on improved methods of dealing with the problems of urban blight. Grants are also made for community renewal programs with longer range objectives, including the identification of blighted or deteriorating areas, the extent of need and resources available for appropriate action, and the scheduling of local renewal activities. The following table shows the estimated activity in connection with such community renewal programs:

Federal grants defray the actual costs of relocation, including actual direct losses of property, for families and businesses displaced from urban renewal areas, up to a maximum of $200 per family and the actual certified costs in the case of businesses. Estimates of relocation grants for projects reaching the execution stage are shown in the following table (in thousands of dollars):

The Housing Act of 1961 authorized the use of not to exceed $25 million of the contract authority in title I of the Housing Act of 1949, as amended, for grants to assist demonstration projects aimed at the reduction of urban transportation needs and provision of improved mass transportation services. Funds for the current year for payments of grants made pursuant to this authorization were provided in a special appropriation. The budget for 1963 includes an estimate of $5 million in the appropriation to the urban renewal fund for payment of such grants.

Budget program.—The Treasury borrowing authority permits loan assistance in financing the planning and execution of urban renewal projects by the following types of commitments:

1. Planning advances.—Advances are made to cover planning costs directly associated with the project. These are repayable, with interest, from project funds.

2. Temporary loans.—Initial financing under the contract is usually provided through short-term direct Federal loans. Thereafter the local public agency generally relies upon private borrowings secured by pledge of the Federal loan commitment. Temporary loans are repaid from the proceeds of land sales and from local and Federal cash grants.

3. Definitive loans.—At the option of the community, disposition of project land may be accomplished through long-term leases in lieu of sale. In such cases, commitments are issued to secure private financing for the net value of redeveloped land. It is estimated that $15 million will be used for the purpose both in 1962 and in 1963.

The loan commitments cover total expenditures by the local public agency in carrying out the project. However, experience demonstrates that only a minor portion of the Federal loan commitment is outstanding at any one time as a direct Federal loan, since project expenditures take place over several years and early borrowings are retired progressively from local and Federal grants and from the sale of land in portions of the project prepared for reuse. In addition, private financing obtained with a pledge of the Federal loan commitment as security is relied upon as the major source of funds for temporary loans and for all definitive loans. The law recognizes that demand on Federal funds will not equal or even approach commitments made. Thus, Federal loan commitments of $299.8 million in 1963 are reflected in a maximum probable Federal exposure of $75 million.

The following table shows the status of total Federal loan commitments at the end of each of the years covered by this budget (in thousands of dollars):

Total Federal loans and loan commitments at end of year.....	1,384,312	1,612,800	1,912,600

Guaranteed non-Federal loans outstanding.....	713,348	953,400	1,274,200
Unutilized.....	592,406	570,800	539,800

Financing.—Borrowing authority previously committed is restored through transactions of the following four types: (a) repayment of planning advances; (b) repayment of temporary loans from project settlement funds, which include proceeds from the sale of land, Federal grants, and local grants; (c) cancellation of temporary loan commitments by waivers permitting the use of project settlement funds as a substitute for additional loans; and (d) retirement of commitments as a result of the repayment of guaranteed non-Federal loans from project settlement funds.

The full amount of repayments of planning advances is included in the program and financing schedule for all 3 years. The repayment, cancellation, and retirement of temporary loans is figured on the same ratio to gross recoveries as is Federal exposure to Federal loan commitments. This ratio (now 25%) is fixed by the Administrator. Repayments of Federal temporary loans from the proceeds of non-Federal guaranteed loans are not reflected on the program and financing statement since the reduction in Federal loan balances is offset by an increase in undisbursed commitments. Such repayments are shown in the statement of sources and application of funds.

Operating results.—The Housing Act of 1959 authorizes the use of grant appropriations to repay the Treasury borrowing to avoid the creation of a deficit through a disparity between interest earnings and the losses on planning advances and interest for terminated projects.

As the analysis below indicates, the deficit resulting from capital grant payments and from uncollectible planning advances for terminated projects has been offset by appropriations made for the purpose.

Pursuant to the Atomic Energy Community Act of 1955 (69 Stat. 471), the Housing and Home Finance Agency administers the disposal and financing of Government-owned residential and commercial properties at the Atomic Energy Commission installations of Oak Ridge, Tennessee, and Richland, Washington.

Budget program and results of operation.—Disposal of some 11,700 parcels with an appraised value of $80.3 million will be completed by June 30, 1962. Preparation of final accountability reports and a history of the sales and financing program is contemplated in the budget year. Total repayment of Government investment will amount to $63.6 million after deduction of statutory allowances for priority purchasers totalling $17.3 million. Cumulative net earnings are estimated at $0.7 million.

The Housing Act of 1959 and amendments as provided by the Housing Act of 1961 (75 Stat. 149, 175), establishes a program of direct loans for housing for the elderly. Loans for rental housing and related facilities for elderly families and persons are to be made to private nonprofit corporate sponsors, cooperatives and those public bodies and agencies which certify they are not receiving Federal financial assistance exclusively for public housing. The housing and related facilities may be provided through new construction or through the acquisition and rehabilitation or conversion of existing structures. Loans may be made for the total development cost and must be repaid over a period not exceeding 50 years. Loans bear interest at a rate set by statutory formula each year; for 1962 the rate is 3%.

Financing.—Appropriations of $125 million are authorized and the budget assumes legislation to increase this authorization. To date $80 million has been appropriated and an additional $100 million is estimated for the budget year. Of this amount $45 million would be provided under the existing authorization and $55 million under proposed legislation. FEDERAL NATIONAL MORTGAGE ASSOCIATION

The Association, operating under the Federal National Mortgage Association Charter Act (12 U.S.C. 1716, et seq.) purchases, lends on the security of, manages, and sells residential mortgages that are insured by the Federal Housing Administration or guaranteed by the Veterans Administration; it also manages and sells certain non-insured or nonguaranteed mortgages that have been or may be acquired from authorized sources. Under amendments made to the original enactment by the Housing Act of 1954, the Association's functions are carried out through three programs for which separate accountability is required by statute. These programs—secondary market operations, special assistance functions, and management and liquidating functions—are described in the following sections:

Note.—Expenditures from the following funds for 1962 are subject to the first paragraph of title II of the Independent Offices Appropriation Act, 1962. For 1963 this paragraph is shown in the Independent Agencies chapter, p. 802, following Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation.

The secondary market operations of the Federal National Mortgage Association were authorized by the Housing Act of 1954 to provide limited liquidity for Government insured and guaranteed mortgages and to improve the distribution of investment capital available for home mortgage financing. This assistance to the secondary market for home mortgages is provided by the purchase and sale of mortgages insured by the Federal Housing Administration or guaranteed by the Veterans Administration on or after August 2, 1954, that are of such quality, type, and class as meet generally the purchase standards imposed by private institutional mortgage investors. Purchases and sales may be made only at such prices and on such terms as will reasonably prevent excessive use of the Association's facilities and will permit the operations to be conducted on a fully self-supporting basis.

The Association, under its secondary market operations, was authorized by the Housing Act of 1961 (75 Stat. 149) to make short-term loans secured by Federal Housing Administration insured or Veterans Administration guaranteed mortgages. The volume of the Association's lending activities and the establishment of its loan ratios, interest rates, maturities, and charges or fees are required to be determined by Federal National Mortgage Association from time to time with the objective of reasonably preventing excessive use of the Association's facilities and of assuring that the operations will be fully self-supporting.

The authorizing statute contemplates that the secondary market operations will ultimately be completely owned and financed by private participants. Accordingly, these operations are treated in the budget as a trust enterprise and the financial statements related thereto appear in part 2 of this document.

The secondary market operations were initially capitalized by the issuance of $92.8 million of Federal National Mortgage Association preferred stock to the Secretary of the Treasury. Subsequently, increased preferred stock subscriptions by the Secretary of the Treasury, amounting to $50 million (Public Law 85-10, approved March 27, 1957) and $65 million (Public Law 85-104, approved July 12, 1957) were authorized. Authorized preferred stock has actually been subscribed only as needed to support the Association's borrowing. At the end of 1961, authorized unissued stock amounted to $49 million. These estimates contemplate the subscription of an additional $17 million in preferred stock in 1962 and of $18 million in 1963.

The preferred stock will be retired as rapidly as feasible and, in the meantime, the Association will pay dividends on the utilized portion to the Treasury at rates determined by the Secretary of the Treasury. Private capitalization for these operations is accumulated pursuant to a statutory requirement which provides that sellers of mortgages to the Association must subscribe to common stock in an amount equal to not more than 2% or less than 1% of the unpaid principal amounts of the mortgages involved, as determined from time to time by the Association, taking into consideration conditions in the mortgage market and the general economy; borrowers are required to purchase the Association's common stock in an amount equal to not more than 1/2 of 1% of the amounts borrowed.

Recommendations for legislation to transfer ownership of the secondary market operations of the Association to private owners of capital stock must be submitted to the Congress as promptly as practicable after all the Treasury-held preferred stock has been retired.

The Association is authorized to finance its secondary market operations through borrowing from the public on the security of nonguaranteed debentures and short-term discount notes. Such obligations may not exceed the lesser of: (a) ten times the sum of the capital and surplus applicable to these operations; or (b) the sum of assets free from any liens or incumbrances, represented by cash, mortgages or other security holdings, and obligations of the United States or guaranteed thereby or obligations which are lawful investments for fiduciary, trust, or public funds. The Secretary of the Treasury, so long as the preferred stock is outstanding, is authorized to purchase such obligations in an amount not exceeding $2.25 billion outstanding at any one time.

Budget program.—The secondary market operations established in 1955, are now fully recognized by the home mortgage market and have reached significant levels.

The prices at which mortgages are purchased under these operations are established by the Association within the range of market prices for the particular class of mortgages involved. In establishing its purchase prices, the Association follows the policies and practices of private institutions and varies such prices by geographic location of the mortgaged property, interest rate of the loan, the ratio of the purchaser's equity to the value or cost of the subject property, the length of the term of the loan, and other factors. This budget assumes that mortgages will be purchased during 1962 and 1963 at average discounts of 2.1 and 1.8 points, respectively, below their face value and that sales will be made at an average price of 0.6 point above the purchase price.

Financing.—Substantial interim Treasury borrowings will be necessary during 1962 and 1963, but the proceeds of borrowings from the public through the sale of debentures and short-term discount notes are expected to provide the funds necessary to repay Treasury borrowings in the year in which made. Additional financing will be obtained from the sale of mortgages to the investing public, from subscriptions of common stock by program participants, from repayments and prepayments of mortgage principal and from earnings. No retirements of preferred stock are estimated for the period covered in this budget.

Operating results.—Operations are reflected in budget expenditures only to the extent of Treasury financing.

Federal National Mortgage Association is authorized to provide special assistance to the extent that the President has determined that it is in the public interest for the financing of: (1) selected types of home mortgages (pending establishment of their marketability) originated under special housing programs designed to provide housing of acceptable standards at full economic costs for segments of the national population which are unable to obtain adequate housing under established home-financing programs, and (2) home mortgages generally as a means of retarding or stopping a decline in mortgage lending and home-building activities which threatens materially the stability of a high-level national economy. The Association is authorized, for these purposes, to make commitments to purchase and to purchase Federal Housing Administration insured and Veterans Administration guaranteed mortgages up to $2,046.6 million outstanding at any one time; prior to the Housing Act of 1961, such authority totaled $950 million. The overall increase resulted from a general increase of $750 million in special assistance authority, the transfer from the management and liquidating functions of $139.4 million of authority represented by the net amount by which that portfolio was decreased during 1961, and of $207.2 million of authority transferred from the low and moderate priced housing program established by Public Law 85-364. The special assistance authority will be further increased by approximately $135 million in 1962, 1963, and 1964, representing the net amount by which the portfolio of the management and liquidating functions will be reduced during each of those years.

In addition to the special programs the Association may undertake pursuant to specific direction of the President, the Association, by express legislation, is also authorized to enter into commitments to purchase and to purchase mortgages on cooperative housing insured under section 213 of the National Housing Act, as amended, up to a limit of $225 million outstanding at any one time; to make commitments to purchase and to purchase mortgages on armed services housing insured under title VIII of that act, up to a limit of $500 million outstanding at any one time; and, within a limitation of $1 billion outstanding at any one time, to make commitments to purchase and to purchase Federal Housing Administration insured and Veterans Administration guaranteed mortgages of $13,500 or less covering low and moderate priced housing on which construction had not commenced at the time application was made for Federal National Mortgage Association commitment. Commitment and purchasing authority under this last program was terminated by the Housing Act of 1961.

The prices paid for mortgages under these functions are established by the Association at the time of the announcement of each individual program, but they may be adjusted thereafter from time to time. Commitments to purchase mortgages and immediate purchases are currently made within a 99-100 price range.

Federal National Mortgage Association special assistance functions are financed principally by Treasury borrowings, and all the benefits and burdens of the program inure solely to the Secretary of the Treasury.

Budget program.—During 1962 and 1963, Federal National Mortgage Association will provide special assistance, under Presidential determination, in respect to housing: (1) in or supporting urban renewal areas; (2) for the elderly; (3) in Alaska and Guam; (4) for victims of major disasters; (5) for low and moderate income families; (6) incorporating experimental types of materials, design, construction methods and property standards; and (7) involving individually owned units in multifamily structures (Condominium housing). In addition, cooperative and armed services housing will receive limited assistance.

Sales from portfolio, which amounted to $17 million in 1961, are estimated at $10 million during 1962 and $10 million in 1963.

Financing.—Net borrowings from the Treasury were $143 million in 1961 and are estimated at $150 million in 1962 and $320 million in 1963, thereby increasing the interest-bearing investment of the Government to $2,232 million at the end of 1963.

Operating results.—Customarily, earnings are retained and paid into miscellaneous receipts of the Treasury following the year earned. A payment of $189 thousand was made in 1957, another payment of $2,445 thousand was made in 1958. However, in order to protect the Association against losses inherent in a portfolio of this size, earnings will be retained and accumulated for so long as may be warranted. The following table shows the cumulative amounts at the end of each year covered by these estimates (in thousands of dollars):

The Association, in its management and liquidating functions, is required by law to manage and liquidate its portfolio of mortgages acquired under contracts made before November 1, 1954, and those other mortgages that have been or may be acquired from authorized sources (73 Stat. 670). Such liquidation is to be conducted in an orderly manner, with a minimum of adverse effect upon the home mortgage market and minimum loss to the Federal Government. Liquidation of the portfolio is accomplished through regular repayments according to their amortization schedules, sales of mortgages as rapidly as they can be absorbed by private investors without serious disruption of normal market conditions, and as the result of other principal credits arising from prepayments and foreclosures.

The initial mortgage purchasing phase of this activity has been completed and normally only the management and ultimate liquidation of the portfolio would need to be completed. However, additional mortgages will be acquired for this portfolio from time to time pursuant to the provisions of Public Law 86-372.

Under the Housing Act of 1961 an amount equal to the net decrease for the preceding year in the aggregate principal amount of all mortgages owned by the Association under its management and liquidating functions will as of July 1 of each of the years 1961 through 1964, be transferred to and merged with the authority provided for the Association's special assistance functions under Public Law 83-560. The amount transferred on July 1, 1961, was $139.4 million; the amount estimated to be transferred on July 1, 1962, is $137.3 million.

Budget program.—There will be no mortgages purchased under commitments made prior to November 1, 1954, for this portfolio during the period covered by these estimates. That purchasing program was completed during 1958. Acquisitions under Public Law 86-372 during 1962 and 1963 are estimated at $0.1 million and $0.4 million, respectively.

Mortgages in the amount of $5.2 million were sold during 1961. There are no sales contemplated for 1962 and 1963.

Net liquidation of mortgage principal resulting from repayments, prepayments, foreclosures, and transfers in lieu of foreclosures are estimated to amount to $137.3 million in 1962 and to $135.9 million in 1963, and will reduce the portfolio by those amounts.

Financing.—As of June 30, 1960, outstanding notes of the management and liquidating functions held by private investors amounted to $797.4 million. These non-guaranteed notes were issued to the public in January 1958 and matured in August 1960. These notes were redeemed by borrowing from Treasury, thus increasing the indebtedness of the Association to Treasury by that amount. These estimates make no provision for the sale of additional notes to private investors.

Net Treasury borrowings during the period covered by this budget were $721.7 million in 1961 and net repayments of Treasury borrowings are estimated at $110.0 million and $144.0 million in 1962 and 1963, respectively.

Operating results.—As a consequence of a reduction in the outstanding portfolio of the management and liquidating functions, and the refinancing on July 1, 1962, of one of its Treasury held notes, estimated net income in 1963 ($7.1 million) will decline from the amount estimated for 1962 ($16.8 million) and the actual amount for 1961 ($17.8 million).

All benefits and burdens of the management and liquidating functions inure solely to the Secretary of the Treasury. Retained earnings reserved for losses and contingencies at the end of 1961 amounted to $170.1 million and are estimated at $146.9 million and $154.0 million, respectively, for 1962 and 1963. The reduction in the amount estimated to be outstanding in 1962 resulted from the payment to Treasury during that year of a dividend

The Federal Housing Administration, created by the National Housing Act of 1934, is a noncorporate business-type agency. It was made subject to the Government Corporation Control Act by the Housing Act of 1948. The principal purposes of FHA are to encourage and stabilize the home-mortgage market and to improve home-financing practices along with housing standards and conditions. These purposes are accomplished through the insurance of loans and investments to finance the purchase, production, repair, and improvement of residential structures. As of June 30, 1961, over $70 billion of insurance had been written, with nearly $36 billion outstanding.

FHA conducts a wide variety of insurance programs through 15 separate funds established by statute. The largest is the mutual mortgage fund for the insurance of mortgages on 1- to 4-family dwellings under section 203 of the National Housing Act. Other funds cover the insurance of loans on home repairs and improvements and mortgages on multifamily housing, urban renewal housing, armed services housing, other special-purpose housing and the insurance of equity investments in rental housing.

The mutual mortgage fund differs from the other insurance funds in that mortgagors at termination of their mortgages, as authorized by statute, share in the rebate of any premiums paid into the fund but not required for expenses or losses. Through June 30, 1961, such participation payments to homeowners had exceeded $121 million, with more than $176 million reserved for future payments.

All of the FHA insurance programs produce revenue. This is derived primarily from insurance premiums, appraisal and miscellaneous fees, and interest from Government securities and other investments. Through June 30, 1961, income had totaled $2.1 billion.

Budget program.—The FHA budget for 1963 is planned to enable FHA to carry out its share of the President's housing program. The Housing Act of 1961 introduced important new programs and modified existing programs which strengthen FHA's capacity to improve housing standards and conditions, to assist in stabilizing the mortgage market, and to stimulate housing production. The new legislation provides particularly for the conservation and improvement of existing housing, the production of new housing for families of low and moderate income, and the encouragement of experimental housing design, materials, and construction. The full effects of the Housing Act of 1961 will be realized for the first time in 1963.

Summary of individual insurance programs.—Summary statements and estimated workload are provided below for the major insurance programs:

1. Home modernization and repair insurance program (title I, sec. 2).—Loans insured under title I, section 2, are mainly for the alteration, repair or improvement of residential structures. Authorized financial institutions provide 10% coinsurance and are insured by FHA for 90% of losses on these loans. The maximum loan for single units is $3,500, and the maximum duration is 5 years (except for new nonresidential farm structures, which is 15 years). The average loan during 1961 was over $980. Workload data are as follows:

Amount (in millions).....	$46.3	$48.4	$48.9

2. Basic 1- to 4-family mortgage insurance programs (secs. 8, 203, 222, and 233).—Mortgages are insured on 1- to 4-family homes under section 203, mutual mortgage insurance, and section 222, servicemen's mortgage insurance. No new insurance is being written under section 8, which was repealed by the Housing Act of 1954. Statutory limits for mortgage insurance under section 203 are 97% of the first $15 thousand of appraised value, 90% of the next $5 thousand of value, and 75% of value in excess of $20 thousand, up to a maximum mortgage of $25 thousand on single-family homes.

This program has been augmented by the certified agency program, which brings the advantages of FHA mortgage insurance to communities remote from the insuring offices. Under this variation, mortgagees approved by the Federal Housing Commissioner are authorized to process applications under sections 203 and 222, obtaining appraisals and inspections by FHA-approved fee appraisers and inspectors.

Section 203k is a new program under the Housing Act of 1961 which authorizes the insurance of long-term home improvement loans. Loans may not exceed $10 thousand per dwelling unit and are further limited to an amount which, when added to any outstanding indebtedness against the property being improved, would keep the total indebtedness against the property within the amount of a mortgage which could be insured by FHA.

Servicemen's mortgage insurance covers mortgages for single-family homes purchased by servicemen who have been in the Armed Services for a minimum of 2 years. The maximum mortgage insurable is $20 thousand, and the maximum loan-value ratio is the same as for section 203 except that the maximum ratio above $15 thousand is a more liberal 95%.

Another new program involves mortgages insured under section 233 on homes using advanced technology in design, materials, or construction, or experimental property standards for neighborhood design. Statutory limits for mortgage insurance under section 233 are the same as those under section 203 except that they are based on replacement cost rather than appraised value. Workload data are as follows:

3. Basic multifamily mortgage insurance program (secs. 207-210, 213, 231, 232, and 234).—Mortgages are insured on new or existing multifamily rental housing projects under the basic section 207 program with a maximum loan-value ratio of 90%. Mobile home courts also are insurable under this section with a maximum loan-value ratio of 75%.

A more liberal loan-value ratio, up to 97%, is provided for mortgage insurance on single, attached, or multifamily projects undertaken by nonprofit cooperative groups under section 213.

Mortgages are insured with liberal terms on new or rehabilitated multifamily housing projects for occupancy by elderly persons under section 231 and on new or rehabilitated nursing homes under section 232. Under section 231, for nonprofit mortgagors, maximum loan ratios are 100% of replacement cost for new construction and 100% of value for other than new construction, and for profit-motivated mortgagors the corresponding ratios are 90%. Under section 232, the maximum loan-value ratio is now 90%.

Under section 234, introduced by the Housing Act of 1961, mortgages are insured on individually owned family units in multifamily structures together with an undivided interest in the common areas and facilities which serve the structure. These loans are limited to multifamily structures which are, or have been, covered by an FHA mortgage, and as each individual family unit is sold, it is released from the over-all mortgage. Statutory limits for mortgage insurance under section 234 are 97% of the first $13,500 of appraised value, 90% of the next $4,500 of value, and 70% of value in excess of $18 thousand, up to a maximum mortgage of $25 thousand.

Workload included for nursing homes is in terms of beds rather than units.

4. Urban renewal, rehabilitation and relocation mortgage insurance program (secs. 220 and 221).—Section 220 provides mortgage insurance for the construction or rehabilitation of single or multifamily housing in approved urban renewal areas. For single-family homes, the maximum ratio of loan to replacement cost is 97% of the first $15 thousand of cost, 90% of the next $5 thousand, and 75% of cost in excess of $20 thousand up to a maximum mortgage of $25 thousand. For multifamily housing, the maximum ratio of loan to replacement cost is 90%.

Section 220h authorizes the insurance of secured loans for the alteration, repair, and improvement of existing 1- to 4-family structures in approved urban renewal areas.

Section 221 provides mortgage insurance for new or rehabilitated low-cost housing for families displaced by governmental actions and, by amendment in the Housing Act of 1961, for low- and moderate-income families generally. This program includes both single and multifamily housing. For single-family homes, the maximum ratio of loan to value is 100% in the case of new construction, with a maximum mortgage of $11 thousand in areas of normal cost. The maximum term for displaced families is 40 years; for other families 35 years, or 40 years if the mortgagor cannot meet the higher monthly payments under a 35-year mortgage.

The Housing Act of 1961 also gives the Commissioner wide latitude under section 221, to provide a program of rental housing for displaced families and for other low and moderate income families at interest rates below the market level and is given authority to waive the FHA insurance premium. 5. Armed services mortgage insurance program (secs. 803, 809, and 810).—Section 803 provides mortgage insurance for multifamily rental housing at military installations for military and civilian personnel. The maximum mortgage insurable may not exceed the estimated replacement cost, and the Secretary of Defense may be required to guarantee the armed services housing mortgage insurance fund against loss.

Section 809 provides mortgage insurance on 1- to 4-family homes for civilian personnel at research or development installations of the armed services, Atomic Energy Commission, and National Aeronautics and Space Administration. The maximum loan-value ratio is identical to that under section 203b.

Section 810 provides mortgage insurance on single and multifamily rental housing for essential civilian as well as military personnel at installations of the armed services in defense-impacted areas. Workload data are as follows:

¹ Inspections under sec. 803 are provided by the armed services.

6. Emergency housing mortgage insurance programs (titles VI, VII, and IX).—After World War II the liberal war housing mortgage insurance provisions of title VI were extended to provide veterans with emergency housing. Insurance authority for 1- to 4-family homes under this title was terminated by the Housing Act of 1948 and for multifamily housing by the Housing Act of 1950.

Title IX provided mortgage insurance for defense housing, covering both 1- to 4-family and multifamily. Authorization to insure under this title was terminated by the Housing Act of 1954. Workload data are as follows:

Summary of operating expense estimates.—FHA operating expenses are paid out of operating income. It is estimated that total operating expense for 1963 will be $82.2 million, of which $71.4 million will be nonadministrative and $10.8 million administrative. The 1962 estimate is $74,450 thousand, of which $64,650 thousand is nonadministrative and $9.8 million administrative.

Financing.—Mortgage insurance claims are met by the issuance of debentures that are subsequently redeemed out of operating revenue and proceeds from the sale of acquired properties and mortgages. In 1961, $172.8 million of debentures were issued. Debentures to be issued in 1962 are estimated at $352.5 million, and in 1963, $351.1 million. Debentures were retired in 1961 in the amount of $91.7 million. Retirements of debentures in 1962 and 1963, respectively, are estimated at $127.6 million and $167.1 million.

Operating results and retained earnings.—Operations in 1961 resulted in a net income of $129.5 million. This income was distributed as follows: $62.6 million to the general surplus account, $41.5 million to the participating reserve account of the mutual mortgage insurance fund, and $25.4 million to the general insurance reserves under the nonmutual insurance funds.

Net income is expected to be $101.4 million in 1962 and $119.6 million in 1963. In the 2-year period it is estimated that income totaling $105.3 million will be added to the general surplus account, $69.1 million to the participating reserve account of the mutual mortgage insurance fund, and $46.6 million to the insurance reserves under other funds.

Insurance reserves totaling $866.6 million on June 30, 1960, increased to $982.3 million during 1961 and are expected to reach $1,063 million during 1962 and $1,160.1 million during 1963. These reserves are available to meet insurance expenses and losses.

Insurance authority.—The housing repair and improvement insurance authorization, title I, section 2, was extended in unlimited amount through September 1965 by the Housing Act of 1961.

This law also amended the general mortgage insurance authorization, section 217, to apply to all loan and mortgage insurance programs except section 2, section 221, or title VIII, and to provide insurance authorization through September 1965.

The authority to insure under section 221 with respect to the moderate income housing program expires July 1, 1963, in the case of the sales housing and the profit rental programs, and July 1, 1965, in the case of the low-interest rate rental programs except for displaced families, who will continue to have the benefit of all the programs.

The armed services housing insurance authorization, under title VIII, sections 803 and 809, has been extended by the Housing Act of 1961 to October 1, 1962.

The U.S. Housing Act of 1937, as amended (42 U.S.C. 1401 et seq.), provides for a low rent public housing program comprising decent, safe, and sanitary dwellings within the financial reach of families of low income. The Public Housing Administration is responsible for administering this program. The Administration makes loans and annual contributions to local housing authorities to assist in financing the construction of low rent housing projects and in maintaining their low rent character after completion and occupancy.

The most recent amendments of the U.S. Housing Act of 1937 were made in the Housing Act of 1961 (Public Law 87-70), which among other things (1) made available the remaining balance of the $336 million annual contribution authorization contained in the Housing Act of 1949; (2) authorized increased contributions, within the $336 million limitation, with respect to certain dwelling units occupied by elderly tenants of particularly low income; and (3) gave localities greater flexibility in shaping admission policies in such a way as to best meet their own particular local problems.

Budget program—Development.—The Housing Act of 1959 authorized the placing of an additional 37,000 housing units under annual contributions contracts. Under this authorization, which became available without a time limitation upon enactment of the act, annual contributions contracts were executed for 36,962 units before July 1, 1961.

While not explicitly related to any specific number of dwelling units, the new authorization contained in the Housing Act of 1961 provides for approximately 100,000 additional units. The budget plans contemplate that these units will be placed under annual contributions contracts within 3 years.

The following tables show workload accomplishments and the status of the program by stage:

Rounded.....		166,000	185,000

Increased annual contributions requirements in 1962 and 1963, including an additional appropriation of $1 million anticipated in 1962 (reflected above), are attributed largely (a) to an increased number of units eligible for annual contributions resulting from the completion and permanent financing of new projects, and (b) to the increased contributions authorized in the Housing Act of 1961 with respect to certain dwelling units occupied by elderly families and persons. The Public Housing Administration may make payments up to $336 million per annum. The maximum amount of annual contributions which the Administration will be committed to pay with respect to contracts executed as of June 30, 1961, is estimated at $257.9 million, leaving $78.1 million of uncommitted authority to pay annual contributions, including the increased payments for the elderly, which are estimated at $1.8 million in 1962 and $3.4 million in 1963.

Administrative expenses.—Administrative expenses for the low rent public housing program are financed by appropriation. These expenses amounted to $13,802 thousand in 1961; for 1962 $14,048 thousand is estimated, including a supplemental of $80 thousand to pay increased travel costs pursuant to Public Law 87-139; and the estimate for 1963 is $14,750 thousand.

Administrative expenses are related primarily to the provision of technical advice and assistance to local housing authorities in the development and management of low rent housing projects and to the auditing of local housing authority operations to ensure compliance with the social purposes of relevant Federal legislation and to protect the Federal investment.

The increasing number of dwelling units entering all stages of the program during 1962 and 1963 is the principal reason for the rise in administrative expenses. Increased employment is required for 1963 to permit satisfactory performance of this increased workload.

Nonadministrative expenses.—The Public Housing Administration utilizes program receipts to meet certain expenses of the low rent public housing program, and the use of these funds correspondingly reduces the requirements for appropriated funds. The Congress, in order to maintain control over the use of these receipts, has established a nonadministrative expense limitation which applies (a) to expenses for the operation and maintenance of federally owned, directly operated projects; and (b) to expenses for technical services provided by the Administration during construction.

As of June 30, 1961, 3 federally owned, directly operated projects, containing 1,182 units, remained in the program. These projects have not been sold or leased to local housing authorities for various reasons, such as absence of State enabling legislation, local conditions, and the lack of congressional authority to dispose of the projects for other than low rent use. Estimated program receipts and expenses for 1962 and 1963 are based upon the continued operation of these projects by the Administration throughout both years.

Technical services are provided during the development stage by having representatives of the Administration visit the sites of projects under construction to ensure that projects will be built in accordance with specified and acceptable standards. The local housing authorities pay a fixed fee for this service based upon a percentage of the total development cost, and the receipts are used to pay the cost of the service. A supplemental for 1962 is required to pay increased travel costs pursuant to Public Law 87-139. The estimated cost for 1963 is based upon the number of projects in the construction stage.

Financing.—The Public Housing Administration makes loans to local housing authorities to finance the early costs of project development. These loans are made with funds borrowed by the Administration from the Treasury for this purpose and with certain available working funds. The outstanding amount of Treasury borrowings, which may not exceed $1.5 billion at any one time, was $32 million at the end of 1961 and is estimated at this same year-end level for 1962 and 1963.

When the Federal development loans to a local housing authority accumulate to an amount which is attractive to private investors, the local authority sells short-term temporary notes to the public and utilizes the proceeds to repay the Federal loans and to meet current needs for additional working capital. These notes are secured by the Federal Government's pledge to make development loans, if necessary, covering up to 90% of the development cost of the project. This arrangement has established an excellent security rating for the notes, which sold at an average interest rate of 1.626% in 1961.

In 1961 direct loans by the Administration were refunded through secured loans by private investors in the amount of $87 million. This refunding is estimated at $106 million in 1962 and $108 million in 1963. The temporary notes sold to private investors are issued for short periods, an average of 5 months, and may be reissued several times, and in increasing amounts, before the project is permanently financed. As a result, a considerable turnover of short-term notes takes place and the volume of loan activity managed by the Administration during any one year greatly exceeds the amount of loans outstanding at the end of the year. The following table shows the actual financing and refinancing of development loans during 1961 and estimated transactions during 1962 and 1963 (in millions of dollars):

Normally, project development costs are permanently financed toward the end of the construction period through the sale of long-term bonds to the public. These are usually 40-year serial bonds and are secured by the Federal Government's pledge to pay annual contributions. In 1961 they sold at an average interest rate of 3.471%. As of June 30, 1961, there were approximately 597,028 units potentially eligible for permanent financing. Of these, 442,867 units had been permanently financed, leaving a potential permanent financing workload of 154,161 units. The estimates for permanent financing based on program status as of June 30, 1961, are shown below:

Operating results.—Operating income is not intended to be sufficient to cover all program expense. Net losses, in the budget year, are approximately equal to the appropriations for administrative expenses and annual contributions payments.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) was established in 1958 to plan, develop, and conduct the nonmilitary space programs of the United States, including the exploration of space and its utilization for peaceful purposes, and to conduct and support advanced research and development related to aeronautics and space in support of both civilian and military programs.

In 1963 the estimates provide for consolidating the operating requirements of NASA, previously provided in the two appropriations—Salaries and expenses and Research and development—into a single appropriation for Research, development, and operation. For comparative purposes the amounts in the two present appropriations for 1961 and 1962 have been combined in the schedules.

1. Manned space flight.—The funds under this activity provide for all NASA manned space flight projects and for the development of the large launch vehicles needed for manned space exploration.

(a) Spacecraft development and operations.—Flights under project Mercury have to date launched two astronauts into suborbital space flight and a chimpanzee into orbit around the earth as the precursor of manned orbital flights in 1962. At the same time steps are being taken in 1962 to initiate the advanced program for manned exploration of space which will lead to extended manned earth orbital flights, manned circumlunar flight, and a manned lunar landing and return within this decade. In 1963, expanded effort will be devoted to the two methods now under consideration to achieve a manned lunar landing—direct ascent from the earth to the moon, and the use of rendezvous techniques to bring large spacecraft components together in earth orbit, after which the combined spacecraft would continue to the moon. The latter method, if successful, would permit an earlier attempt to land astronauts on the moon because it requires smaller launch vehicles than those required for a direct ascent to the moon. The major emphasis in 1963 will be placed on the development of a two-man spacecraft to test rendezvous technology, and of the three-man Apollo spacecraft which will be used for manned lunar flight with either the rendezvous or direct ascent method. In addition to contractor effort funded in this activity, the Manned Spacecraft Center, Houston, Tex., devotes primary emphasis to these projects with support from other NASA centers.

(b) Launch vehicle development.—In both 1961 and 1962, major emphasis in this activity was on the Saturn launch vehicle, the first stage of which was successfully launched in October 1961. The Saturn, with 1.5 million pounds of thrust in the first stage, will be used primarily to launch large spacecraft into earth orbit. The Advanced Saturn, generating a total of about 7 million pounds of thrust in the first stage, which was initiated in 1962, will be given major emphasis in 1963. This vehicle will be used for manned circumlunar flights and to boost the components of the Apollo spacecraft to a rendezvous in earth orbit from which manned lunar landings may be attempted. The Nova launch vehicle, with at least 12 million pounds of thrust in the first stage, will also receive major funding in 1963. The Nova will provide the capability for direct ascent of manned missions to the lunar surface. Actual development of these launch vehicles will be performed by industrial contractors. The NASA effort related to this activity is centered at the Marshall Space Flight Center, Huntsville, Ala.; the Michoud Plant, New Orleans, La.; the Mississippi Test Facility, Pearl River, Miss.; and the Atlantic Missile Range, Cape Canaveral, Fla.

2. Space applications.—NASA funds under this activity provide for research and development on meteorological and communications satellite systems, supporting contractor effort and NASA operations in these fields at the Goddard Space Flight Center, Greenbelt, Md.

(a) Meteorology.—Work in this area has resulted in the successful launching of satellites in the continuing Tiros series. Research and development effort which began in 1962 on the more advanced Nimbus satellites will be expanded in 1963. The U.S. Weather Bureau is providing for initiation of an operational worldwide meteorological satellite system using the Nimbus satellite. Vehicle procurement, launching, and certain other services in connection with the operational system will be performed by NASA for the Weather Bureau on a reimbursable basis. NASA's meteorological satellite program also includes the development of advanced techniques and components for use in future systems.

(b) Communications.—NASA's work in the communications satellite field is being carried forward in cooperation with industry and the Department of Defense. In the passive communications satellite program work will continue in 1963 on the advanced Rebound passive communications satellite, to follow the highly successful Echo.

In the field of active communications satellites, emphasis is aimed at early availability of operational communications satellite systems. Major projects include the Relay wide-band experimental satellites and the Syncom twenty-four hour orbit satellite system being developed in cooperation with the Department of Defense. Technological developments from government research programs in the communications satellite area are being made available to encourage the earliest possible operational use by industry. In addition, NASA will provide services on a reimbursable basis to firms which wish to launch privately developed communications spacecraft such as the Telstar satellites to be launched in 1962. NASA will also initiate effort on advanced satellites of the intermediate altitude and twenty-four hour types.

3. Unmanned investigations in space.—This activity encompasses NASA's programs for unmanned scientific investigations in space and the development of the related launch vehicles. Effort in this area is primarily carried out by the Goddard Space Flight Center; Wallops Station, Wallops Island, Va.; the Jet Propulsion Laboratory, Pasadena, Calif.; other NASA centers and NASA contractors.

(a) Spacecraft development and operations.—The use of sounding rocket probes to acquire scientific data in nearby space will be expanded in 1963 with special emphasis on the work being done in cooperation with the Nation's universities. Major emphasis in the scientific satellite program in 1963 will be devoted to earth orbiting geophysical, astronomical, and solar observatories. Each observatory will carry multiple experiments to further increase man's knowledge of space. Work on cooperative international scientific satellites will also be expanded. In the unmanned lunar exploration programs, the emphasis in 1963 will be on the Ranger and Surveyor programs to land scientific instruments on the lunar surface and to collect detailed data from lunar orbiting spacecraft in support of the manned lunar landing program. Development of the Mariner series, designed to explore the planets Venus and Mars, will also continue in 1963 as well as effort on the preliminary design of advanced spacecraft for lunar and planetary exploration.

(b) Launch vehicle development.—In the development of launch vehicles for use in the unmanned scientific, technological, and space applications programs, major effort in 1963 will be devoted to continued development of the Centaur launch vehicle, which is now planned for use in the Surveyor and Mariner projects, among others. Work will continue on the solid propellant Scout vehicle to improve its reliability and orbital accuracy. Development effort on the Delta vehicle was largely completed in 1962.

4. Space technology.—This activity includes those programs designed to advance the technology required for the development and operation of space vehicles and related equipment.

(a) Launch vehicles and spacecraft.—Funds included provide for technical development in the spacecraft, launch vehicle, and launch operations fields to the point where the results can be used in flight programs. Major efforts in this area are conducted at the Langley Research Center, Hampton, Va.; Ames Research Center, Sunnyvale, Calif.; Lewis Research Center, Cleveland, Ohio; and Marshall Space Flight Center, as well as by NASA contractors.

(b) Propulsion and space power.—This activity includes the development of advanced propulsion and electric power techniques and systems for use in future space vehicles. In 1963 work will continue on the advanced liquid propulsion engines which are currently planned for use on the Saturn, Advanced Saturn, and Nova launch vehicles. Major emphasis will continue to be placed on nuclear systems in joint programs with the Atomic Energy Commission. These include the development of a nuclear rocket under project Rover for use in a launch vehicle and nuclear electric power systems under project Snap. Effort will also be devoted to the development of small solid rockets for use in space vehicles, electrical propulsion systems, and battery, solar, and other electrical auxiliary power units used to operate sensors and telemetry equipment in spacecraft. Primary effort on these programs will be carried out at the Lewis Research Center and the Space Nuclear Propulsion Office, Cleveland, Ohio; the Marshall Space Flight Center, and the National Nuclear Rocket Development Center in Nevada.

5. Aircraft and missile technology.—This activity provides for basic and applied research on problems related to design, development, construction and operation of aircraft and missiles. In 1963, expanded effort will be devoted to research on the supersonic transport project in cooperation with the Federal Aviation Agency and the Department of Defense. Work will continue on advanced military aircraft employing variable swept wings and on short and vertical takeoff and landing techniques. Also included under this activity are the advanced research and development related to projects which link techniques associated with aerodynamic flight with those applicable to space. The aircraft and missile technology effort is primarily carried out by the NASA Research Centers, Marshall Space Flight Center, and Wallops Station.

6. Supporting operations.—Included in this activity are funds for operating and improving the tracking and data acquisition networks of the NASA space flight programs at stations located throughout the world. General equipment improvements and renovations will enhance tracking and data acquisition capability through greater sensitivity, higher power, longer range, and improvement in the reliability and quality of data received. NASA's activities in this field are handled by the Goddard Space Flight Center, the Jet Propulsion Laboratory, and the Langley Research Center.

This appropriation provides for the construction and modernization of facilities, including design by contract, the purchase of items of equipment related to construction or modernization, and advanced planning and design for facilities proposed for future authorization. The projects in the proposed 1963 program are described below:

1. Manned space flight.—The 1963 estimates under this activity include facilities for propulsion development, spacecraft development, ground testing, and launching required primarily to carry out the Saturn, Advanced Saturn, Apollo, and Nova programs. The major items include construction of Advanced Saturn and Nova launch and support facilities at the Atlantic Missile Range, Cape Canaveral, Fla.; Advanced Saturn and Nova ground test and support facilities at the Marshall Space Flight Center, Huntsville, Ala.; and the Mississippi Test Facility, Pearl River, Miss.; additional propulsion development and manufacturing facilities at the Michoud Plant, New Orleans, La., and at contractors' plants; and development facilities for the Apollo spacecraft at the Manned Spacecraft Center, Houston, Tex.

2. Space applications.—Construction is proposed for an applied sciences laboratory at the Goddard Space Flight Center, Greenbelt, Md., to provide facilities for research and development in the area of meteorological and communications satellite applications.

3. Unmanned investigations in space.—The 1963 program provides for a bioscience laboratory at the Ames

Research Center, Sunnyvale, Calif.; spacecraft environmental simulation facilities at the Goddard Space Flight Center; and support and maintenance facilities at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory, Pasadena, Calif.

4. Space technology.—The estimates provide for a variety of space research and supporting facilities at Ames Research Center, Langley Research Center, Hampton, Va., Lewis Research Center, Cleveland, Ohio, Goddard Space Flight Center, Jet Propulsion Laboratory, and Wallops Station, Wallops Island, Va., and for ground test facilities for the development of nuclear rocket engines and stages at the National Nuclear Rocket Development Center in Nevada.

5. Aircraft and missile technology.—A flight simulator and additional test and fabrication facilities are required at the Flight Research Center, Edwards Air Force Base, Calif., in support of the flight research program on advanced aircraft.

6. Supporting operations.—The requirements in this area include a new data acquisition facility in the Far East, additional data acquisition facilities at various locations in the United States, an advanced antenna system at the Goldstone Station of the Jet Propulsion Laboratory, and additional antenna facilities at Johannesburg, South Africa and Woomera, Australia. Supporting communication facilities will also be provided at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory and the Goddard Space Flight Center.

This appropriation provides for all administrative expenses of the agency with the exception of those applicable to the Department of Medicine and Surgery.

A decrease of $4,104 thousand in appropriation requirements is forecast for 1963. This decrease is attributed primarily to declining workloads in the vocational rehabilitation and education program, the closing of certain contact locations, and the extension of automatic data processing.

1. General administration.—The Administrator and his top staff assistants provide the executive direction of the agency, establish basic policies, interpret laws pertaining to veterans' affairs and promulgate supplementary regulations, and direct and coordinate the activities of the operating departments. The Board of Veterans Appeals, established by statutory enactment, renders appellate decisions final in all cases other than insurance cases, in appeals to the Administrator on claims involving benefits under laws administered by the Veterans Administration.

2. Insurance.—Approximately 6 million veterans are insured under the veterans life insurance programs. Obligational requirements for the administration of these programs have been reduced from approximately $41.5 million in 1953 to an estimated $24 million in 1963. These reductions, accompanied by only slight decreases in the number of policies maintained, have been made possible through improved operating methods and procedures.

1. Medical research.—This program is directly related to patient care in view of the part it plays in facilitating recruitment and retention of qualified physicians for the hospital system. Projects are conducted in Veterans Administration laboratories or in other institutions on a contract basis, whichever is more advantageous or economical. Research by the Veterans Administration is financed from three sources: (1) direct appropriation—$21,500 thousand in 1961, (2) grants from the National Institutes of Health and other organizations sponsoring research—$5,500 thousand, and (3) services provided from funds budgeted for hospital operations—estimated at more than $3,000 thousand, making a total research program in 1961 of $30,000 thousand. In 1962 and 1963, funds available from all sources will aggregate approximately $35,500 thousand.

In addition the construction appropriation includes amounts for improving research laboratory facilities at existing hospitals and research facilities will also be incorporated in new hospitals.

Language is proposed elsewhere in the budget which will permit National Institutes of Health grants to be made directly to Veterans Administration hospitals beginning in 1963, on the same terms and conditions as are applied to non-Federal institutions, instead of through the medical schools.

2. Prosthetic research.—This is a research program to develop and test prosthetic, orthopedic and sensory aids for the purpose of improving the care and rehabilitation of disabled eligible veterans, including amputees, paraplegics and the blind.

¹ Selected resources as of June 30 are as follows: Unpaid undelivered orders, 1960, $2,491 thousand (1961 adjustments, - $296 thousand); 1961, $2,228 thousand; 1962, $2,228 thousand; 1963, $2,228 thousand.

This appropriation provides for the cost of care and treatment of eligible beneficiaries at Veterans Administration hospitals, domiciliary homes, and outpatient clinics, contract hospitals and State homes.

To be eligible for inpatient care and treatment a beneficiary must be a veteran of any war with a service-connected disability incurred or aggravated during a period of war, or, within the limits of Veterans Administration facilities, for any other disability if the veteran is unable to defray the expenses of necessary hospital or domiciliary care. Outpatient medical and dental treatment is provided to veterans with service-connected disabilities by staffs of Veterans Administration outpatient clinics and by physicians and dentists participating in the hometown medical care program. It is also provided to veterans receiving vocational rehabilitation who require treatment to avoid interruption of training, pensioners of nations allied with the United States in World War I and in World War II, and veterans of the Spanish-American War, Indian Wars, Boxer Rebellion, and Philippine Insurrection. Veterans are also provided examinations in outpatient clinics for purposes of rating for compensation and pension, insurance and determining their need for hospitalization or domiciliary care.

Medical services may be furnished on an outpatient basis for non-service-connected disabilities to veterans who have been determined to need hospital care and whose admission to a hospital has been scheduled, or who require post-hospital treatment to complete hospital care.

Increases in 1963 are the result of (a) an increase of 276 patients in Veterans Administration hospitals; (b) continued activation of the new 1,000-bed neuropsychiatric hospital at Brecksville, Ohio; (c) average salary increases resulting from periodic pay increases and reclassification actions; (d) an increase in staffing levels for improved physical facilities and to sustain quality medical care; (c) an accelerated equipment replacement program in which approximately half of an estimated backlog will be liquidated; (f) increased reciprocal per diem rates in Federal hospitals; (g) an increase of 100 members in State homes as a result of the construction of new facilities in Washington and Wisconsin; (h) new day care centers and audiology clinics; and (i) transfer of costs of housekeeping and engineering services which are provided the Department of Veterans Benefits and the Department of Insurance and which have heretofore been paid from General operating expenses.

This appropriation provides for compensation, pensions, education and training allowances for veterans of the Korean conflict, educational assistance allowances under the War Orphans' Educational Assistance Act, special assistance to disabled veterans for those requiring vocational rehabilitation, housing grants, automobiles or other conveyances, burial allowances, and other benefits authorized for veterans and their survivors. The increased costs in the budget year are primarily attributable to the pension program. Accretions to the rolls are largely the result of the aging of veterans and the liberalizations provided under the Veterans' Pension Act of 1959, effective July 1, 1960.

Projections have been based on analyses of experienced trends relating to caseloads, training loads and annual average payments per case under the direct benefits program. Consideration was given to specific conditions (such as the enactment of new legislation, Administrator's decisions, economic conditions, etc.) which might affect the separate classes of beneficiaries. It is anticipated that a supplemental appropriation of $172,200 thousand will be required for 1962, as follows: $21,000 thousand for compensation and pension benefits and $151,200 thousand for readjustment benefits including $55,000 thousand for education and training and $96,200 thousand to supplement the loan guaranty revolving fund. The effect of the supplement is included in the program and performance statement but not included in the accompanying Program and financing and Object classification schedules.

1. Compensation.—Compensation is payable to living veterans for a disability connected with military service and eligible dependents of deceased veterans may receive payments for death connected with military service. As of June 1961, there were an estimated 22,403,000 living veterans of all wars and peacetime service and 8.9% of these or 2,000,825 were receiving compensation benefits. Some consideration has been given to contemplated increases in the strength of the Armed Forces and the resultant effect on the disability and death compensation rolls.

(a) Living veterans.—The basic rates of disability compensation provided in wartime cases range from $19 for 10% disability to $225 per month for total disability. Certain cases are compensated for specific disabilities as prescribed by law, to a maximum of $600 a month per case. An additional allowance is payable for dependents of veterans rated 50% or more disabled to a maximum of $100 a month per case, plus $12 monthly for each child in excess of three. All rates of peacetime disability compensation are 80% of wartime rates. Legislation has been proposed to increase certain rates of disability compensation and a supplemental appropriation of $64,400 thousand is estimated for 1963.

The caseload of living veterans reflects a decreasing trend primarily attributable to the increased death rate of World War I and World War II veterans and to the continuing effect of reduced ratings of less than 10% in the World War II category. The average payment per case is expected to continue downward because of an increasing number of "peacetime" cases and changes in family composition.

(b) Deceased veterans.—The caseload appears to have reached a peak and a slight downward trend is forecast through 1963. The World War II group is the largest category and is the basis for this trend. The average payment per case is expected to decrease through 1963, with the slight changes due to the composition of the cases, particularly in the major World War II category.

2. Pensions.—Benefits are payable to wartime veterans and dependents of deceased veterans for non-service-connected disability and death. Of the 22,403,000 veterans estimated to be living as of June 1961, 1,106,161 of the number, or 4.9%, were receiving pension benefits. The Veterans' Pension Act of 1959, effective July 1, 1960, increased requirements in 1961, but it was not as substantial as originally estimated. However, it is believed that some delayed effect will be present in 1962 and 1963.

(a) Living veterans.—In general, pensions are payable to wartime veterans who are unable to secure substantially gainful employment as a result of a permanent and totally disabling non-service-connected disability. The legally prescribed standards for determining eligibility are especially liberal for veterans who have attained 65 years of age. Effective July 1, 1960, a sliding scale of pensions was introduced based on income and family status, ranging from a minimum of $40 monthly to a single veteran with $1,200–$1,800 annual income, to a maximum of $100 monthly to a veteran with three or more dependents whose income is $1,000 or less annually. These are increased by $70 monthly when the veteran needs regular aid and attendance.

The caseload continues to increase steadily with the major gains projected in the World War I category in 1962 and 1963. It is estimated the average annual payment will decrease in 1962 and 1963 because veterans with any significant income will draw a lower monthly rate, or none at all, after they recoup their own contribution to social security or other retirement programs. Funds appropriated for 1962 will be insufficient to cover costs of pension payments through the year and a supplemental appropriation of $21,000 thousand for 1962 is anticipated to cover these uncontrollable costs.

(b) Deceased veterans.—Under the Veterans' Pension Act of 1959, pensions are payable to widows and children of World War II and Korean conflict veterans on the same basis as widows and children of World War I by removing the requirement that the veteran must have had a service-connected disability at death. A sliding scale of pension based on income and family status is payable ranging from $25 monthly to a maximum of $105 monthly (plus $15 for each additional child over 3).

The estimated caseload reflects a more significant increase in 1962, primarily in the World War II and Korean conflict categories, where the continuing effect of equalization with World War I is anticipated. A more normal rate of increase is projected for 1963. The average annual payment decreases in 1962 and 1963 because of the return to a more normal rate of accretions to the rolls resulting in less retroactive payments and to the range of rates under the new pension program.

3. Education and training.—It is estimated that the number of Korean conflict veterans receiving benefits will decline sharply each year. Indications point to a moderate increase in orphan trainees. It is estimated that an additional $55,000 thousand supplemental appropriation will be needed for this activity in 1962. Forecasts of trainee loads based upon an analysis of trends in each of the major categories of training and average costs per trainee follow:

4. Special assistance to disabled veterans.—Disabled veterans requiring vocational rehabilitation are provided educational assistance for tuition, supplies, and equipment.

Assistance also is available to provide grants for specially adapted housing to veterans having suffered the loss of both feet and to paraplegic veterans. In addition, up to $1,600 is allowed certain disabled veterans toward the purchase of automobiles or other conveyances. Based on an analysis of trends, load forecasts, and average costs, total requirements are projected as follows:

¹ The 496 is overstated by 34 grants in fiscal year 1961, resulting from an audit of total grants to date.

5. Burial allowance.—Under present statutes the Administrator is authorized to provide an allowance of $250 (plus transportation charges where death occurs under VA care) for the funeral expenses of a deceased veteran. The estimated increases in obligations are directly related to the estimated increase in the number of deaths of veterans in civil life.

6. Other miscellaneous benefits.—(a) Retired officers.—Emergency officers (World War I) and certain officers (Regular Establishment) retired for service-connected disability are entitled to special retirement benefits at rates substantially higher than the normal compensation payments.

(b) Subsistence allowance.—Subsistence allowance payments to disabled veterans enrolled in vocational rehabilitation and education programs are made from this appropriation.

(c) Special allowance, dependents.—Under certain conditions a special allowance is payable to dependents of certain veterans who died after December 31, 1956, but who were not fully and currently insured under the Social Security Act. The award is based upon a certification to VA by the Social Security Administration.

7. Loan guarantee.—Home, farm and business loans are guaranteed or insured by the Veterans Administration.

The payment of claims and the acquisition of loans and properties result from failure of veteran borrowers to keep up their mortgage payments, thus requiring the Government to assume the responsibility.

Guarantee claims and costs of loan and property acquisitions were paid from this appropriation in 1961. Beginning with 1962 these payments were made from the Loan guaranty revolving fund where detailed breakdown is included. The authorizing legislation provides for transfer from this appropriation to supplement income of the fund as required. It is estimated that $96,200 thousand will be needed to supplement this fund in 1962, and this is proposed for separate transmittal.

1. Military and naval insurance.—Payments are made for claims on war-risk insurance issued to servicemen and veterans of World War I. Although no policies of this insurance remain in force, payments for death and disability claims continue. Payments are made also to the United States Government life insurance fund for claims (1) traceable to extra hazards of military service and (2) for claims while insured was under premium waiver provisions in active military service.

(a) Payment to National service life insurance fund.—

(1) For death claims traceable to extra hazards of service an amount is transferred from this appropriation, which, when added to the reserve of the policy, is equal to the actuarial value of the claim. In the event of total disability traceable to the extra hazards of service, an amount is transferred from this appropriation sufficient to meet the current payments from the fund. (2) Gratuitous insurance was issued to aviation cadets and to certain persons who were unable to make application for National service life insurance. Payments are made to benefi-aries in 120 equal installments, plus interest at the rate of 2.25% per year. The payments on awards were $32,542 thousand in 1961. Payments will decrease annually, as installments are completed.

CONSTRUCTION OF HOSPITAL AND DOMICILIARY FACILITIES—Con.

These funds provide for the construction of new hospital and domiciliary facilities and replacement of existing hospitals and domiciliaries, including acquisition of sites, modernization and other improvements (including regional offices and supply depots) and for fixed and initial portable equipment. The 1963 appropriation will be the third in a 12-year program to modernize the hospital system at a total estimated cost of $900 million. While this program will be primarily for improvements to the older (pre-World War II) hospitals, it will also provide for replacement of 12 surplus military hospitals, for air-conditioning where indicated, and for the correction of deficiencies in post-World War II hospitals as necessary to bring them up to modern medical standards.

A construction program of $77,944 thousand is recommended for 1963 to be financed from an appropriation of $75,500 thousand and $2,444 thousand from savings on prior-year programs. The request includes $8,313 thousand for restoration of a portion of the funds previously appropriated for technical services and initial portable equipment, which were used to finance partially the special 1962 air-conditioning program. The amount for construction of replacement hospitals includes $13,645 thousand for the 580-bed general hospital at Atlanta, Ga.; $7,588 thousand for Downey, Ill., phase II; $17,385 thousand for the 1,000-bed general hospital at Memphis, Tenn.; $14,480 thousand for the 800-bed general hospital at Miami, Fla.; $722 thousand for a site and planning a 500-bed general hospital at Gainesville, Fla.; and $750 thousand for planning a 500-bed general hospital at Temple, Tex. The amount for modernization and other improvements includes $4,042 thousand to complete projects for which planning is in progress and $5,719 thousand for new projects which will ultimately cost $24,903 thousand. $3,000 thousand is provided for construction and planning of additional medical research facilities and $1,800 thousand is for construction of a new restoration center at East Orange, N.J. Also included is $500 thousand for experimental hospital facilities.

The 1963 request for replacement hospitals (in accordance with the Government's policy to provide fallout shelter facilities in new construction) provides funds for fallout facilities as follows: (1) For construction and planning, Atlanta, Ga., $191 thousand; Memphis, Tenn., $248 thousand; and Miami, Fla., $382 thousand; and (2) For planning, Temple, Tex., $21 thousand and Gainesville, Fla., $14 thousand.

In addition, the depots provide certain services for other Federal agencies on a reimbursable basis. The depots are located in Hines, Ill.; Somerville, N.J.; and Wilmington, Calif.

Appropriated funds are not requested for 1962 and 1963 since the cost of the maintenance and operation of the supply depots will be included as an expense of the self-supporting revolving fund Veterans' Administration Supply fund, effective July 1, 1961.

The Veterans Canteen Service was established by Congress in 1946 to furnish at reasonable prices merchandise and services necessary to the comfort and well-being of veterans in hospitals and domiciliaries operated by the Veterans Administration (38 U.S.C. 4201-08).

Budget program.—Sales are expected to be $44,111 thousand in 1962 and $45,421 thousand in 1963. Operating costs increased primarily as a result of providing barber service in neuropsychiatric hospitals and Federal minimum wage legislation.

Financing.—Operations are financed from current revenues. The Congress originally appropriated a total of $4,965 thousand to establish and operate the Service. Funds in excess of the needs of the Service totaling $6,865 thousand have been paid to the Treasury as of June 30, 1961.

Operating results and financial condition.—Operating revenue is expected to be sufficient to cover operating expenses. Funds at the close of the fiscal year in excess of the needs of the Service for the ensuing fiscal year will be paid to the Treasury.

Budget program—1. Direct loans to veterans.—Under existing legislation, authority to make or to enter into commitments to make loans expires July 25, 1967, for World War II veterans, and January 31, 1975, for Korean conflict veterans. The amount of loans outstanding will reach $1.6 billion in 1963. A summary of loan activity follows (dollars in thousands):

Amount.....	$1,221,937	$1,399,821	$1,573,989

2. Vendee loans made.—Resale of real property acquired through foreclosure or voluntary conveyance normally involves a cash downpayment by the purchaser and the creation of a new mortgage loan to be held by the Veterans Administration. The noncash portions of these transactions are excluded from the program and financing schedule above and from the sources and application of funds; but they are included in the following activity summary (in thousands of dollars):

	1961 actual	1962 estimate	1963 estimate
Amount of properties sold.....	2,371	3,160	3,580
Amount of vendee loans acquired.....	2,160	2,842	3,251
Amount of vendee loans repaid.....	405	500	583

3. Real property acquired.—Properties are acquired through foreclosures and voluntary conveyances in defaulted loans. This involves primarily an exchange of noncash assets, with relatively small cash outlay. The noncash portion of these transactions are excluded from the program and financing schedule and the summary of sources and application of funds above but they are included in the following activity summary (in thousands of dollars):

	1961 actual	1962 estimate	1963 estimate
Amount of properties acquired.....	3,176	3,434	3,983

4. Interest on borrowings.—Payments to the Treasury increase as the principal amount of notes held by the Treasury increases with additional borrowings. Out of the total earned income through June 30, 1961, approximately 61% was used to pay interest expense on borrowings.

5. Operating expenses, general.—Includes a variety of miscellaneous expenses incident to closing and servicing loans. Costs will increase in proportion to the increase in the number of loans outstanding.

6. Property management and selling expenses.—The costs of maintaining and selling properties acquired through foreclosure is expected to increase slightly with the increase in the number of loans outstanding.

Financing.—Loans are made primarily with funds borrowed from the Treasury. Borrowing authority in the amount of $1,333 million was authorized through June 30, 1961. Additional borrowing authority of $500 million in the current year and $200 million in 1963 has been authorized. However, present plans provide for utilization of $200 million in the current year. Treasury borrowings subsequent to June 30, 1962, will be reduced by the proceeds of loan sales in the preceding year. In addition, the proceeds of loan repayments and loan sales are available for making loans. Of the total funds to be made available from borrowings and program operations, it is expected that $265 million will be disbursed in current year and $270 million in 1963. Expenses incident to closing loans are paid by the veteran, foreclosure expenses are met from interest income, and administrative expenses are borne by the appropriation for General operating expenses.

Operating results and financial condition.—Interest revenue from loans outstanding exceeds interest expense on borrowings from the Treasury, providing a modest reserve for losses on $1.6 billion loans outstanding. In 1962, $91.4 million and $20 million in 1963 of retained earnings in the fund will be transferred to the Loan guaranty revolving fund.

Beginning in 1962 all nonadministrative costs of the loan guaranty program will be financed through this fund. The fund was established, effective July 1, 1961, by 74 Stat. 533, enacted July 14, 1960. In prior years these costs were paid from the Readjustment benefits appropriation. Receipts generated by program operations, heretofore paid into general fund of the Treasury, will be used to help defray program costs.

Budget program.—In connection with the conversion of this program to a revolving fund, data shown below for 1960 and 1961 have been adjusted for comparability with the estimates.

1. Real property acquired.—Private lenders who have acquired property as a result of foreclosure on defaulted guaranteed or insured loans may elect to convey that property to the Veterans Administration:

Total cost (in thousands).....	$95,078	$129,016	$184,711	$105,880

2. Claims paid.—These payments result from veteran borrowers failing to keep up their payments on VA-guaranteed or insured loans, thus requiring the Government to assume the responsibility. The estimate is based on the relatively low default ratio experienced during the program.

3. Loans acquired.—Guaranteed or insured loans in a default status may be purchased by the Administrator to avoid foreclosure when it is felt that temporary forbearance will allow the veteran borrowers to cure the default.

4. Property management expense.—The costs of ownership of acquired properties are financed from this fund. These costs include local real estate taxes, services performed by management brokers and general maintenance of the property in a saleable condition.

Financing.—Revenue and receipts consist principally of interest income and repayments on and the sale of mortgage loans made incident to the sale of real property acquired as a result of foreclosure on guaranteed loans. Interest income and principal repayments are not sufficient to offset program costs in 1962. Accordingly, it is planned to transfer $91,424 thousand of the retained earnings of the Direct loans to veterans and reserves revolving fund to the Loan guaranty revolving fund. In addition, it is estimated that $96,200 thousand more will be required in 1962 to be obtained by payment from the Readjustment benefits appropriation (74 Stat. 533). In 1963 an estimated $250 million of loans will be sold to private investors. These receipts will offset expenditures and provide a receipt balance of $156,256 thousand.

Proposed language changes, 1962 and 1963.—Current estimates indicate that the number of guaranteed and insured claim payments and properties that private lenders will elect to convey to the Veterans Administration, all uncontrollable, will exceed the totals anticipated in the 1962 budget and the costs thereof will exceed previous estimates by about $115,247 thousand. A request will be submitted to revise the limitation on expenses for 1962.

A language change will be proposed to delete in 1963 the limitation of $120,624 thousand included in the Independent Offices Appropriation Act, 1962 (75 Stat. 358), for expenses involved in property acquisition and other loan guarantee expenses under chapter 37, title 38, U.S. Code.
